TREASURER CARDOZO

Seems to stand firm to his asseverations of duty. We, as tax-payers bearing the crushing weight of onerous and unjust taxation, and the constant demand upon the industries of the State, shall watch his action with interest.

THE BOTTOM IS OUT.

The "Beaufort, Republican" has no regard for Democratic fogysim, sore-headed Bourbonism, &c., &c., but gets off the following: "Here is more work for the Attorney General. This is no Democratic, sore-headed Bourbon, talking loosely about a hateful Radical."

THE THIRD TERM.

The rumor is current that General Grant is already engaged in effecting arrangements for a third term of office. The Northern and Western journals are indignantly denouncing the fact, and characterize it as "Caesarism."

the country, was the pinnacle of achievement, which no mortal could fail to underestimate. The charge may seem unnecessarily harsh that General Grant is the ONLY obstacle in the way of civil service reform, and hence an enemy to the national interests.

THE SHAH.

May well implore "Allah" to save his dominion from a civilization, that for the honor of monarchy, does fealty to its most degraded representatives. The millions of wealth lavishly expended upon the eastern potentate would build many a chapel under the shadows of his mosques, and feed many a missionary while reclaiming his empire from heathenish error.

Grand Sunday School Celebration at Santee Church.

THURSDAY, July 24, 1873. The Exercises—Speeches and Singing—Decorations of the Church—The Beautiful Table Spread—The Exercises conclude with Singing and Distributing Prizes.

The procession was formed about 10 o'clock, at Mr. Rush's residence, about 100 yards from the Church. A choir, numbering about 25, were in the lead. Next in order came the Santee Sunday School, with their graceful banners, with mottoes: "We are looking unto Jesus," and "Search the Scriptures"; then came the Jerusalem Sunday School, with their banner, "Love Jesus." Next followed Trinity Sunday School, from the looks of their banner they would say, "Come to Jesus," and so would the rest.

On the 26th of July 1873, a new list was given me including Mr. J. E. Jones' name, since which time, his mail has been regularly sent when called for. It is unnecessary for me to say more, facts speak for themselves.

"Sunday School Volunteer," was sung, the Rev. Mr. Hallman made an address especially to the children. The next hymn was, "Have Courage to do Right." If the remarks of the Rev. Mr. H. were attended to, we would all have that courage.

The hymn, "Work for the night is coming," was sung, and the Rev. A. J. Hartley, Pastor of Antioch Church, in his good style and manner, addressed the people, bringing tears from the eyes of many. Next in order was the hymn, "Grand Millennium." Now comes the Rev. D. Cuttino, Pastor of Santee and Corinth Churches—last, but not least—his remarks about the children praying for bread, Lost Children, Teeth and Obedience, were beautiful. The hymn called "Sweet Bye and Bye," was then sung, which was as good as they make them.

The dinner was entirely on the part of the committee; the visitors went peacefully and in order to the tables. When all were assembled, a blessing was asked by the Rev. Mr. Hartley. IMAGINE what took place in the next 2 hours. The exercises were resumed about 4 o'clock; when the distribution of prizes was made, and, of course, more hymns, the young ladies and children, after anxiously waiting, were called up to receive their prizes, as follows: Miss Laura Parler, Master—Browning, "Mary Parler," "Alex. Parler," "Maggie Smith," "Henry Moore," "Mary Jenkins," "D. Stouendamire," "Mary Smith," "H. Bradaak," "Sally Rose," "Ed Stouendamire," "Kemelyn," "J. Browning," "Sally Shoemaker," "Willie Shoemaker," "L. Moore," "Thomas Moon," "P. Cuttino," "H. Jenkins," "M. Browning," "Prince Davis," "Anna Browning," "J. Parler," "Master E. Parler," "Peter Jenkins," "Stouendamire," "A. Bodehart," "J. Stouendamire," "Willie Price," "Jimmie Shoemaker," "Willie Browning."

The delightful occasion closed with the Doxology, "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

Two little girls, aged respectively ten and twelve years, while fishing on the beach recently, hooked a salmon. The salmon proved too strong for the eldest girl, and in its death struggles dragged the youthful fisher into the water. The younger one, seeing the predicament of her sister, caught hold of her, and by their united strength they succeeded in killing and landing the salmon, which weighed twenty pounds.

A machine of Adams, Ga., has inherited the snug pile of $32,000 by the death of an uncle.

A Woman Slays a Panther.

The country papers just now abound in accounts of encounters with wild beasts. The Pittsburg Commercial supplies one in correspondence from Lock Haven, Pa., as follows: "On Thursday last a party of young women went out from Queen's Run to the mountain just back of the settlement, gathering huckleberries. One of them Jerusha Bryan, advanced a little further into the woods than the others, when she was attacked by a huge panther. Her companions hearing the brute scream, sought safety in flight, but Miss Bryan, finding escape impossible, determined to stand her ground, and seizing a huge pine-knot, gave her enemy battle. The contest was a close one for a few minutes, but human courage, judgment, and coolness soon triumphed, over brute strength, and the heroic woman soon had the satisfaction of laying the blood-thirsty monster dead at her feet. Her garments were torn into shreds, and her face and arms badly scratched, but she walked home with a firm step and the light of triumph in her eye. The dead panther was soon afterwards found by the people of Queen's Run, and proved on measurement to be six feet ten inches long. The correspondent adds that Jerusha is the lion of the place; and well she may be—if the story is true.

John Varnum, June, of Lyndon, Vt., is a practical joker. A few Sundays ago in returning from church, he was conversing with his wife on the subject of the sermon, and remarked that he couldn't believe saint and sinner ever dwelt so near together as the sermon represented. His wife intimated that they could, and instanced the following case: "Haven't you and I dwelt in the same house for several years? This was a square hit on John, but he wormed out of it, and closed the case with the following argument: "Yes, to be sure; but did I ever call you a sinner? Judgment for John, and no appeal."

Grace Greenwood sarcastically remarks: The fact is, there are too many of us women. And there seems no relief for coming generations except through the heroic remedy of quietly putting all female infants out of the way. Nothing could be so good for us except a long and glorious succession of Herods." This would be very nice and comfortable, but Mrs. Greenwood must know that after seven or eight generations of females had been exterminated at birth, it would begin to tell on the males.

No intelligent man has ever condemned them South for the dislike of the carpet-baggers, yet that justifiable and partly has created an impression that all Northern men are coldly received in the Southern States. This mistake for mistake it undoubtedly is, is disproved by the following frank avowal from the Richmond Inquirer: "Northern men in the South are not only welcome now, but they are looked upon as valuable accessions to the energy, enterprise and intelligence of our section. When they come as men of business, and not for the purpose of obtaining office and poisoning the negro against the white man through the prejudice of the old slave against the old master, they are treated with simple civility, not with cordiality, because they are the disturbers of that concord which is so desirable between the two races, and they are the enemies of both."
