NEWBERRY, S. C.

THURSDAY, APRIL 5, 1888.

The municipal election in Columbia resulted in the choice of the regular nominees of the Democratic party.

Col. C. H. Suber informs The Herald and News that he is not a candidate for delegate from South Carolina to the National Democratic Convention in St. Louis in June.

There has been considerable discussion and expression of opinion amongst the press of the State on the question of holding one of the State Conventions at some other place than Columbia.

Harper's Weekly in speaking of Republican leaders and presidential possibilities says of Mr. Blaine in this connection: "To-day the nomination is anybody's, and that is precisely the situation of it in which, unless some other candidate gains an early and decisive lead, Mr. Blaine's name is likely to be thrown into the convention, securing the nomination by a hurrah, and leaving him to decide, what he has not yet said, whether he will accept it."

An international congress of women was held in Washington last week. They advocated woman suffrage, and a number of other foolish things of which the women of our section care very little for.

Woman's sphere is not in the forum or at the ballot box, and we are glad that a large majority of Southern women care but little for these things and prefer to "rule the world" by "rocking the cradle." Woman's place is home.

We present in this issue the annual financial report of the town of Newberry. This is a matter in which all the citizens alike have an interest.

Another Perpetual Motion Man. He says He Has It Now $20,000—One Year—It Costs Him $300.

Canada, March 29.—David Jennings, of Lyons, Wayne County, who has passed twenty-one years and spent $90,000 trying to discover perpetual motion, claims he has got it at last.

SENATOR SLIGH SPEAKS AGAIN.

He Advocates an Agricultural College Pure and Simple, Separate and Distinct from any other Institution for the Benefit of the Farmers of the State.

To the Editor of The Herald and News: The history of the agitation of an agricultural college in the State is well known to all who have read the papers.

Setting aside, for the present, the great advantages to accrue from a superior agricultural education to all agriculturists and the country at large, which point has been well and ably argued by others, I will first attempt to show that the school of agriculture connected with the South Carolina College will not—cannot from the very nature of things, accomplish for the farmers of the State what an agricultural college, pure and simple, managed and controlled by the farmers themselves would accomplish.

It is a recognized fact, and one well established by experience and observation among all thinking people, both in Church and State, that institutions of learning for the training of the young are absolutely necessary to give tone, respectability and influence to the cause or causes that bring them into existence.

Such an institution is recognized by the law-making power of the State. Its board of trustees are elected by the Legislature from among the leading men of the State, and its faculty all feel that they are the servants of the State and are amenable to it, and consequently the political views, opinions and feelings of those who control such an institution are stamped deep down into the hearts and lives of its students, and hold to them ever afterwards.

For a long period of years South Carolina has been governed by a political element within the Democratic party, and the facts just noticed reveal to us the most prominent feature of the causes which have led to this state of affairs.

These facts are cited not with any intention to prejudice any one against those institutions, for they are doing a good work, but in order simply to prove in an indirect way the proposition laid down in the heading of this letter, and to show, in as forcible manner as possible, to the farmers of the State, the great importance to them of having under their own control and management an institution that will not only be a means of increasing the fertility of their soil and enabling them to make better crops, and thereby more money, but that will give tone and respectability to their occupation, return to the farm a larger per cent. of their sons, and confer upon them a power and influence in the State and nation which they have never yet enjoyed.

Any candid mind, not warped by prejudice can see at once that the South Carolina annex, or School of Agriculture can never, under its present management, confer upon the farmers of the State anything like the benefits and influences herein mentioned.

We might as well expect to "gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles" as to expect such fruits from such a source.

The Rev. Clayton Mumma, of Read, Pa., and the Rev. J. W. Wellesley, of Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, while walking on the tracks of the Pennsylvania Schuylkill Valley Railroad this afternoon, near Bushong furnace, were struck by a passenger train, and were very much displeased that that of the latter should have been so much more imposing than that of the Father of his country.

MORE MIND READING.

Mr. Clark Develops a More Wonderful Power in This Line.

Since the discovery of this "sixth sense," as many are inclined to term it, of mind reading in so many of our people, there has been a great deal of talk about it, and it has become a popular subject.
