CHICCO AND HEYWARD.

Blind Tiger King Calls on the Governor. Other Matters Relating to Dispensary in Charleston.

[Columbia Cor. News and Courier.]

Vincent Chicco, of Charleston, came to Columbia last Wednesday to consult with the Governor over the blind tiger situation. Chicco has been raided so often that he thinks he has been specially singled out for persecution on the part of the constables and he seemed to make complaint in that regard. However, his main point evidently was to convince the Governor that disaster would result if he insisted on the strict enforcement of the law. It was somewhat of an anomalous conference—a leading and acknowledged blind tiger dealer pleading for a compromise—but the Governor was rather glad to meet him, as he considered him somewhat of a representative of the business in Charleston, and he desired to have all illicit dealers to understand his position thoroughly and unmistakably. Chicco evidently thought it was in the power of the Governor to compromise the matter, for he said that he and many of the dealers would be utterly ruined if they were forced out of the business. The Governor talked very plainly to him and told him that he would be compelled to enforce the law, and advised Chicco and all others in his position to close up at once. He told him plainly that there could be no compromise with the open or secret sale of liquor. Chicco said he wanted to get out of the business, but seemed to think if he could sell "on the quiet" it would be all right, but, of course, such a proposition, if it had been directly made, would not have been entertained for a moment.

Although Chicco pretended that he was on the verge of ruin, he appeared very cheerful, and when introduced to Chief Constable Hammett said he was glad to meet him and asked him pleasantly to call when he came to Charleston.

Chief of Police Boyle had a very pleasant interview today with Governor Heyward. Mayor Smyth and Chief Boyle had a conference relative to the dispensary situation in Charleston, and it was thought well that Chief Boyle should come to Columbia and make the police department thoroughly understood.

Chief Boyle had a letter from Mayor Smyth and said, by way of preface, that he wished to discuss the matter without feeling or personalities, and that he had no purpose to criticize anyone and would not do so.

He wished for the police department, as Mayor Smyth had previously done, to assure the Governor of the co-operation of the police department in the effort to enforce the dispensary law in Charleston, and to say that the police department would do all that it could legitimately do to co-operate.

Under the opinion of the corporation counsel the police have no right to enter a man's store or place of business and make arrests without a warrant, while the constables have. A constable, however, could make the arrest and take the prisoner out on the street and the police would co-operate and take charge of the prisoner. The opinion is that the police, however, have no right to enter a store to make an arrest, but the officer would be in duty bound to take charge of the prisoner when turned over to him. Chief Boyle emphasized the fact that there was no friction between the police and the constables in Charleston.

Chief Boyle stated that the main purpose of his visit was to assure Governor Heyward that it was the purpose and the desire of Mayor Smyth and the police department to assist in every way possible and to co-operate fully in the enforcement of the dispensary law.

Governor Heyward stated that he was glad Chief Boyle called upon him and delighted to have the assurance of the police department and Mayor of Charleston that it is intended to co-operate in every way possible in the enforcement of the dispensary law in Charleston.

CHICCO COMES HOME.
[News and Courier.]
Vincent Chicco, who went to Columbia to have a talk with the Governor about the blind tiger situation, has returned to Charleston. Yesterday he consented to tell what happened when he braced the Governor. According to Chicco the interview was in part as follows:

"Now, Governor," said Chicco, "you're a gentleman; all the Heywards are gentlemen. And I'm a gentleman, and all the Chiccos are gentlemen. Governor, tell me—what are you going to do about this matter?"

"There is but one thing to be done, Chicco," the Governor replied in positive tones, "you'll have to quit this business. It is my duty to enforce the dispensary law."

"But, Governor, I've got a wife and many children. I have to support them. I've got to make a living; that's the proposition I'm up against."

"Well, you will have to close your establishment, Chicco, unless you can make a living without breaking the law. Promise me you'll cease violating the dispensary law."

"Governor, I've just told you I'm a gentleman, and if I was to make that promise I'd break it, and then I'd be a liar. And no gentleman is a liar."

"Very well, Chicco," replied the Governor, decidedly, "you've got to respect the dispensary law or take the consequences."

"I can't give up my business, Governor; I've got to make a living and I don't know how to do anything else."

"All right, Chicco; you and the constables can settle that." Suddenly Chicco's face lighted with hope. "Governor," he whispered, "I've got a proposition to make to you."

"What is it, Chicco?" "I'll quit the blind tiger business if you'll appoint me a member of the board of control."

What the Governor said Chicco refused to divulge.

RACE CONVENTION.

How Georgia Regards the Proposition. The Idea Probably Abandoned.

[Atlanta Constitution.]

Governor Terrell has as yet received no word from the governor of Wisconsin relative to the appointment of delegates to a convention proposed to be held in Atlanta for the discussion and settlement of the race problem.

So far as is known not one of the Southern governors has received any communication bearing upon this interesting proposition which emanated from the Wisconsin senate.

Governor Terrell's views with regard to the matter are well known. In his recent speech before the Georgia Society of New York he advocated a cessation of discussion of the negro question as the best solution of the matter. The governor's views as expressed on that occasion have been generally and favorably commented upon all over the country.

While he has not expressed himself upon the subject, those who know his views say Governor Terrell would take no part in such a movement, and would not name delegates from Georgia to attend such a convention.

"The indications are," said a prominent Georgian at the capitol yesterday, "that reports sent back to Wisconsin about the way the proposition of the Wisconsin senate was received in the South have thrown a deal of cold water on the scheme, and I would not be surprised to see the convention dropped. I do not believe the southern states would take part in any such plan, and, as usual, it would be entirely a one-sided affair."

"I am glad to see that the Tennessee legislature has taken notice of the matter in its resolution requiring the governor of that state to decline to appoint delegates to attend the proposed negro convention. I don't believe the governor of Tennessee would have done so under any circumstances, but it is interesting to note the sentiment of the Tennessee legislature on the subject."

Gov. Heyward has received from a Northern newspaper syndicate a request for a statement of his opinion of the outlook for the Democratic party in 1904. "Whom do you favor for president?" "What will be the issues paramount?" "What will be Bryan's influence?" etc. The questions are significant. The syndicate represents 250 papers.

MUST NOT DRINK.

The Chief Issues Strict Orders to the Constabulary.

The Secretary of State Friday issued a commission to U. B. Hammett of Barwell, recently appointed chief of the liquor constabulary. Commissions were issued J. K. White and J. W. Sea of Spartanburg, appointed constables in the new organization, the first names selected out of over 1,500 applications.

Mr. Hammett, who is a temperate man himself, has issued the following order forbidding the constabulary to tipple, a practice charged against the constables freely in the past:

To Division Chiefs: On and after this date the use of intoxicating liquors by members of the State constabulary force will not be tolerated. Any constable against whom the charge of intoxication shall be made, will, upon conviction, be suspended 30 days for the first offense, and upon conviction of the second offense he will be dismissed from the service.

You will communicate this order as quickly as possible to the various constables under your direction.

U. B. Hammett,
Chief Constable.

The peasants are at once to be released from the burdensome liability of enforced labor, and reforms are to be effected throughout the Czar's dominions. This is regarded as the greatest reform in Russia since the freeing of the Serfs.

TERRIBLE TRAGEDY AT SUMTER.

A Flying Fragment of Iron Struck Man in the Forehead, Crushing the Face and Skull.

[The State.]

Sumter March 13.—Mr. John F. Laughery was seriously injured in an accident, resulting in his death at 9:20 tonight, which happened at the plant of the Lukens Lumber Company this afternoon about 4:30 o'clock. Mr. Laughery had gone to the saw mill and was standing up at the engine when it ran away, the governors refusing to check the speed of the fly wheel, which was 10 feet in diameter. Mr. Laughery sprang towards the valve to turn off the steam when the explosion came, the fly wheel burst to pieces, and Mr. Laughery was struck on the right side of the face and head by a flat piece of iron, his face and skull being crushed in. When picked up he was in an unconscious condition. He has been taken around to Dr. Mood's infirmary. Engineer Joiner was also in the engine room when the wheel burst, but escaped without injury. One piece of the wheel flew upward and tore a large hole in the roof, another section struck a wheel about 15 feet distant, and although the other wheel was running and was running and 20 inches in diameter, tore it to pieces. Some parts of the wheel landed on the ground as far as 75 feet away from the scene of the accident. It is impossible to say this afternoon the extent of the damage or how long before the mill will start up again.

The death of Mr. Laughery has spread quite a gloom over the city and on every side people can be seen talking about the accident and its terrible consequences.

The question of dispensary or no dispensary will be voted on in Greenwood on the 13th day of April. The dispensary was defeated a year ago.
