Fire at Pomaria.

On last Wednesday night the store house occupied by Mr. Edward R. Hipp, of Pomaria, and his entire stock of goods were destroyed by fire.

The house belonged to Thos. W. Holloway & Son and was valued at $1,000. They had $500 insurance.

Mr. Hipp thinks that his loss is not less than $4,000, and he had $4,800 insurance on his stock of goods and $200 on a warehouse that he had built adjoining his store, and which was also burned.

The vacant storehouse belonging to the estate of Wm. Stone was also burned. No insurance.

The postoffice was kept in Mr. Hipp's store and it was also burned, although the loss on this is merely nominal.

The fire was discovered about 11 o'clock and had gotten under such headway that there was no opportunity to save anything.

Mr. Hipp thinks the fire must have been ignited, as he had no fire in his store since about 11 o'clock on the day before, and was in there about 7 o'clock at night to distribute the Laurens mail and there was no sign of fire at that time.

The loss falls heavily upon Mr. Hipp, who is a young man just starting in business to himself. The fire was determined whether he will re-open at Pomaria or not. He is a fine business man, and will succeed.

This is the third store house that has been burned on this same spot. The first was burned by members of Sherman's army and the second several years ago, when a Mr. Reid was murdered and the store house burned down on him.

Mrs. W. H. Pratt died on the morning of the 16th inst., at 80, after a long and painful illness, in the 68th year of her age.

The scriptural declaration that "the merciful man regardeth the cry of his beast," was beautifully illustrated in her kindness to all animals.

She was a native of North Carolina but had lived here for many years. She leaves a husband and an adopted daughter. Her remains were interred at the cemetery in the presence of a number of her friends.

The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Schaeffer, of whose church she was a member. Peace to her manes.

Sunday afternoon, January 18, 1891, at home, at 5 o'clock, Rev. W. W. Daniel united Mr. W. T. Shelton, late of Blenheim, and Miss Hattie A. Sledge—nee Pitts, in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The evening was calm and clear—the gracious closing of a lovely day, and just cool enough to render the glowing ceremony all the more small parties of friends were present to witness the impressive rite.

Soon after the guests sat down to a sumptuous supper of luscious meats. The wedding cakes and other dainties were abundant and fully enjoyed by those who partook of them.

It is the fair and beautiful young bride that we would like to speak of. On this happy occasion she wore a lavender silk which charmingly became her style of beauty, her smooth complexion, approaching the pure olive—was suffused with a modest blush which lent additional beauty to her attractive features.

The handsome couple took the L. & N. train Monday morning for Waynesville, Haywood County, N. C. The bride was attired in a brown Henrietta, trimmed in plush, with seal skin jacket and toque to match.

The wedding pair have our wishes for a happy home and life. SANS SOCI.

Beth Eden Items. After receiving such a kind welcome from our editor, we are encouraged to "come again."

Our school opened on Monday, January 5th, with Miss Emma Julian as teacher. Only seventeen pupils are in the room, but our teacher thinks that is enough.

Miss Mamie Folk has been going to the Graded School in Newberry, but has come back home to go to Beth Eden again. We welcome her, for she was always a good and studious pupil.

The young ladies who spent Christmas at home have returned and report having had a splendid time.

Some of our young ladies now wear a shining circle on their third fingers. What does that mean, can anyone tell?

John K. Efrid, Master Winfield and little Gertrude spent a few days with her father's family (Rev. Julian) last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Sligh have just returned from their trip to Newberry, where they visited Mr. Sligh's father, Mr. Lee.

The only little girl in our community is Miss Bonnie Hawkins, aged nine years. She is quite a smart little girl, not only in intelligence, but in accomplishments. She speaks several languages, reads a week as much work as many grown girls. She studies the fifth reader word book, arithmetic, geography, grammar and history, and can play several pieces nicely on the organ.

We are having plenty of rain about now. It can bear the train running on the new road. But are not near enough to see it. However we see it enough when going to town. Our horses are not pleased with it at all, and show signs of anger or fright as soon as they catch a glimpse of it.

A few of our young people met at Prof. Hawkins' last Wednesday night to practice music, everything passed off very pleasantly, and all seemed to enjoy it.

The members of our "L. A. S." are requested to meet at the parsonage on Saturday before the 4th Sunday at one o'clock p. m. We have a good deal of work to do, and we hope all of our members will be present. POLLY.

A Brilliant Jewish Marriage.

Mr. M. S. Epstein, of Columbia, but formerly of Newberry, was in Newberry this week on a happy mission.

He has many friends and acquaintances here who will wish him many years of happiness and prosperity. The import of his mission was to wed Miss Pauline Mittle, the beautiful and charming daughter of our townsman, Mr. H. Mittle, which happy event took place at Klettner's Hall on Wednesday, at half past eleven o'clock.

The beautiful and impressive ceremony of the Jewish Church, which made the union the most solemn, was performed by Rabbi Leo Reich, of Atlanta, Ga.

These beautiful ceremonies are always witnessed with interest by our people when the occasion presents, and at this happy union there was a large attendance of the friends of the contracting parties. The ceremony is a very impressive one, and the solemn words of counsel of the Rabbi fell upon attentive and listening ears.

The hall was handsomely decorated for the occasion in evergreens and ivy, and especially beautiful was the canopy under which stood the contracting parties. Above the bridal pair hung the beautiful wedding veil of pure white japonica, beneath a canopy of white satin, and behind was a background of evergreens and ivies.

As the bridal pair came in, Mrs. P. Robertson played that beautiful wedding march from Lohengrin, "Faithful and True," and as they marched out she rendered one of Mendelssohn's soul-stirring wedding marches.

Above the canopy was the monogram, E. M., and a horse shoe in evergreens.

The groom marched in with his mother, Mrs. Epstein, and the bride upon the arm of her father, Mr. H. Mittle.

The bride wore a beautiful cream white brilliant with front of satin stripe moire en train, with veil of silk brussels net. Upon the corsage was a beautiful bouquet of orange blossoms and japonica. The bridesmaids were all elegantly attired in white satin.

The attendants were Mr. Joe Epstein and Miss Esther Mittle.

Mr. Myer Mittle and Miss Essie Epstein.

Mr. Isadore Koppel and Miss Lillie David.

Mr. Isreal Brown and Miss Bertha Brill.

Mr. Morris Maubheim and Miss Annie Brown.

Mr. Isaac Strauss and Miss Rachel Brown.

Mr. Joe Casper and Miss Rosa Sittefeld.

Mr. Dave Cohen and Miss Celia Cohen.

Amongst the visitors present were Mrs. M. Zarick and Misses Rosa and Mattie Shayer, of Laurens; Mr. and Mrs. Ben David, Misses Virginia and Lillie David, Miss Bertha Brill, Mr. Charles H. Haffner, Mr. and Mrs. Bamberg, Mr. and Mrs. P. Epstein, of Columbia, and Mrs. A. C. Mark, of Greenville.

Immediately after the ceremony, the bridal party repaired to the Newberry Hotel, where a sumptuous repast was served.

The bridal party were the recipients of many telegrams of congratulation.

Mr. and Mrs. Epstein left on the afternoon train for an extended bridal tour to Florida.

They were the recipients of numerous and handsome bridal presents.

One feature of special interest in connection with this union was the presence of the Rev. Mr. Reich, of the four generations of the groom were present to witness the ceremony, they being Mrs. Amelia Epstein, his grandmother, his father and mother, himself, his brother and sisters, and the youngest his nephew, 15 months' old son of his sister, Mrs. Bamberg.

The whole affair passed off very pleasantly, and the newly wedded pair start out upon life amid the congratulations of a host of friends.

When Doctors Fail Out. "A PHILOSOPHY OF DOGS" by Thos. Carlyle pronounced one of Prof. Tyndall's carefully prepared lectures. He said it with a disdainful snort, too. When eminent authorities like these disagree, you cannot blame the public for being chary in their premises; but when from all sides a subject is universal commendation, it is becoming in you to be of a similar mind. It would require columns to merely note the many eminent sources from whence have come praises of Dr. Westmoreland's Calisaya Tonic. Its popularity is phenomenal. Mr. J. S. Buckhalter, of Augusta, Ga., writes "The Tonic a rare anti-periodic and an eradicator of malarial poison from the system. I have pleased to recommend it to my friends. The Sub-Treasury Scheme.

It is strange and hard to find a plausible reason for the strong opposition of many persons to the main feature of the farmers' demands—the sub-treasury plan—especially since it is now held and admitted by its originators and advocates that the only principle contended for is a flexible currency, avoiding both redundancy and stringency.

Comparatively few of the thinking men in our order contend for the enactment into law of the details of this plan. But who, inside or outside of the order, would not be rejoiced if we could get a currency free from that stringent pressure, at times, which forces into bankruptcy and ruin many honest men, by playing into the hands of those who are the possessors of millions, both in these United States and other countries. I surely think that we would all crowd to the polls to vote for such a currency.

Now the plan, under consideration, is one submitted by the farmers to obtain such a currency, leaving it to our legislators to give up a better plan if this one is impracticable. Has not the secretary of the Treasury said that "we need a flexible currency—not a fixed currency, the same at all seasons—the effects of which are ruinous, especially to those whose money crops are harvested during three or four months of the year, by making money high from its scarcity, and that for which it is exchanged correspondingly low from its comparative abundance during those months. In addition to this trouble comes the deplorable fact—a fact which we think all good men and citizens should regret—that a few men hold the lever in their hands to further enhance this oppressive power of a stringent currency, by withholding from circulation an immense sum of money, in order to realize tremendous interest, which eventually reaches down through its various channels, until it strikes the producers and our blighting power and through them injures the whole country.

Does not one feature of this sub-treasury plan commend itself to any ordinarily intelligent, unprejudiced man; it proposes to have the agricultural products of the country? Now we all know that money has only an exchangeable value. What is it exchanged for? The very things upon which the plan under discussion proposes to base it. If this is not good as far as it goes, towards securing a currency, free from redundancy and stringency, adopting itself to the needs of the country, then tell us that deficiency and let us have one that will do better.

The principles advocated by agriculturists were at first jeered at by those who should at least have given them serious thought, but truth, like Banquo's ghost, will not be so easily brushed away and views are now receiving attention from every direction, and there will doubtless result legislation which will greatly benefit the whole country.

It is to be regretted that different opinions on political matter, and matter not political, should so estrange the citizenship of our common country and one from the other, that each should oppose with severe and often unjust criticism, whatever the other does, whether it be sincere or selfishly designing. The object of our order is to harmon
