National Restrictions Ordered.

Washington, Dec. 1.—Wartime restrictions on the nation's use of coal more stringent even than those applied during the war, were ordered into effect today to stave off fuel famine.

Moved by reports of diminishing coal stocks and growing danger of distress in numerous sections, the government sought to compromise with striking mine workers whose walkout forced the emergency, but asked for national determination to endure privation and discomfort until coal mining was resumed on its terms.

Fuel Administrator Garfield, acting in conjunction with the Railroad Administration, gave notice that hereafter only the essential consumers included in the first five classes of the war priorities list would be supplied with coal and asked the help of all state and municipal authorities to make rationing effective.

The order, which made national those restrictions already put into local effect by regional coal committees where the pinch of fuel shortage has been felt, cuts off supplies from all but transportation agencies, which include international and coastwise shipping as well as railroads; federal and local government institutions and establishments, including concerns working on government contracts; public utilities, including newspapers, and retail dealers. Railroad Administration officials conceded that it meant wide-spread cessation of industrial operations, only justified by the gravity of the situation.

Electric Power Included.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 1.—The regulations effective today shortening hours of stores and industries in order to prevent a coal famine "apply alike to industries, stores and business houses actually burning coal, oil or other fuel in their plants and those using electric power, whether hydro-electric or steam," the regional coal committee of the southern region announced here late today.

The committee stated that hydro-electric power already is being diverted to distant communities dependent ordinarily on steam produced electricity.

The committee relaxed its regulations, however, to permit grocery and meat stores and mill depots to remain open until 6 p. m. daily except Saturday when their closing hour is 5 p. m. It refused requests of other merchants coming under the classes closing at 1 p. m., that they be permitted to remain open after that hour provided they used only candles or kerosene for light and no heat.

Privileged Characters.
The old saying "a bull in a china shop" is not an idle one when the bull referred to is one of the tribe of sacred cattle of India. In the streets of Calcutta members of the sacred herd roam at will. In the eyes of the orthodox Hindu it is sacrilegious to interfere with the cattle's liberty, even when it takes them into the city shops and crowded bazaars.
