

'Well, I Should Say 'Get-It' DOES Work'

'Look a' There, If You Don't Think It's Just Wonderful for Corns!'
"Bless my stars, look at it! Land of the livin'! Why, just look at it! That corn came right off,—just like peeling bananas. Put your finger on my toe, right there,—don't be afraid,—that's it,—feel how smooth the skin is? Well, that's where the corn was."

"Did You Ever See the Like? No Wonder 'Get-It' is the Biggest Selling Corn Cure in the World!"

Well, that beats all! That's the way "Get-It" works on all corns, every corn, every time. It's the new, simple way of curing corns. You'll say goodbye to all foolish contraptions like bandaging, bandages, sticky tape, plaster, toe-eating salves, and grave-diggers such as knives, razors and scissors. "Get-It" stops pain. Applied in 2 seconds. Never fails. Nothing to stick to, hurt or press on the corn. "Get-It" is sold everywhere, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago, Ill.

Maternity! The Word of Words

It is written into life's expectations that motherhood is the one sublime accomplishment. And if there is anything, no matter how simple, how apparently trivial it may seem, if it can aid, help, assist or in any way comfort the expectant mother, it is a blessing. And such is a remedy called "Mother's Friend." You apply it over the stomach muscles. It is gently rubbed on the surface, and makes the muscles pliant; this relieves the strain on ligaments, natural expansion takes place without undue effect upon the nerves. And as the time approaches, the mind has gone through a period of repose, of gentle expectancy, and this has an unquestioned influence upon the future child. That this is true is evidenced by the fact that three generations of mothers have used and recommended "Mother's Friend." Ask your nearest druggist for a bottle of this splendid remedy. He will get it for you. And then write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 407 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for a most interesting book of information to prospective mothers. It is mailed free. Write today. It is a book you will enjoy.

FIRST-CASE OF ITS KIND.
Young Man Charged With Being Accessory to Suicide.

Spartanburg, May 4.—Robert McEvoy, a young man of Greer, was arraigned in Court of General Sessions here yesterday charged with being accessory to the suicidal death of Annie Mae Glenn, a 16-year-old school girl, of Greer, on October 8, 1915.

Much interest has been manifested in the case, owing to the unusual circumstances which surround it. In the indictment it is charged that McEvoy had for some time been attentive to the young woman and was to have been married to her on the day she committed suicide, but instead of keeping his engagement had left the town, thus causing a state of mental anguish which resulted in the girl's taking poison.

Mrs. Robert Glenn, mother of the dead girl, was the first witness for the State, and testified that McEvoy had promised to marry her daughter on the day he left Greer, and that shortly after learning of this the young woman sent her eight-year-old sister to a nearby drug store where the poison was purchased. "Annie Mae," dramatically exclaimed Mrs. Glenn, "died with Robert McEvoy's picture in her hand."

After the introduction of several other witnesses for the State, counsel for the defence made a motion that the indictment be dismissed on the ground that the State had failed to make out a clear case of murder. Argument of counsel had not been completed when court adjourned for the day.

It is said by attorneys here that this is the first case of the kind ever tried in the courts of South Carolina.

PRES. AND MRS. WILSON VISIT CHARLOTTE

One Hundred Thousand Visitors Present to Greet the Chief Magistrate at Mecklenburg Celebration.

Charlotte, N. C., May 20.—President Wilson, speaking on world peace before a crowd of one hundred thousand people here today, declared that "it is an interesting circumstance that the processes of the war stand still," and that "these hot things that are in contact with each other do not make much progress against each other." He added that "when you cannot overcome, you must take counsel."

The president plainly spoke guardedly when mentioning peace in Europe, but most of his hearers saw a plain suggestion in his words. He intimated plainly that not much progress was being made and that the objects being sought by the European nations could be achieved better through peaceful means.

The president's words on peace were given significance by his hearers in view of the recent discussion of the possibility of ending the European war. He said that "here in America we have tried to set the example of bringing all the world together upon terms of liberty and co-operation and peace, and in that great experience that we have been going through America has been a sort of prophetic sample of mankind."

"I would like," declared the president, "to think that the spirit of this occasion could be expressed if we imagined ourselves lifting some sacred emblem of counsel and of peace, of accommodation and righteous judgment, before the nations of the world and reminded them of that passage in scripture: 'After the wind, after the earthquake, after the fire, the still small voice of humanity.'"

The president sketched briefly his idea of what will follow the European war which it is understood he will elaborate more at length in an address he will deliver next week in Washington before the League to Enforce Peace, of which former President Taft is President. He said that "what you see taking place on the other side of the water is the tremendous—I had about said final process by which a contest of elements may in God's process be turned into a co-ordination and cooperation of elements."

Crowd Enthusiastic.

The president's address was enthusiastically applauded by a crowd gathered from several States to celebrate the one hundred and forty-first Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence. Before speaking he reviewed a long military and industrial "preparedness" parade, and afterwards he was the guest of honor at a large lunch and went by automobile to Davidson College, twenty miles away, where he once was a student. He left tonight for Washington, where he will arrive early tomorrow. He was accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, Secretary Daniels, Secretary Tamm and others. The reception committee included Govs. Craig of North Carolina and Manning of South Carolina and Mayor Kirkpatrick of Charlotte.

The president spoke of the need of "untainted Americanism," and declared that the European war is a competition of national standards, of national traditions, and of national policies—political systems. "Europe has grappled in war," he said, "as we have grappled in peace to see what is going to be done with these things when they come into hot contact with one another."

In Glad Dress.

Charlotte was ablaze with American flags and packed with people for the first occasion on which a Democratic president has spoken here. Military bands were scattered through the town and played martial music constantly. The people cheered from every housetop and window along the route taken by him in his rides about the city. He was introduced at the open air meeting by Gov. Craig of North Carolina.

At Davidson College the president went to the room occupied by him when he was a student and to the debating hall where he spoke years ago. A student was preparing to take a nap in the president's former room but other students draped the room with flags in honor of Mr. Wilson. The president told Mrs. Wilson of pranks of his college days.

Students gathered and cheered the president again and again and made efforts to get him to speak. He said he had not been able to make speeches when in college and would not try now at such a place. In company with members of the faculty the president and Mrs. Wilson walked all over the college campus. They then returned to the special car for the trip to Washington. A crowd of several thousand people cheered him as the train pulled out.
