[CONTINUED FROM FIRST PAGE.] wee, rain drops began falling through golden sualight and soon a beautiful rainbow was arched across the valley. We admired it while the dark clouds were rolling by, then resumed our journey; but it was not till after the gloaming had fallen silently over this valley, and star like silver lilies all abloom, were shinting in an azure field," that we reopened our home gates with a joyful "Alabama!"

Our croquet eard and fishing parties are enjoyable. We can fish any time as every body lives on the river. If you know how very meandering the French Broad is, Mr. Editor, you will understand. These young folks find great delight in boat riding, for they take to water as ducks do. There is rather more fear than delight in it for me, (I am ashamed to tell you, dear Mr. Editor that it re quires four strong lordly arms to control your little Newberry friend and her fears, while floating on the placid bosom of the French Broad), The boat ride by moonlight they consider wonderfully romantic. But for me there is more romance in strolling over Shuteye town, when the moon shines, with that most fascinating of escorts, old Morpheus.

But we promised to close did we not, Mr. Editor? Well I will renew my promise and write on; but perhaps you do not like such communicative loquacious folks. However, I'll

Let me in conclusion, tell you of our "literary socials." We have them every Friday evening, and certainly we make pleasant evenings of them--not pleasant only but profitable as well. These young folks are highly intelligent, being the most literary of all the associates I ever liberally, of their intellectuality to your little Newberry friend and send her home "by and by, ' an intelligent literary girl, -- even a blue stocking, like some of these darling lassies? At our socials, we have reading teeitations, music, delicious eream and cake, promenade, tete-a-tetes, etc. You would enjoy "The Polish Boy." "He won't propose," "Dreams," "Is it anybody's business?" "Her way to say, No?" and other well delivered recitations. Perhaps your generosity would not mind my closing with a brief one. It is considered fine to have been composed by an ordinary youth.

Yours truly. A-look of thine has waked my mase, N-or will I curb its rhythmic glee: N-or could I do so, if I chose, I-n singing of a theme like thee E-ach thought of thee doth send a thrill.

The Indians Disappearing.

The Rev. Dr. Barrows has recently published his views on the Indian question as derived from a thorough investigation made in the West in the summer of '85. This investigation goes to prove that the Indians, instead of increasing in numbers, as lately reported by the Indian Commissioners, are "wasting and disap pearing. In 1820, it was estimated by a government official that there were 425,766 Indians within the boundaries of the United States, and to this amount must be added the number of Indians in the territory since annexed. According to the census taken just then, the sum total of all the Indians within the present boundaries of the United States at that time was 526,592. Our last census puts them at 255,938, Alaska not included. The decrease, then, seem to be 260,554. These figures, especially the original estimate. are extremely uncertain. Doctor Barrows proves that among the civilized and semi-civilized Indians, the falling off is 2,000 per annum for the last eighteen years. Allow these figures to be true, the increase, if indeed there be such, of the savage Indians, who number only 50,000, could not balance the loss among the other 200,000. He therefore concludes the Indians are wasting away. This result may have been inevitable; but one cannot but think that yith our present civilization, the

The reduction I have made on these Saits hat a red quite a stir about the Emporium. This stock must go in order to make room for a New Fall Stock, as the brivers of this establishment have been in the market for the past two week making their selection, which will be placed on the counters in due time. In order to give room for this new Stock we have made this sweeping reduction on the balance of the Summer Stock in every Department.

Those who desire to secure one of these bargains should call at once; and also remember that you receive a Waterbury Watch and Chain even at the reduced prices; but it must be a cash purchase of $10 or over to it amount.
