A ROTTEN GAME

NEWBERRY'S VALL CHAM CRUSHING LY DEPENDED

The Story of a Can-Sided clame as Told b the Columbia State - Many Loft the Grand Stand Before the Game Was Ended.

The following report of the game of ball between the Anderson and New berry teams played in Columbia or Wednesday is taken from the State and tells a deleful tale for Newberry:

The ball game yesterday afternoor between the Anders in and Newberry teams was so uninteresting and one sided that a very lengthy notice would be out of place

Before the game began and even in to the beginning of the third inning, everybedy thought that the two teams were evenly matched and that some fine ball playing would be the result, but this belief was dissipated before the batlle had proceeded very far. The first two lonings were played with snap and the with only one run made by Anderson, and this caused the spectators to think that the game would be close and exciting throughout. But when the third innen; was over and Anderson and chalked up 13 runs to her credit while Newserry had made only a goose egg, the crowd on the s and wiited both on account of the poor playing and likewise the weather, and all hopes of a close battle vanished at once.

The Newberry team was a sad disappointment. After its clever work last week against the Charaws it lend the ball cranks to believe that it could hold its own against the players from Anderson, but in this attempt the Newberrys proved a lamentable tai re-Judging by this one game the team is no match whatever for that of Anderson, which piled up runs at will yesterday afternoon and made monkeys out of the Newberrians.

The crowd on the stand became soon disgusted with the poor showing made by Newberry, and many left the scene long before the last inning was fin-

Weddington, the Newberry pitcher, was pounded all over the field for t safe hits with a total of 22 bases Balls were raining in all directions to such an extent that he was taken out of the bex after pitching three innings and Case was put in his place. Case did very much better, but the Anderson boys hit him freely also, and coninued to add runs to their score. Neither team played with much life, bat Anderson had such a soft snap that it was hard for them to get up much anthusiasm, if any at all.

The battle ended 26 to 4 in favor of Anderson, the four runs being almost presented to Newberry as a kind of consolation gift. Anderson played a good steady game throughout, making only one error in he nine innings. Ragan of Anderson is a capital lefthanded pitcher and but two safe hits were made off his delivery in the entire game.
