FELLOW PRISONER ATTACKS LEO FRANK

Deep Gash Made in His Neck, but it is Thought That He Will Live.

Milledgeville, Ga., July 18.—Leo M. Frank lay in the Georgia State prison hospital tonight with what attendants said was a fighting chance for recovery. Physicians had succeeded in stopping the flow of blood from a jagged wound in his throat made with an improvised knife in the hands of William Green, a fellow convict, also serving a life term for murder. The blow was struck as Frank slept in his bunk in a dormitory late last night.

This latest and most spectacular phase of the two-year fight for Frank's life may be the subject of an investigation by the Georgia prison commission, the same body that refused to recommend that Frank's death sentence for the murder of Mary Phagan be commuted to life imprisonment. Reports from Atlanta were that Gov. Harris intimated today he would start such an investigation to ascertain if Green acted entirely of his own volition.

Green said today when taken from solitary confinement long enough to be questioned, that he planned the attack alone and that no one knew what he intended to do. He was not communicative today and gave as his only excuse that "he thought it should be done." He said, however, that he regretted his act.

Frank was quartered at night in a dormitory with about 100 other prisoners and occupied a bunk about 30 feet from one of the two doors to the large room. Green's bunk was fourth from his. No prisoner is allowed to leave his place without permission from one of the two guards stationed at the dormitory at night. Shortly after 11 o'clock last night Green called out for permission to get up and it was granted.

Struck One Blow.

He started down the line of bunks towards the one occupied by Frank. As he reached it he quickly grabbed Frank by the hair and delivered one blow with the knife he had concealed. The attack was witnessed by the guard who rushed to the bunk and prevented Green from striking again. Green was overpowered and among prisoners who rushed to Frank's aid were two physicians, one of whom also was serving a life term for murder.

The two convict-physicians gave first aid and treated the wound until Dr. Guy Compton, the prison physician, was summoned from his home just a mile away. The three men took 25 stitches in Frank's neck. Dr. H. J. Rosenberg, the Frank family physician, arrived from Atlanta today with nurses. He said that while his condition is precarious, he has a chance for life.

Mrs. Frank was in Milledgeville at the home of J. M. Barnes. She was not told of the attack until after the physicians had finished their work. She became hysterical but later was calmed and was taken to the prison hospital.

At 9 o'clock tonight Dr. Compton announced that Frank's temperature was 99 and that his pulse was good. He added that the patient was in no immediate danger.

Patient Doing Well.

This afternoon Dr. Rosenberg of Atlanta, the Frank family physician, arrived here with Mrs. Frank's brother, M. Marcus of Atlanta. Dr. Rosenberg inspected the wound and the dressing and issued a statement late this afternoon that the operation had been a success and that the patient was doing splendidly.

Frank's strong constitution, which was noticeable throughout his fight for life in the courts of Georgia and the higher courts, is still holding out. He was a frail man when he was brought to the State farm, probably 60 pounds lighter than when he was first arrested accused of the murder of Mary Phagan. But he has taken on flesh since his arrival here. He was getting strong and robust, working much of the time in the open air with other convicts, hence the great loss of blood that he has suffered has not caused a complete collapse. He is weak, but he has nerve.

Frank has asked the prison doctors again if they thought he would live. "You have a good chance to recover," he was told today.

Forgiving Spirit.

Frank smiled. "Don't punish the man who attacked me," he said. "I have nothing to fear. There is nothing between me and God. I will be able to prove to the world that I am innocent of the crime of which they accuse me."

STUDIED HOME ECONOMICS.

Laurens County had Approximately One Tenth of the Delegates at Short Course in Home Economics at Winthrop.

Laurens county's delegation enrolled in the class taking the short course in Home Economics at Winthrop college during the past week was approximately one tenth of the whole number enrolled, showing the wide interest awakened in this county over the improvement of home conditions. The following is a list of them noted in the "Winthrop Weekly News": Miss Annie Radd, Cross Hill; Mrs. W. C. Oxner, Gray Court; Mrs. Glenn Fuller, Laurens, Route 5; Miss Daisy G. Harris, Owings; Mrs. Raymond Hunt, Owings; Mrs. Mary Teague Chuck, Mountville; Miss O. L. Hunter, Ora; Mrs. W. Watis, Clinton; Mrs. J. C. McMillan, Renno; Miss May Roper, Gray Court.

After an intelligent old gentleman at the age of seventy-six dropped dead in his room, his son found over Two Thousand Dollars in Paper Money over the old clock which stood on the wooden mantle, surrounding an open crackling fire. Not even His Own Wife knew that much money was there. The old gentleman was simply careless. His son had married the town banker's daughter, and the bank was trusted. Both the old gentleman's MONEY and LIFE were in danger; for burglars have a way of learning where money is hidden, and fire at any time might have burned the house.
