SOUTH CAROLINA IN WASHINGTON.

The two reports of the Judiciary Committee differ widely in their conclusions; one shows the bitter spirit of party demagogues; upholding fraud and corruption, and intimating that there is no redress for a down trodden people, except in continued fasting and prayer. The other report on the other hand holds, that there is no denying that gross irregularities exist, and that there must be some mode of redress for an oppressed people.

WHAT IS GOING TO BE DONE?

The late Taxpayers Convention recommended, that all counties have "Tax Unions" and "Immigration Societies;" and many of the upper counties have acted upon the suggestion, and why can not Orangeburg do the same? It is surprising to see how little interest the people take in politics, but this is owing to our eagerness after the almighty dollar. Very few indeed exert themselves, preferring to sit all day mourning over high taxation and rascality in the government. Why not stand up and gird ourselves for the coming election? All is not lost!

Civil War in Arkansas.

The despatches from Arkansas this morning bring news of a bitter conflict and actual war. Blood has been shed, the peace broken and the State is no longer able to govern itself. There is no longer any excuse for delay on the part of the President. He has delayed too long already. An unfortunate interference in Louisiana, where interference was unnecessary, predisposed General Grant's mind not to interfere again in the affairs of a sovereign State, and so in taking the opposite side he has erred once more. Had the President acted promptly we should not now have to record the melancholy story of actual battle and civil war in Arkansas. It was plain almost from the beginning of the contest that neither of the claimants to the Governorship would yield without an effort. Both have all the time been gathering strength for the conflict, and the conflict has come at last. Unlike the previous elements in Little Rock, it cannot be explained away. The State is in a condition of anarchy, and the complications will only grow worse by delay. Peace must be restored first and the claims of the rival Governors settled afterwards. A military governor and martial law do better than two hostile Governors fighting each other with armed forces and no law at all. The President must at once send all the available troops into the State, and give General Sherman the command, with headquarters at Little Rock. This action will in itself inspire confidence and restore order. Military rigor even may not be necessary if the government shows a strong determination to keep the peace. No officer than General Sherman can be found to wield temporary power in the State and bring about a good understanding. Let the President at once send the General of the Army to Little Rock, clothed with full power to take the affairs of the State into his own hands, with the understanding that Sherman's orders are to be supported by military force till the Legislature can meet and determine who is Governor, and peace will be the immediate result.—New York Herald.

Mr. B. F. McGraw, a young and successful farmer of Newberry County, procured the services of an old German and his wife on the 11th of February last. They have remained with him since that and express themselves entirely satisfied with the treatment received, and are pleased with the country. In addition to this, they have written home to the fatherland for their entire family to come over, four of whom are grown men and women, and share their happy lot.

On May 1st while the House was in committee of the whole on the Indian appropriation bill, Mr. Rainey of South Carolina, was called to the chair, and occupied it for nearly an hour. This is the first time that a colored man has sat in the chair of the speaker of the House of Representatives, and it was the occasion of much comment on all sides.

"The Good work goes bravely on."

The English Company known as the South Carolina Plantation trust, limited, is meeting with considerable encouragement in the procuring of lands for their enterprise in this and adjacent Counties. They have already the mouth of the Santee River, with 60,000 acres of land and are preparing to cut a large Canal from thence across into Winyaw Bay, through which they expect to run millions of timber and produce for shipment to Europe. It is their object to develop the country in which their purchases are made and not as has been erroneously supposed to invest surplus funds in lands, which are to be allowed to remain idle with the view to future augmentation in value. It is their object also to bring a great many laborers over and to build factories where ever they can obtain sufficient water-power. We are glad to note their success in this county in obtaining lands, there is no section of the State that needs improvements more, and if our large land owners will take hold of the matter in earnest, we believe our future prosperity is secured. With the railroad which the Company proposes to give us and a diversified industry, Clarendon county with her genial climate and fertile lands will certainly become one of the most attractive sections of the State.

An Agent, Mr. A. H. Renton from England, together with Mr. Risley the agent of the State are even now while we are writing prospecting the lands in the vicinity of Manning, and express themselves highly pleased with the future which this section offers if our people can only be induced to sell lands in sufficient quantities to warrant the Company in commencing business here. This we conceive is the golden opportunity for our people to have all the advantages of a developed country, and we trust they will not allow it to pass unimproved.—Clarendon Press.

OBITUARY.

IN MEMORIAM—F. OLDENDORFF, aged fifty nine years one month and 4 days. It has pleased the great Creator of the Universe to take from our midst, one who was respected and beloved by all those whose opportunity it was to know him. No better and no nobler heart ever ceased to beat than that which made the bosom of our departed friend a sanctuary for those sentiments which lead to the cultivation of those broad and catholic feelings that alone embrace the Scriptural injunction: "Love thy neighbor as thyself." F. OLDENDORFF was born in Braunshweig, Germany, April 1st 1815. In 1849 he settled in Orangeburg, and it is from that time up to his death that those who mourn his loss amongst us, knew him best. He was Elder of the Lutheran Church at this place and one of its most consistent and earnest members. It was his most earnest wish to see the new Lutheran Church at this place finished. Alas! the hand of an All-wise Providence interposed, and the respected and loved Elder Oldendorff is now shrouded in the cold and icy drapery of death. That voice we had hoped to hear join with ours in the rejoicing which must follow the completion of the Church, is hushed forever to this world. It is only at intervals that we hear those death-notes pealed, which touch and awaken the chords of sorrow in the bosom of those of two nations. Oldendorff of Orangeburg, his death is being mourned as sadly today at Braunshweig Germany, as it is in his own family circle here. Both were his homes; one his native, the other his adopted. He loved them together, their people and his religion. Quiet and unassuming in manner he did nothing to attract any one. On the contrary, the late Mr. Oldendorff would rather have suffered himself than by any act or deed of his own to have caused his fellow man to feel aggrieved. His society and his friendship were always sought after. Frequently have men gathered around him to reap the benefits to be derived from his conversational gifts. By his courtesies and associations many are indebted to him. He is dead and his friends will now make this acknowledgment in all sincerity. A man is never appreciated in flesh; it is only when he is dead that we wonder how the blank he has left can be filled up. He was pre-eminently a man who attended to his own business. And yet he is gone! Sorrow's deepest sigh has been sent up for him, and mourners with heads bowed low in grief and anguish, have swelled the funeral cry which witnessed the covering of the face of our departed friend forever.
