SCORED HEAVILY ON PRINCE

Beau Brummell's Remark Left Him Master of Situation, but Victory Was a Costly One.

The greatest dandy and fop of modern times was George Brummell, known as Beau Brummell. He lived a life of delicate and leisured, and since he was poor his living depended upon the favor of the court. The court at that time was represented in the set where the beau's influence was felt by the prince of Wales, who was, if truth must be told, not a slender man. It happened that the prince and the beau quarreled.

To be a dandy is not generally considered the first mark of being a brave man, but Beau Brummell gave instant proof that he was not only a great dandy but a great man as well. The details of the story are somewhat vague, but the main facts are certain. Brummell knew that his quarrel with the prince would mean an end of his prestige, but he refused to yield, and on the day following the quarrel went walking with a friend, said to have been Sheridan.

The news of the rupture between the prince and the dictator of fashions had spread, and there were not a few who gathered in the hopes of a passage at arms between them.

It happened that Sheridan and Brummell met the prince and his party. With princely ostentation the royal personage called Sheridan aside and spoke to him, pointedly ignoring Brummell, who stood by. Brummell did not flinch in the crisis, he was the only person who seemed to be indifferent. Then Sheridan returned. With a gesture of indifference Brummell lifted his glasses to his eyes and, indicating with a slight wave of his hand the person to whom he referred, he asked in a clear but languid voice the famous question:

"Sherry, who's your fat friend?" Brummell spent the greater part of the remainder of his life in Calais, an outcast, a broken man. But with the memory of his great rebuke, it can hardly be said that in the crisis he was found wanting.

Came Handy in His Line.

"There is nothing like sleep," remarked a chance acquaintance to the newspaper man as he sized up the belated sleepers in a New York subway car in the wee hours of the morning. "All my life I have done whatever has been in my power to help the cause of sleep in the human race. Whenever I have heard that a doctor is counseling his patients to sleep longer, I have made a point of writing him a letter of congratulation. And I do not mind saying that I myself have done a bit to persuade people that sleep is the greatest blessing to mankind." "The perfect sleeper," observed the newspaper man, "is he who by rigid and constant practice has brought his power of sleep to such a stage that he does not awake even when a dynamite bomb is set off in his room." The chance acquaintance leaned back in his seat with rapt expression, as if contemplating a beautiful vision. "And what makes you take such an interest in the slumbers of the human race?" was asked. "I am a burglar," he replied. "But just because one of my fellow men did not reach the stage of somnolent perfection I had to abandon my trade for some years."

Important Russian Industry.

The production of wood pitch and tar is a highly important industry of the timber districts of Russia. A large quantity of such substances is not only used for home consumption in Russia, but is also exported to foreign markets. England alone takes over 100,000 barrels yearly of Russian pitch and tar. In normal times pitch is exported chiefly to England from Archangel, where it is one of the principal articles of trade, while turpentine has been shipped to Germany from the Baltic ports and overland. In recent years in western Russia, especially near the Vistula river, large quantities of pitch and turpentine have been distilled from the stumps left after the clearance of woods, this having been in great demand in Germany on account of its good quality and low price. Up to the present time the operating methods employed in this industry have been, for the most part, of a primitive character, and carried on in small establishments, where the owner is at the same time workman and salesman.

Girls Will Marry Crippled Soldiers.

A letter in the London Daily Mail conveys the information that hundreds of English girls have expressed their willingness to marry crippled British soldiers and to care for them as their contribution to their country's cause. The offers came as the result of a published suggestion that plucky girls might be of service so, and all that stands in the way of the success of this wholesale matchmaking is that no degree of pluck and patriotism seems sufficient to overcome maidenly shyness. The girls have agreed to marry, but they cannot walk up to the first one-legged soldier they see and tell him so. Meetings are to be arranged by certain women of the London West end, where these self-sacrificing girls will be introduced to the lifelong burdens they have agreed to take as husbands.

Of Course Not.

"That doctor claims to have discovered an entirely new disease."
"I hope he won't publish the symptoms of it."
"Why not?"
"People cannot have it if they do not know the symptoms, can they?"

ENDED THE ARGUMENT

REALLY THERE WAS VERY LITTLE MORE TO SAY.

Cupid Simply Had Repeated and Daughter Preferred to Do as Mother Did Instead of as She Was Being Advised.

"Listen to me, Abigail," said Mrs. Wise to her daughter. "Remember, please, that I'm older than you. Wisdom comes only with age."

"Yes, mamma."
"Why are you so cold to Mr. Willing—so distant?"
"Am I?"

"He says so. He has my indorsement as a suitor."
"Yes. He proposed."
"What answer did you make?"
"I declined. But he said he wouldn't take that as final."

"Of course not! He'll persist—with my consent, child. Why did you refuse to go motoring with him? He is dissatisfied over your manner, which I fear isn't nice. Has he done anything to offend?"
"He wanted to kiss me."
"And didn't? You refused? Child, when a man pays court to a woman—to a girl—and is serious about it—when his intentions are honorable—there's no harm in a kiss."

"But, mamma, isn't a kiss something that should be mutual?"
"What do you mean?"
"Should a girl let a man kiss her when she has no wish to kiss the man?"
"Certainly, when the man is a man of character and honorable purposes. You mustn't forget that such a match as you can make isn't the fortune of every girl. If your dear father were with us, he'd advise you as I'm advising you."

"Is a girl to marry a man much older than she is because he's honorable and has money?"
"Perhaps not solely, dear. But Mr. Willing isn't so old. Only forty-five."
"And I'm twenty. When I'm forty-five—which you say isn't so old—and he is still alive, if I should marry him, he will be seventy. Surely that's old enough!"

"Abigail! What nonsense! What has arithmetic to do with it?"
"But figures tell the truth, mamma. You were twenty when you married papa, weren't you? I think you told me so."
"Yes."
"And he was twenty-two?"
"Yes."

"And you were both poor in worldly goods, and grandma wanted you to marry a rich baker, who wanted you—"

"But, my child, you don't realize that times and manners are very different now—very different. Now everything is money—everybody wants money—and persons without money are absolutely submerged."
"But people fall in love still, don't they—young people?"
"They may think they're in love sometimes, child, but life these days dissipates romance. Look at the divorce courts."

"But I'm talking about a man I don't care a box of candy about. When you were of my age, you no doubt thought just as I'm thinking now. You've even told me you eloped with papa to escape marrying an old man. You were in love."
"You aren't in love. And the situation is different."
"Yes. The situation is different. But I am in love."

"In love! With whom?"
"With Charley Lyman."
"That boy? With no money, no position, no—"
"But haven't we money enough?"
"Fudge! What foolishness! And I let you go to the tennis court with that chap yesterday!"
"We didn't go to the tennis court."
"Where did you go, then?"
"We—we—got married."—Judge.

Bird Cages the Newport Fad.

The appearance at Newport of young women carrying small wicker bird cages is getting to be a daily occurrence. The desire to do something "different" has perhaps as much as anything else to do with the promotion of the latest fad, but whatever the basis may be, the public appearance of Miss Society and her favorite song bird is getting to be almost a part of the daily routine. So, if you happen to see a tastefully gowned young woman strolling along with a bird cage dangling from the fingers of her right hand—which is the proper way to carry the cage—don't go away with the idea that the family is moving and they won't trust the songster to the man on the van, or that she contemplates a long journey and has no one at home to feed the pet. No, it's only Newport's latest fad.
