

Great Old Remedy For Skin Diseases

S. S. S. Clears Skin of Eruptions Drives Poison From the System.

Get it fixed in your mind that skin eruptions, Scrofula, Eczema, burning itching skin, and all skin diseases are due entirely to impure and infected blood. If the trouble was on the outside of the skin, by simply washing and keeping it clean you could obtain relief—not even ointments, lotions, and salves, would be necessary. Agree with us in this belief, and your trouble can be relieved—you can be entirely restored to health. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable treatment that you can secure from your own druggist—it is a blood tonic that will purify your blood and cause a most decided abatement of your trouble, and finally make you entirely well. Fifty years ago S. S. S. was discovered and given to suffering mankind. During this period it has proven its remarkable curative properties as a blood purifier and tonic, and has relieved thousands of cases of disease caused by poor or impure blood, and chronic or inherited blood diseases. You can be relieved, but you must take S. S. S. Take it if only pimples appear, for they denote bad blood, and may be followed by the sufferings from torturing skin eruptions. Therefore be sure. Don't take chances, don't use lotions. Get S. S. S. from your druggist. If yours is a special case, write for expert medical advice to S. S. S. Co., Atlanta, Ga.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side. The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair. At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without its tiring me, and am doing all my work." If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

COTTON MARKET GROWS STEADIER

Since Publication of Government Report Rain Stops Advance.

New York, Aug. 6.—A steadier tone has developed in the cotton market since the publication of the government report making the condition of the crop 75.3 per cent., against 80.3 per cent. the previous month and 78.5 per cent., the 10-year average. Few traders, it appeared, had expected so severe a deterioration in the prospect and a feeling that droughty conditions had caused a further falling off since the official data were collected added somewhat to the bullish influence of the figures. Rains in eastern and central sections of the belt checked the advance and caused mid-week reactions, but dry weather continued in the Southwest and the rather more bullish average of sentiment was also encouraged by the steadiness of Liverpool, the large spot sales reported in the market there, and the continued absence of any hedge selling against either remaining old crop, or prospective new crop supplies. The bulk of the advance has been attributed to covering of shorts much of it having come through houses with Liverpool connections and supposed to be for the purpose of undoing old straddle accounts. These accounts are said to have been accumulated in the market here at a difference of from 90 to 100 points, and the buying is supposed to have been largely in the way of realizing at the prevailing wider differences. Mathematical deductions from the government's condition figures indicating a probable crop of around 12,500,000 bales including linters, have not been entirely accepted in local circles, owing partly to a disposition to question the accuracy of reduced acreage estimates, and the market showed a somewhat reactionary tendency during today's trading as a result of reiterated predictions that cotton would be declared contraband, and private reports of rain in the Southwest. Local spot dealers continued to report a very slight demand for actual, however, and bearish arguments have been chiefly based upon the large carry-over and approaching new crop receipts, although banking interests are reported well prepared to finance the movement.

STANDARD COTTON WAREHOUSES

Advantages to be Gained by Storing Cotton Under Proper Conditions When Markets are Unsatisfactory.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 9.—The importance of properly constructed storage houses which conform to the standards recommended by the underwriters association and afford ample protection and a low insurance rate, as a means to help the farmer, banker, and business man of the South hold the surplus cotton in times of over-production or unsatisfactory market conditions, is emphasized in a new bulletin of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, No. 277, entitled "Cotton Warehouse Construction." Types of warehouses designed to command a low insurance rate and to minimize the cost of handling are described in detail. An earlier investigation, the results of which have been published in Bulletin 216, of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, showed that although the existing storage facilities in the South, if used, could take care of an ordinary crop, few of them were properly located, many poorly designed, the insurance rates and cost of handling high, and that in general there was need of a great change in taking care of the cotton crop from the time it is picked until finally marketed. The so-called "country damage" to cotton is estimated at from $20,000,000 to $75,000,000 a year, almost all of which could be saved with an adequate warehouse system.

When properly stored and insured, cotton is considered by many to be one of the very best collateral assets that can be offered upon which to loan money. Money loaned on cotton stored in such warehouses should command a very low rate of interest. One of the primary reasons that farmers and business men have for storing cotton, is to enable them to borrow money upon it until market conditions improve.

The correct designing of a cotton warehouse is of much importance because upon the construction of the warehouse depends the rate of insurance charged for the cotton inside it. The average insurance rate, it is said, in the buildings now in use is as high as $2 a year on $100. In standard warehouses, properly protected by automatic sprinkler equipment, this rate could be reduced to 25 cents on $100. It is a curious fact, that many of the warehouses now in use cost more to build than if they had been made to conform to the standards.

OTHER THINGS BESIDES DUTY

To Be at Its Best and Highest, Love Must Mean Gladness as Well as Just Service.

The austerity of a woman who pets and panders her own conscience to the discomfort of her entire household, who does her whole duty day after day in an unswerving rectitude of graceless virtue, who sheds her girlish charms and frivolities when she lays aside her wedding gown, is not always the commendable virtue that we have been taught to believe it.

A woman does not share with her special world a due measure of her sweetness unless she has brought to it blessedness as well as goodness, and a wife who remembers only duty and forgets the wonders and the joys of life has lost something of the deeper significance of her marriage vows. Love means gladness as well as service, and its ideal possessor finds the secret of heart ease and happiness in the unconsidered gayety and freshness of life as well as in its rigorous sacrifices.

Duty never yet has laid an unbreakable bond on the heart and fancy. Duty may hold a strong man to his own fire-side, or, being forgotten, may let a weak one slip away to forbidden pleasures, but never yet has duty alone held love to the full sweetness that is its due.

Women are dull beyond words who believe that mere goodness can make a man's heart glad or that duty-guarded faith is worth the having. It was not an impossible fact on Molly-Make-Believe's part, but a most wise and tender one, that she would have two wedding rings with a separate posy for each—"For my active right hand, 'His Soul to Keep,' and for my passive left, 'To Be a Sweetness More Desired Than Spring!'"—Southern Woman's Magazine.

QUEER TRAINING FOR YOUNG

Methods of Punishment Differ Widely Among Various Nations of the World.

There has been much discussion over the proper bringing up of children, but ideas continue to differ. And the farther you get away from home the stranger the ideas seem.

The Filipino father cries out with proud delight as his three-year-old girl baby takes her puff at her first cigar.

Among the Seri Indians of the Gulf of California the father is the last one expected to have any influence on the children. The mother rules the younger members of the family, and when she must enforce her authority by physical force she calls, not on the father, but on one of her brothers or some other male adult of her family. The father must never chastise his children.

A Navajo father administers punishment to his children very much as any other father does, but the Navajo boy has a means of protection denied to white boys. He has only to catch a rat by his own unaided efforts. From the moment he has accomplished this feat, no matter how young he may be, his father may not lay hands on him.

The children of the Point Barrow Eskimos have special training in politeness to foreigners. In conversing with strangers who make mistakes in the native dialect children must carefully note those mistakes and repeat them, even to imitating the wrong pronunciation of words. To speak correctly in such a case is likely to bring punishment from the parents of the child.

Origin of Heels on Shoes.

It is said that the heels worn on shoes had their origin in Persia, where they took the form of flat wood on sandals to raise the feet and protect them from the hot sands. It was many years afterward that this fashion was introduced into Venice, but the reason seems to have been quite different. Here the originators of the fashion were jealous husbands who reasoned that their ladies, thus equipped, would not venture far outside the precincts of their dwelling. These heels were called "clogs," and in order to satisfy the vanity of the wearers and perhaps to sweeten the pill—that is, the discomfort of appearing in them—they were elaborately adorned, sometimes being incrustated with gold and silver.

All He Was Entitled To.

Gounod was a firm and devout Catholic, and adored religious music. During the rehearsal of his "Dramas Sacres," at the Vaudeville theater, the manager called on him one morning and asked permission to make a suggestion. "I think, mon cher maître," he said, "that there is something wanting in your score. For example, do you not think that the Barabbas incident might be improved by a little more orchestral effect?" Gounod, without replying, hid his head in his hands, and, after two or three minutes of meditation, suddenly exclaimed: "No, decidedly no; such a blackguard as that does not deserve more music."

It Might Help.

The 3A class was having its daily lesson in hygiene. The subject for discussion was cleanliness in the schoolroom.

"Now," said the teacher, "who can tell me what each of you can do to keep the room clean?"

Silence followed the question, but finally a small boy raised his hand and in an earnest tone of voice said:

"We can wash the germs off the blackboard."—Indianapolis News.
