PEACE TREATY COPY PRINTED BY SENATE

Investigation Ordered On Its Exposure.

BROUGHT HERE BY REPORTER

Foreign Relations Committee Voted to Call Prominent New York Financiers to Discover How They Came Into Possession of Peace Treaty. Air Cleared for Debate on Publicity of Treaty.

Washington, June 9.—Out of a whirlwind of developments, the senate today got a copy of the peace treaty and after a five-hour fight ordered it printed in the public record.

At the same time it got under way the investigation of how copies have reached private hands in New York by summoning to testify a half-dozen of the country's leading financiers.

The copy which went into the record was brought to this country by a newspaper man and was presented by Senator Borah, republican of Idaho, just after the reading of a cablegram from President Wilson saying he could not without breaking faith send to the senate the text of the treaty.

The effect of the day's history-making developments was to clear the air on the much-debated subject of publicity for the treaty text, to widen the breach between the president and the senate majority and to forecast a sensational turn for the inquiry into the manner by which copies of the document have become available to unauthorized persons.

Starting its investigation with an unexpected vigor, the foreign relations committee within a half hour after it convened, voted to call before it J. P. Morgan, H. P. Davison and Thomas W. Lamont, all of the Morgan banking house; Jacob Schiff, of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and Paul Warburg, formerly connected with the same concern and Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank. It then examined Frank L. Polk, acting secretary of state, about the official copies in the state department vaults.

Statements also were made to the committee by Senator Lodge, republican of Massachusetts, and Senator Borah, similar to their declarations in the senate that they knew of copies in New York, but could not divulge the names of their informants.

When the senate met it listened in silence to President Wilson's cablegram, which was taken as forecasting a refusal to comply with the request for the treaty embodied in a resolution adopted Friday. The reading of this message concluded Senator Borah immediately presented his copy of the treaty which was ordered printed by a vote of 47 to 24.

Later, however, there was a motion to reconsider, and a parliamentary tangle developed which endangered publication of the treaty. To circumvent such a possibility the Idaho senator in the late afternoon began reading the hundred thousand word document and continued for an hour despite many protests from the president's supporters.

Then the effort to prevent publication collapsed, the motion to reconsider was voted down and the fight which had developed many bitter charges of broken faith and in some respects had written a new chapter in senate history, was over.

The first of the day's series of speeches came when the foreign relations committee, whose meetings in years past have been surrounded by the closest secrecy, threw open its doors to the public, it developed then that instead of pursuing the usual method of appointing a sub-committee to make the inquiry, the full body proposed to participate and to begin forthwith.

Senator Borah was called on first to amplify his statement in the senate about treaty copies in New York. He said that early in March he became convinced the international bankers of New York were particularly interested in the creation of the league of nations and that he quietly began an investigation.

"I ascertained," he told the committee, "that practically all the international bankers were deeply interested in the league, and were assisting in

CLINTON OBSERVES JUBILEE DAY

Large Crowd in Attendance Upon Annual Occasion when People from Surrounding Country Gathered for Entertainment and Instruction.

The annual Jubilee Day, observed in Clinton Saturday, drew a large crowd to the city and added to its reputation for hospitality, aesthetic tastes, and capacity for well organized and well directed public enterprise. The features of the day were the parade of beautiful floats, the address by Dr. D. W. Daniel and the reception accorded the soldiers and sailors of the World War and Civil War.

The program of the day began at 10:30 o'clock when the parade of floats took place down Broad street to the college grounds. The parade was led by a band loaned for the occasion by officials at Camp Jackson. Following the band came the floats, the first of which was that representing the Commercial Club, later awarded the prize for the most beautiful pleasure float in the parade. Following this float were about fifty others representing the business interests of the city, individual citizens and farmers of the surrounding country. The parade was one of the most beautiful ever seen in this section, all of the floats being designed with an originality and artistic arrangement which would justify a comparison with those of any community.

The three prize winners in the parade were the Commercial Club among the pleasure floats, Kellers Pharmacy among business floats and Smith Duroc Farm among agricultural floats. Honorable mention were given Mrs. B. H. Boyd's pleasure float, the Lydia Mill in business floats and Downs Glenn for agricultural floats.

After the parade the crowd repaired to the grove surrounding the Presbyterian college. Here the ceremonies were presided over by Dr. D. M. Douglas, who extended a cordial welcome to all those in attendance. After a few introductory remarks he introduced Dr. Daniel, of Clemson college, who made an inspiring address interspersed with witty remarks which held the closest attention of his hearers. Noting the large number of soldiers in uniform present, Dr. Daniel pointed to them as exemplars of the ideals of the nation today and plead for purity in life and legislation which would make worth while the sacrifices that the American soldiers made in France for the cause of righteousness and freedom. The speaker also paid an eloquent tribute to the surviving soldiers of the Confederacy and upheld the ideals for which they fought and which they handed down to the generation which followed them. He also pointed to the benefits of community enterprise and organization which would make possible those things in life which tended to uplift the citizenship of the country and create a leadership which would make for a permanent and peaceful nation.

Following the address of Dr. Daniel the awards for the floats were announced and an invitation was extended to all soldiers and sailors, both of the Civil and World War, as well as the band from Camp Jackson, to a dinner given in Copeland Hall by the citizens of the town.

BAN IS PLACED ON AUTO CUT-OUTS

Chief of Police Gives Warning that Unnecessary Noises Must be Stopped. Petition from Citizens.

No more open cut-outs and whistles will be allowed on automobiles within the city limits after next Monday morning, was the ultimatum delivered by Chief of Police Blakely day before yesterday. Violators of the ordinance prohibiting such noises will be hailed before the mayor for punishment. The ultimatum of the Chief followed the delivery to him of a petition signed by forty-five citizens requesting that the ordinance be enforced. It has been generally observed during the past few weeks that useless automobile noises have been on the increase and some citizens have voiced a strong protest against it. "Long Suffering Citizen" expressed his sentiments about the matter very strongly in another section of this paper and others have threatened to write something for the papers. It remained, however, for Mr. R. V. Irby to get into action. He circulated the petition Monday morning and secured the forty-five names in about as many minutes and turned it over to the Chief.

The following is the petition and the list of signers:

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE PASSES SENATE

Two More Than Necessary Majority.

SOUTH CAROLINA SENATORS NAY

Amendment as Proposed Now Goes to the State Legislatures for Ratification. Result as to Final Ratification is in Doubt. Senate Actively Stood 66 to 30.

Washington, June 4.—Action by congress on equal suffrage—subject of a fight or forty years' duration—ended late today in adoption by the senate by a vote of 56 to 25 of the historic Susan B. Anthony constitutional amendment resolution.

The proposed amendment, adopted by the house by a vote of 394 to 89 May 21 as the first act of the new congress, now goes to the States, ratification by legislatures of three-fourths of which is required for its incorporation in the federal constitution.

The roll call today showed two votes more than the necessary two-thirds for the resolution, which was drafted by Susan B. Anthony in 1875 and introduced by Senator Sargent of California in 1878. Counting paired and absent members, the senate actually stood 66 to 30 for the measure.

Loud applause, unchecked by the presiding officer, swept the senate chamber when the final vote was announced following two days debate and many jubilation meetings were in progress tonight at headquarters of various women's organizations, which have been active in the support of the measure.

Immediately after the senate's action, the resolution was taken to Speaker Gillett's office and signed. It was rushed back to the senate for its presiding officer's signature, but arrived after the senate had adjourned and will be approved tomorrow. President Wilson's signature, it was stated, is not necessary, although the resolution will be sent to the White House as usual and may be signed by the executive. It will be certified to the States by the state department.

Upon the senate's roll call today, the vote was as follows:
