PEOPLE OF DIVERSE MOODS

Russians Greatly Influenced by the Changing Seasons, According to Observation of Traveler.

Russian landscape painting, I take it, is a study in the psychology of the Russian people. For the fundamental mood of the Russian landscape the former deputy, Mr. Hicks Owings, is the fundamental mood of the Ruswho was recently drawn for active sian man, a vast dreariness, an endless brooding, and this means especially the gold and violet melancholy of autumn, the deep, white sadness of the heavy snows. Yet the spring Columbia .- "Did you eat a potato madness, too, is in the Russian soul, the wildness of yearning which the still half-pagan Slav so violently experiences when the snows of winter are milting and the fields are floodsap-filled branches of the birches, and one hears everywhere the rippling laughter of the zelennyi shum. And when, under an Italian sky, the ripe, yellow corn and the buckwheat wave in the breeze, and the big stacks of hay exhale sweet odors, and the steppe stretches out like an untato will work for Germany, it will dulating, golden ocean, the golden splendor of the Russian summer is considering that food will win the war, also in the mooding of the Russian soul .- Century Magazine.
