PERIWINKLE BLUE
 DOMINANT COLOR

Perfect Easter Day for Fashion Display. Parade Lasts Long.

New York, April 16.—Manhattan's famous Easter parade was set in step today to a sartorial symphony—the periwinkle blues.

The new shade was the dominant note in the color medley that filled brilliant Fifth avenue from Central park to the shadow of the Washington arch. As to color the Easter parade was a veritable crescendo with the pleasingly soft periwinkle blue everywhere in dominance. There was no group complete without it; its choice was confined to no one age or class or even complexion. Occasional creations of one or the other of the more sombre hues were invariably lightened—on the hat, the bodice or the skirt—with a touch of the shade that seemingly claims milady's sole allegiance of the moment.

The parade was in progress most of the day, but it did not really start, of course, until the churches of the avenue dismissed their morning congregations. A kindly providence did its best in providing a day of blue and silver, shot through with gold—a perfect Easter day.

Many were the paraders—the flappers as well as their older sisters—who knew full well the value of the sedate cathedral and church entrances as backgrounds to their brilliancy, and the austere doorways, framed the naive peacockings of thousands as a prelude to the march up and down the avenue. They left the churches slowly, lingering in their frames for just the proper time to register an effect, before they joined the gay cavalcade.

There were many striking costumes, and quite an array of colors under the overlordship of periwinkle blue. Long fringed capes of black, many of them lined with lipstick red, or surmounted by pats of rouge straw of the new red or orange, or dull gold or emerald green with here and there is vagrant wisp of jade, seemed second in popularity to tailored suits of the new shade. It seemed that fully a third of the paraders were caped, many of the periwinkle blue suits having capes of the same material attached.

Beads were very much in evidence. All members of gowns were relieved with beads, many of them in rather fantastic array. The tailored suits, for most part, were almost severely plain with long lines suggesting dignity but avoiding any hint of austerity. Beaded gowns of satin and crepe, in pearl gray, champagne, brown, taupe or fawn were striking features.

No one authority had dictated the length of the skirts. They were of all degrees of length or brevity. Any deficiency in skirt length was made up by flashes of silken hose, in which champagne, pearl gray, flesh, black and periwinkle blue predominated.

Three of the family of furs held favorite places about the feminine neck. Platinum fox, stone marten or squirrel. Strings of pearls ruled as gem ornaments with dangling ear rings very much to the fore.

Hats, for the most part, were brilliant in color and those who claim to know declared them to be rather mediocre in design. But what they lost in original shapes, they made up in daring colors.

Oh, the men! Yes, they were there in equal number. But the silk topers, the severe cutaways, the pearl gray spatted black shoes, the striped gray trousers were their main contribution to the parade. It was distinctly a feminine affair.

SEAPLANE MAKES 1,210-MILE TRIP

Plane Makes Flight From Palm Beach to New York in 9 Hours 56 Minutes.

New York, April 17.—Flying at an average speed of 130 miles an hour through three storms, a seaplane carrying a total load of 1,600 pounds, today made the flight from Palm Beach, Florida, to New York, a distance of 1,210 miles, in nine hours and 56 minutes.

One stop was made at Southport, N. C., at 11:11 o'clock, after taking off at Palm Beach this morning at 5:43. The fliers took off at Southport at 12:31, landing at the Columbia Yacht Club in the North river front at 5:04 o'clock. Clifford L. Webster, former United States marine corps aviator, piloted the seaplane and claimed to have established a time record. Fred R. Golder, mechanic, accompanied him.

Webster's machine is the altitude record holder for seaplanes, having taken four passengers a height of 19,500 feet at Port Washington on August 16, 1921.

Webster said that on several occasions he was compelled to fly as low as 20 feet above the surface to escape dense fogs. Clouds and fog, he said, compelled him to guide his course Pimlico Sound, N. C., and Chesapeake and Delaware Bays by compass. The average height at which he flew, the pilot said, was 1,800.

Lieurance's Little Symphony Orchestra at Chautauqua

Lieurance's Little Symphony Orchestra of four violins, two cellos and piano, which appears here at the coming Red-path Chautauqua, was organized by Thurlow Lieurance, well-known composer of "By the Waters of Minnetonka." On tour this organization is under the personal direction of Harold Lewis, well-known pianist. Popular and classical orchestral favorites will be rendered. A number of the Lieurance compositions for strings will be featured. The program will afford a wealth of musical enjoyment.

Make a once-and-for-all-time job of it with genuine

"TIDE WATER" CYPRESS
 "THE WOOD ETHERNAL"

It's a waste of time, labor and money in making repairs—(or doing new work)—with lumber that will rot out quickly.

"He Who Uses Cypress Builds But Once."

Cypress lasts and lasts and lasts and practically refuses to wear out or rot out. Cypress means "double money's-worth," and often more if you BUY THE GRADE THAT FITS THE JOB.

For many uses the lower grades are exactly the thing. This fact gives wise buyers a still further advantage over those who simply order "some lumber." You see the point.
