F. H. AULL, EDITOR

Columbia is making great preparations to entertain the Confederate Vete rans May 8-10 and from all accounts it is going to be a grand success. We hope all our people will attend. But we should not lose sight of Memorial Day in Newberry amid all the preparations for the great reanion in Columbia. A committee has been appointed by the James D. Camp and also by the Jno. M. Kinard Camp, Sons Confederate Veterans, to fix the date and make preparations for the proper observance of the day here. The least that our people can do is to show their love and reverence for the old soldiers and the cause for which they sacrificed all, save honor by fitting exercises on Memorial Day. Each succeeding year thins out their ranks and day by day they are crossing the river which flows between time and eternity. A few yearsmore and not one will be left of all those who followed Lee into victory and defeat laid down their arms and took up the harder task of rebuilding their homes. Let our people decorate the graves of those who fell in that memorable conflict and those who have since passed over the river, and honor the men who fought for a cause "lost, though just."

BRYAN NOT A CANDIDATE.

Hon, Wm. Jennings Bryan has an nounced his intention of not again being a candidate for the presidential nomination, "unless it seems necessary for the advancement of the principles' to which he adheres, and that does not now seem probable. He says, however, that he will take an active interest in politics for several years yet and that he can be relied upon to support those who work for the advancement of Dem-

Mr. Bryan, in two great and hardfought campaigns as a candidate for the presidency has probably displayed more ability as a political orator and stump speaker, and shown more magnetism than any other man known in American history. He has fought for the principles which he believes to be right, and the principles on which our government was founded and our constitution written. Twice he has been defeated, the first time on the free silver platform, which he thought would of the country. In the last campaign he fought the policy of expansion, because as he saw it, thi. - liey would lead to imperialism and mittarism and ultimate ruin at home, and also because he thought it wreng for strong people to take away from weaker peoples their liberties and their homes. He stood for the great principle "that all government derives its just power from the consent of the governed."

While we think Mr. Bryan is wise in not again placing himself before the people as a candidate for the presidential nomination, yet we believe he was what he says in his statement might be | er plane. applied to some men in this State who work for Republican principles because they think the Democratic platform is not broad enough and liberal enough future, and still call themselves Demo-

In conclusion he says: "No matter what a man may have said or done for the ticket in 1896 or in 1900, that man becomes an opponent the moment he turns against Democratic principles. Political battles are fought, not in the past or in the future, but in the present. The heretofore cannot be recalled, and the hereafter cannot be anticipated, but the now is all important."

We often grumble if it does not rain for a few weeks. We do not know what a drouth is. The London Express gives a pitiable picture of the effects of frouth on the wool interests of Ausperished, and that the great six years' drouth has not yet been broken .- Au gusta Chronicle

We are prone to grumble too much any way especially about things over which we have no control. If every meets it he would not have so much time for grumbling. But we grumble If it rains and then we grumble when it don't. We do not know what a faored spot this Southland in which we live is, and we cannot know unless we were to experience some of the hardships which others not so favorably situated have to endure. Moral: Don't grumble.

We see from the daily papers that Mr. W. H. Newbold, whom the gov-M. R. Reese, wires that it is a case of mistaken identity. This is the second or third time that it has been reported that this man has been captured and it thing which means the substantial proved untrue. It will be remembered growth of the town. that Reese was tried some years ago at Yorkville for murder committed at Blacksburg and was convicted with a recommendation to mercy and sentenced to the penitentiary for life, but before he began his term escaped from the on account of kidney and liver trouble Yorkville jail and though rewards amounting to about $700 have been ity; but, "Three bottles of Electric Bitters enabled me to walk," she writes offered for his capture, he has mansion, the evidence seemed so strong to send some one after him.

NORTHERN SCHOOL BOOKS

There is a popular impression gotten out in the country through those Northern school books that are written to show how just and generous the North was to the very bad people of the South, that President Lincoln offered to buy the Southern slaves. For a long time it was not thought worthy of denial but it has gone so far now that John II. Reagan has undertook to stop it.—Flor-

O, pshaw! The "Northern school book" dodge has been run in the ground The "partisan history" gag has accomplished its purpose in fastening upon the schools of the State for seven years to come one of the poorest histories of e United States that has ever been

But these "Northern sehool books" ever got out any such "popular imessions" as the Times refers to. Col Henri Watterson, the gifted but erration editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, a southerner of the southerners, was the author of the statement that President Lincoln proposed at the Hamptor Roads conference that the Federal gov ernment would pay for the slaves if the Southern Confederacy would lay down The statement was disproved by John Temple Graves before John II Reagan ever took it up .- Newberry

Editor Wallace of the Newberry Oberver, is entirely correct in both the above statements. The histories which from Manassas to Appomatox, and then the State Board of Education have laid down their arms and took up the adopted. In response to the cry for "a history of the war from our standpoint, are so poor that it is a straining of courtesy to dignify them by the title of history .- Sumter Herald.

To all of which The Herald and News agrees. We think the board made a mistake in all the changes which were made. That is to say all of the important changes which were made. The new books, outside of the histories, are no better than the ones displaced and the histories are inferior. It will cause confusion and expense to the parents and pupils with no advantage or benefit. Why the change was made we have never been able to understand.

We understand that Mr. J. F. Rich ardson of the Greenville News is to be postmaster at Greenville and the appointment may be made before this is printed. This is one of the appointments on Senator McLaurin's slate and there are others to follow, so we hear

The old time Republican leaders are to go in order to make place and room for the recent converts to the McLaurin idea of building up a new Republi can party in the South and yet he say ho is a Democrat and expects to make the fight for re-election in our Demo cratic primaries. If the offices were big enough and numerous enough to go round Mr. McLaurin might be able benefit the poor and the working men to make haste more rapidly with his new party. We understand also that it is on the slate to change postmasters in Columbia and possibly in some of the other larger towns. If there were no principles involved and the success of a United States senator from a great State like South Carolina was measured by his ability to secure jobs from the administration then it would seem that Mr. McLaurin' success was assured. And in this day of commercialism a great many people measure a man by such a yard stick. The Re- signed to Gods with the heart-broken last twenty-five years has been run by right in both campaigns, and it would the jobs that were in sight or rather have been better for the republic had within the range of possibility. We he been elected. He is today the great- had thought that Mr. McLaurin was est living exponent of Democracy and going to place his new party on a high-

It is a significant fact that I'on. Clark Howell, the successor of the immortal Grady in his editorial work on and that it must be changed in the the Atlanta Constitution, delivered an address on the occasion of the anniversary of the birth of Gen. Grant in New York on Saturday. The work to which Henry Grady gave his life was the reuniting of the sections, and all the powers of this great man and eloquent orator were directed towards this end, and now the people of the country have once more become brothers and the successor of Grady has delivered an address in honor of the great man who led the Northern hosts. For he was a great and good man, and more and more the people of the South are coming to recognize this. It is true that at Appomattox, when the South was conquered and her cause lost that if Grant tralia. It says 50,000,000 sheep have had offered terms of surrender less honorable they would never have been accepted by Lee and the men under him, but it is also true that Grant did offer the most honorable terms at his command to his vanquished opponents, person would go ahead and do his duty and that afterwards he did all that he faithfully and conscientiously as he in honor could to help the South. As our people come to love more and more Lee and Jackson and Johnson and the other great men who led our armies, they also more and more recognize the greatness of some of the men on the other side, who thought us not rebels, but men who fought for a cause we believed to be right.

We hope the efforts now being put forth to build a new cotton mill in Newberry will succeed. The opportunity is now before the business men of the city to make a substantial step forward. ernor sent to Mississippi to identify It is up to them and the question is, will they grasp it. THE GREAT MUSIC FESTIVAL.

The Notable Event at the Columbia Theatre Next Week Music is a science and an art-a science as teaching to origin, properties. relation and dependencies of mejodiou sounds; an art, as appealing to our emotions and the inherent love of the beau tiful in nature.

To those who have never felt the powerful influence of music in the genuness of its art, no greater opportunity in the south than that of the Columbia music festival, to be given under the ruspices of the Presbyterian College for Women in the New Columbia theatre May 6 and 7 has ever been offered. To the old lovers of music and these fami iar with its art and influences the mere mention of the Boston Festival orchestra of 50 musicians, Campanari, Mrs. Zimmerman, Miss Roselle, Miss Nichols, Mr. Hall and Mr. Miles is quite sufficient to incite them to action, as has been evidenced by their demands for seats. There is no reason why Columbia should not have within its walls occasionally, if I not continously, the finest talent that the world produces, and a hearty support to this grand occasion May 6 and 7 will be an incentive to bring to the city other artists of ability and national reputation and at intervals of lesser duration than those of the past.

The season ticket sale will be continued up to and including Thursday of this week when they will be withdrawn and the single admission reserve seat tickets will be placed on sale. For season tickets apply to Miss Jennie G. Gibbes, Mr. N. J. Heyward, Mr. J. M. Cantey, Mr. A. P. Browne, and at the Columbia book store and Miot's drug l'ersons residing out of the city can have seats reserved by communicating with either of the above parties.-The State, April 30.

Death of James R. Watts.

After an extended illness Mr. James Randall Watts died at his home near Sligh's April 17, 1901, aged sixty years and three days. Mr. Watts had been in extremely bad health for some months previous to his death. Mr. Watts died from heart dropsy, from which he had been suffering for some time. About five or six years ago he had an attack which all thought would prove fatal, after which he recovered to some extent, but has never been strong from that time to this. The grim messenger of death hovered around his bedside from noon Tuesday till fifteen minutes of one Tuesday night when our loved one yielded up his life to God who gave it and passed quietly over the stream. In health he was so cordial in man-seemed that his mind could never be muddled but for several days before his death he was unconscious almost all the time. A few days before his death he expressed himself ready and fully reboys to his bedside and bade them be good boys. Ah! no wonder our poor earts almost break with grief when we think that never again shall we see our dear one on this earth! Well may we wring our hands in sorrow, that our help avails so little; yet, we sorrow not as they who have no hope. On Thursday at eleven o'clock we laid his cold still body to rest in the family grave near his home. There is an awful solitude in death through which no human sympathy or affection can enter. It comes and wraps a man in its misty vale through which love and sympathy cannot pass, but its thickest and mistiest are not too dense for the Saviour to enter, and in the midst of this cloud we may be sure that Jesus will take our believing departed ones in his arms and say unto them: "When thou passest through the waters I will be with thee, and through the floods they shall not overflow thee." Though our hearts are torn and bleeding we know that God makes no mistakes and ahough we see our loved one no more on earth we hope to see him again safe April 29, 1901.

THE REESE CASE

The Man Who Escaped From Yorkville Jail Said to be in Oxford, Miss. [Special News and Courier]

Columbia, April 24.—The Reese case seems to be getting more and more mixed, although there now seems to be pretty good explanation of how Reese got caught, if the man under arrest proves to be the right party. Governor McSweeney received the following letter about the case from Lancaster tuday:

"I notice in the State paper of the 21st inst the capture of a man supposed to be Marion R. Kesse. As I am the man that furnished the information that led to the capture at Oxford, Miss. or at least one of the party. I ask you to please hold reward and we will give all the particulars about the arrest, how it was done. Other letters will be sent you in a few days. "W. G. A. Porter."

Last night Governor McSweeney sent the following telegram: "W. H. Newbold, Chester, S. C .: Will wait until you hear from

This was in response to a letter from Mr. Newbold.

Governor McSweeney today reeived the following:

"Have not heard from sheriff. Wire him to photograph man and send picture and descriptions by mail. Am subject to your orders, but would advise that we wait for letter. Wire me your pleasure.

"W. H. Newbold." He sent the following in reply:

"W. H. Newbold, Chester: If you do not get the photograph from sheriff today on hear cause of delay, better come down here prepared to go to Oxford. You will be allowed pay provided by law. Do not care to take too much chance."

So as to be on the safe side he this morning forwarded the following to the sheriff in Mississippi:

"J. R. Hawkins, Oxford, Miss: Have you any further evidence as to identity of Resse? Wire reply. Hold him and if any effort made to release by court proceedings advise me

"M. B. McSweeney, Governor. Governor McSweeney received the following telegram tonight from ner, so sprightly in conversation it Sheriff Harkins relative to the Reese case, which seems to look like there may be something in the arrest:

Oxford, Miss., April 24.—To Governor M. B. McSweeney: I wrote Newbold. Told him to show you letter. Refused to have picture made. No effort to escape.

John R. Harkins, Sheriff. 'WRONG MAN,'

igent Newbold Says Prisoner is Not M. R.

After all, it turns out that the man under arrest at Oxford, Miss., was not the much desired M. R. Reese. Mr. Newbold, when he left, stated that he did not believe that the Mississippi authorities had gotten Reese. The authorities there were so positive, however, that the governor thought it absolutely necessary to at least send some one to see whether it was the man wanted. Last night the following telegram was received by the governor:

To Gov. McSweeney, Columbia, S. C. Wrong man. Looks nothing like Reese. Will write from home.

W. H. Newbold. Many said when the letter from the Oxford sheriff first came that Reese having been smooth enough to dig his way out of the York jail in the manner he did, would have sense to get far enough away not to be captured easily. This confidence in the fellow's mental capacity, it now appears, was not mis placed.—The State, 29th inst.
