

It Always Helps

says Mrs. Sylvania Woods, of Clifton Mills, Ky., in writing of her experience with Cardui, the woman's tonic. She says further: "Before I began to use Cardui, my back and head would hurt so bad, I thought the pain would kill me. I was hardly able to do any of my housework. After taking three bottles of Cardui, I began to feel like a new woman. I soon gained 35 pounds, and now, I do all my housework, as well as run a big water mill."

I wish every suffering woman would give

BRITAIN TO PASS DYE FOR STAMPS IN AMERICA

Bureau of Engraving and Printing Will Soon Have New Shipment from Germany.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Someone who is a close observer—the sort of fellow who knows when the postoffice clock hands need washing or his neighbor has a new necktie—says the red 2-cent postage stamps aren't as red as they used to be. The 8-cent stamps, which once were of an olive green, he says are now of a yellowish green tinge.

Director Joseph E. Ralph, of the bureau of engraving and printing, says the close observer is absolutely right about it. Our stamps have been off color and sickly looking for some eight months, and the shortage of German dyes is responsible for their faded appearance.

Substitute American or foreign dyes have not conveyed the bright colors of the German product. However, the director imparts a rather important bit of news when he says that arrangements have been made with England and Germany for the receipt by this Government of a shipment of the needed German dyes. The understanding is that the dyes are strictly for use of Uncle Sam, and it is on this condition that they are allowed to come through in these war times.

Mr. Ralph expects to get the dyes within the next two weeks, and then the stamps will reflect their old-time brightness.

"It is true," said Mr. Ralph, "that the lack of German dyes has resulted in a slight change in color of our stamps. This is especially noticeable in the red stamps, and the 2-centers will be found of lighter color than heretofore. There are also other stamps presenting a faded appearance. The 8-cent sticker is probably the best example. It used to be an olive green, and is now of a more yellowish tinge."

"We have been without German dyes for seven or eight months, and have been forced to use what may be called adulterated colors, imported or domestic. These colors cost more, but have less lustre. I recently paid $1 per pound for 'reds,' whereas I used to purchase the German color at 21 cents and the latter product seemed to be about four times the coloring strength of the dyes we are now using."

FIVE BIG STARS IN COLUMBIA.

To Be Seen in "The New Henrietta", Next Saturday.

Columbia, Jan. 31.—Five stars in one play sounds good. Let's turn it over and see what it means. Latterly, as a rule, plays have been too lean to support one star, and one star has hardly been enough to warm up exciting interest even in a good piece. To the Columbia Theatre, Columbia on Saturday afternoon and evening, Feb. 5th, comes five of the highest rating in the theatrical blue book and the play "The New Henrietta" is an old friend that has been weighed and not found wanting. It means a revival, and that in turn means the new ways of reaching the public for the theatre of late has fallen short. Some say it is because playgoers are disgusted with the under-world trappings of stage operettas, and others charge it to the lack of ideals and the genius of industry in writers, actors and managers.

Revolutions are a blessing to a cheering world, because they justify only the best of other days, and institute a comparison that falls like heavenly dew on the drying up egotism of a younger generation. Joseph Brooks has fathered more important revivals than any of the legitimate stage managers. It was he who organized the memorable all-star tour in the classical English comedy "The Rivals" with Jefferson, Florence, Crane, the Holland brothers, E. M. and Joseph, Nat Goodwin, Robert Taylor, Julia Marlowe and Mrs. John Drew. Last season he revived "Trilby" with an all-star cast and now comes our old friend "The Henrietta" under his guiding direction with Wm. H. Crane, Thomas W. Ross, Maelyn Arbuckle, Amelia Bingham and Edith Taliaferro to embody its delightful romance.

"The New Henrietta" has the advantage of an American story, a model of technical drawing and human interest, enacted by players singularly fitted for their respective roles and sensitively revised by Winchell Smith and Victor Mapes to suit the taste and vision of a passing generation. That Mr. Brooks has read his public aright is abundantly evident in the affectionate greeting his stars receive at every performance. In this instance a theatre ticket may be bought without any intruding thought of doubt about its value.

YOUTHFUL ROBBERS GET $15,000 IN CASH

Group of Five Enter Bank in Chicago and Hold Up Officers and Patrons.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Five youths, all believed to be under twenty years of age, today entered the Washington Park National Bank, forced the twenty officers, employees and patrons to face the wall with their hands in the air, scooped up $15,000 from the teller's cage and escaped in an automobile.

Although every available policeman and detective was placed on their trail immediately, no clue had been found tonight as to the identity of the bandits.

Four of the robbers entered the bank with masks over their faces, and each carrying two revolvers. The fifth remained outside in the automobile. Three of the bandits forced the officers and ten patrons to hold up their hands while one rifled the cashier's cage. None of the patrons was searched.

A. W. McCauley, assistant cashier, jumped into his automobile, which was standing outside of the bank, and attempted to follow the robbers, but they quickly outdistanced him.

J. Garland (Jake) Stahl, former manager of the Boston American League team, is vice president of the bank. The robbers kept a revolver pointed at his head.

The bank is in one of the busiest parts of the city outside of the downtown section.

Police Lieut. John Hogan caught sight of the fleeing automobile later and pursued it in his own machine. As he was approaching his quarry an automobile truck collided with his car, wrecking it and injuring Hogan.

OPEN FIGHT ON TAX COMMISSION

Senator Stuckey, Speaking for His Bill, Says Law Is Unconstitutional, Tends to Centralize Power.

Columbia, Jan. 28.—Open fight was begun on the state tax commission this morning when the bill by Senator Stuckey and Manning came up for consideration. Senator Stuckey was the only one to discuss the measure, basing his arguments on what he termed the unconstitutionality of the measure and its tendency to centralize too much power in the commission. The speaker disclaimed any intention to embarrass Governor Manning in the tax commission fight. "I know him well," he continued, "and I believe he'll be re-elected in spite of his friends. Mr. Stuckey is connected with a bank at Bishopville. Debate was continued until Tuesday morning.

The Lancy bill, to prevent fire insurance companies to enter into compact as to rates, also was debated briefly just prior to adjournment until Monday night of next week was taken.

Senator Carlisle, of Spartanburg, introduced again today his compulsory education bill, debated much one year ago. It provides that all children between the ages of 8 and 14 years shall attend school four months each session. Senator Verner, of Oconee, introduced a sister bill to that which would abolish the free tuition and scholarship features of state institutions. The new bill appropriates a $50,000 fund to be loaned to indigent students who have passed entrance examinations "to any college chartered by the state." The money is to be divided equally between boys and girls. Senator Nickles, of Abbeville, introduced a bill which would bar all members of the general assembly from becoming candidates for offices filled by the general assembly.
