SLAPSTICK

Had Enough
Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish, one of society's queens at the turn of the century, was always up to her ears in the social whirl. Her millionaire husband, on the other hand, preferred an evening by the fireside. Once a week, as a concession to him, they would have a quiet dinner at home, without the chattering presence of scores of guests. On these occasions, Mr. Fish's favorite dish, corned beef and cabbage, was invariably served. One night, when the two were at dinner, the French maid came in from the kitchen and gave her notice. "But why are you leaving?" asked Mrs. Fish. The girl pointed at the corned beef and cabbage and turned up her nose. "Madam," she replied, "maybe you can stand this, this food, but I am not used to such theengs!"

IGNORES THEM

Wear Blank Corsets
A young college student was smoking on the bus. The conductor asked him: "Don't you see the sign that says No smoking?" "Of course," replied the bright young man, "but how can you expect me to observe all your signs? There's another that says Wear Blank Corsets."

Neat Trick

On a dark and stormy night the trainman was signaling to the engineer when he dropped his lantern to the ground. Another man passing by tossed it back to him on top of a boxcar. In a few minutes the engineer came rushing up. "Let's see you do that again!" "Do what?" "Jump from the ground to the top of that boxcar!"

That Fixed 'Em

An old lady of the village was very angry because she had not been invited to the picnic her friends were going to. The day of the event, the hostess relented and asked her to come. "It's too late," she snapped. "I've already prayed for rain."

ALL SMOKED UP

Farmer: "This is a tobacco plant in full flower."
Young thing from the city: "And how long will it be before the cigarettes are ripe?"

IN MEMORIAM

A little boy surprised his parents by refusing to be scared into being good. "It's no use telling me the angels will write it down in their books if I'm naughty," he said. "I might as well tell you they think up in Heaven I'm dead." "But why should they think that?" "Because I haven't said my prayers for a fortnight."

Save soap sivers and when you have quite a few, melt them down by boiling in a little water until all sivers are melted. Simmer away water until liquid is thick to make a lathery shampoo.
To remove an ink stain from hands or fingers, dip the head of a match in water, then rub match head on ink spot. After that, wash hands with soap and water, and stain will have disappeared.
Dropping a small piece of charcoal into the flower vase will help flowers stay fresher longer and reduce odor from decaying stems.
When drying garments, if suspicious that the printed colors will bleed, dry garments on a hanger with an old sheet or bath towel run through sleeves and between front and back so that surfaces do not touch.
If the hot water bottle refuses to stay in place, sew a pocket on a bath towel, slip the bottle into pocket and wrap the towel around it.
When using concrete for various odd jobs around the house in winter time, a couple pounds of salt added to each sack of cement will prevent freezing.
Keep baby's silverware, etc. handy by building a drawer under the seat of baby's high chair.
