

HOT WEATHER RULES FOR HORSES

1. Load lightly, and drive slowly.
2. Stop in the shade if possible.
3. A sponge on top of the head, or even a cloth, is good if kept wet. If dry it is worse than nothing.
4. Water your horse as often as possible. So long as a horse is working, water in small quantities will not hurt him. But let him drink only a few swallows if he is going to stand still.
5. When he comes in after work, sponge off the harness marks and sweat, his eyes, his nose and mouth, and the dock. Wash his feet but not his legs.
6. If the thermometer is 75 degrees or higher, wipe him all over with a damp sponge, using vinegar water if possible. Do not wash the horse at night.
7. Saturday night, give a bran mash lukewarm; and add a tablespoonful of saltpetre.
8. Watch your horse. If he stops sweating suddenly, or if he breathes short and quick, or if his ears droop, or if he stands with his legs braided sideways, he is in danger of a heat or sun stroke and needs attention at once.
9. If the horse is overcome by heat, get him into the shade, remove harness and bridle, wash out his mouth, sponge him all over, shower his legs, and give him two ounces of aromatic spirits of ammonia, or two ounces of sweet spirits of nitre, in a pint of water; or give him a pint of coffee, warm. Cool his head at once, using cold water, or if necessary, chopped ice, wrapped in a cloth.
10. If the horse is off his feed, try him with two quarts of oats mixed with bran and a little water; and add a little salt or sugar. Or give him oatmeal gruel or barley water to drink.
11. Clean your horse at night, so that he can rest well, and clean him thoroughly. The salt dandruff drying on his skin makes him uncomfortable, and often produces sores under the harness.
12. Do not fail to water him at night after he has eaten his hay. If you don't he will be thirsty all night.
13. If it is so hot that the horse sweats in the stable at night, tie him outside, with bedding under him. Unless he cools off during the night, he cannot well stand the next day's heat.

These rules are prepared by the Boston Work-Horse Relief Association, whose office is at 14 Beacon Street, Boston, Mass.

MARY OF ROUMANIA KNOWS BUSINESS

Works Hard at Being Queen. Says It Is Something of a Trade.

Bucharest, May 22.—"How to be a successful queen?" said Queen Mary of Rumania repeating the question of the correspondent.
"Why, it is something of a trade to be a queen, and the chief implements of the trade are courage and courtesy. Smile when your head is aching, smile when you are ready to drop from fatigue and worry, smile when all is going wrong, smile at good news and at bad news. Always keep yourself interested in others. No matter how great may be the strain on your patience when talking or listening to a bore, make him or her think that you think the conversation is vital, never think of your personal troubles but those of your country. I don't even own up when I know that I don't know a thing; but I always go out and find out all about this unknown subject."

Ask anybody, peasant or politician, who rules Rumania, and they will look at you with eyes wide open in surprise and say: "Why, the queen of course."

Queen Mary is the scene shifter, the silken hand, the power behind the throne of King Ferdinand every minute. Since she came out from England, nearly 25 years ago, she has been learning this trade of being queen and how she has been at it for more than five years, in place of Carmen Sylva, and she has made it her business to know her country and her people.

She aspires to be queen in every sense, and she is quite as willing to take the duties of the job as well as its pleasures. As for its pleasures she gets all the fun she can out of it, dresses as well as she can, to enhance her beauty which is famous. "If a queen goes around shabby and red-nosed, it makes a great deal of difference, I think," she said. "It is not expected of us and so why should I do it? I felt rather mortified when in Paris just after the armistice and I had to attend receptions frequented by all the beauties of the world, and was not able to wear some of my splendid jewels which had been sent to Moscow. Just to think that I had four or five crowns, some of them inherited from my Russian mother, and not a one to wear in Paris."

That the queen is quite as willing to shoulder the duties of queenhood is testified to by thousands of men and women who met her during the German occupation of Rumania. As a Red Cross nurse she was visiting the hospital of the incurables at Jassy. When she and the surgeon reached the door of the hopeless; "there's no need of going in there, it is too dangerous," said the surgeon. "They are dying—it is my duty," answered the queen. Just after she entered the queen heard a dying soldier calling for his wife. Without a word the queen walked over to the bed of the typhus victim, saying, "Here I am," and knelt and embraced the man, who died in her arms, happy.

The queen is a practical queen. In the same city of Jassy, this fact was discovered and when the mayor wanted to get the snow cleared off the streets, he timidly applied to the queen for help. "Why, bless you, of course I will help," said the queen, and she led the gang of snow shovelers. After this whenever medicines and instruments were needed in the hospitals, or extra nurses, the queen was called upon.

Once there was a bread famine. The queen got her own private motor cars scouring the country for flour and then she organized the bakeries of the city. She did the same when there was a wood and coal famine. "As a child I was taught to like for others," said the queen in one part of the conversation with the Associated Press correspondent. "So whatever I do I do naturally, without effort. As a little girl I was told that this was part of the trade."

"Should the queen get a touch of internationalism and go on strike some day, that would be a hard day for Rumania," said laughingly Take Jone-sen, one of her admirers, a man regarded as the keenest minded lawyer, financier and politician in the country.

FATAL FEUD FIGHT OCCURS IN GEORGIA

One Man Killed and Two Others May Die as Result of Pistol Battle at Caldwell, Ga.

Dublin, Ga., June 27.—One man is dead and two others may die, while two others are wounded as a result of a pistol battle between two factions at Caldwell, twenty miles from here, in Laurens county late Saturday night.

The dead: H. L. Jenkins, wealthy merchant and former mayor.

The wounded: Hiram Mullis, postmaster, mayor and merchant, not expected to recover.

C. C. Cadwell, farmer, dangerously wounded.

John Quilling, arm broken by bullet.

John Bedingfield, scalp wound made by a pistol ball.

According to Sheriff Watson, who investigated the affair, the shooting grew out of an old feud between two factions in Caldwell, which dates back originally to a bitter fight over the location of the railroad station. In this fight Bedingfield and Mullis represented one side, while Jenkins, Cadwell and Quilling were their opponents.

The old trouble was brought up in an argument begun last night over town taxes during which, Sheriff Watson said, the Bedingfield, Mullis and Burch faction charged that Jenkins, Cadwell and their friends were responsible for the burning last year of a negro church in which the body of a negro was later found.

County policemen also raided Cadwell's place and seized a quantity of whiskey, it is claimed, and Cadwell is said to have openly threatened to kill Mullis, accusing him as the instigator.

To avoid a clash Mullis closed his store early on Saturday night, he says, and went to his home. At ten o'clock he returned to his store to give a customer some gasoline, and while drawing the gasoline Cadwell appeared on the scene and is alleged to have struck Mullis over the head with a pistol. Mullis is said to have stepped back, warning Cadwell to stop, and when the latter advanced, witnesses say, Mullis opened fire with a pistol and hit Cadwell in the stomach.

Jenkins and Quilling in the meantime joined in with Cadwell. Bedingfield, who had taken Mullis to the store in his automobile, received a pistol bullet through his hat, that cut a furrow through his scalp. Stunned, he returned the fire, shooting Jenkins twice, the second shot severing the spinal cord and causing death.

No arrests have been made in the case.

No Worms in a Healthy Child

All children troubled with worms have an unhealthy color, which indicates poor blood, and as a rule, there is more or less stomach disturbance. GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC given regularly for two or three weeks will enrich the blood, improve the digestion, and act as a General Strengthening Tonic to the whole system. Nature will then throw off or dispel the worms, and the Child will be in perfect health. Pleasant to take. 60c per bottle.
