Gov. Scott and the Miles.

The Southern Guardian, that faithful old sentinel, which so long stood upon the watch-tower of Southern Rights takes up the speech of Gov. Scott recently made in Congress, and gives it a full showing up. The contrast between Gov. Scott and Gen. Grant, tells heavily against the former. We are not surprised at his feeling insecure in South Carolina, for he must be painfully conscious that he has deeply wronged a people who, once prosperous and happy, but who have been conquered by brute force, and are now languishing beneath oppression's heel.

We give below, the article referred to: GOV. SCOTT VS. GEN. GRANT "The remarks attributed to Gov. Scott, as given in our issue of yesterday, are to be invested with some importance—not so much because of the man, as because of the office he holds. We regard his reference to South Carolina as offensive and uncalled for. At the same time, his remarks, conceived in the spirit of the braggart, and singularly inappropriate in one claiming to be the chief magistrate of the people of South Carolina, may be regarded as characteristic. Gov. Scott refers to the campaign of 1868. The history of that campaign, so far as he is concerned, and as respects his dealings with prominent gentlemen in this State, has not yet been given, and when it does see the light, it will reveal the present valiant Governor in other and truer colors than those in which he presents himself before an audience in the far off city of Washington. Now he puts on the lion's skin, and roars like a lion. Has he forgotten the time when, affected by unnecessary alarms, he was as gentle as a lamb? But it is the rule for timid natures, when imaginary dangers are no longer felt, to affect a valorous role and to seek to excuse their baseless alarms. Gov. Scott speaks of the "Southern Confederacy," and talks of the "rebel element"—thus pandering to the feelings which good men, both North and South are seeking to ally, and thus to have a Union restored indeed. Let us say to Gov. Scott that the "Southern Confederacy" need not occur to him to disturb his nerves. The men who sustained that cause surrendered at the order of Lee, Johnson, Taylor, and Kirby Smith, and like honorable and brave soldiers, are mindful of their new obligations. But the Governor refers to the "rebel element." We know of no such element, in sense in which he uses the term. But there is a rebel element in South Carolina, the South, and in the North and in the West, also. We mean the element disposed to rebel against official dishonesty, bribery, thieving extravagance, and political meanness in general. We mean the element that opposes wickedness in high places as well as low places. We mean the element that demands economy, retrenchment and reform in public affairs. We mean the element that insists upon it that the few shall not fatten while the many grow poor. We mean the element that opposes the political vampires that all through the South are drawing the blood from prostrate States and impoverished communities. If this is rebellion, then there is a "rebel element" at the South, and long may it rebel. But we differ from Gov. Scott, and the "element" referred to differs from Gov. Scott in this: He prefers "the Winchester rifle"—we, albeit not unused to that weapon, prefer the peaceful remedy of the ballot, and with the ballot we hope to make our rebellion against corrupt government good. But enough on this point. Let us now contrast the spirit of Scott with Grant—"the man of war" with "the man of peace." General Grant, with a magnanimity that does him honor and which is suggestive of the terms accorded by him at Donelson, Vicksburg and Appomattox, is looking anxiously forward to the time when he can propose a measure of general amnesty, and from his chair at Washington hold out the olive branch to an harassed people—Gov. Scott, in a different spirit, proposes to keep old wounds open, and spurning the banner of peace and good will, holds aloft the "Winchester rifle" as the symbol of government in the South. "I tell you," says Governor Scott, "that the Winchester rifle is the best law." Thus stands Grant, and thus stands Scott. Judge ye between them. In the coming election we desire all citizens entitled to vote to cast their ballot. We desire to coerce no man—to intimidate no one. We want fair play. We want equal and exact justice. But, judging from Gov. Scott's warlike utterances, we have been led to suppose that he imagines that he can effect something by intimidation. It looks like he was disposed to intimidate some of those rulers who rest their power upon the bayonet and the rifle. Let us say to him that if this be so, he is reckoning without his host. Those who intend to vote against the present rule in South Carolina will do so. They will abide the laws of the land—they will adhere with calmness and discretion to the laws of the State and of the United States, but they will exercise with these their rights extended to them under the laws of the State and of the United States, and that he never felt greater danger on a picket line" than he did in South Carolina "during the (political) campaign of 1868." Just so! But the "picket line" of his affections must have been an exceedingly safe place, or else "His Excellency" is as easily scared as Congressman Hoge.

Respectfully

FRIDAY NIXON, who was tried and convicted at the November term for the murder of DICK RICHARDS, on the night of the 24th September last, on Ashley River, and sentenced to be executed in Charleston on Friday last, was granted a respite of twenty-eight days, by D. T. CONNIN, acting Governor, in the absence of Gov. SCOTT, who has gone North to negotiate for "Winchester rifles."

[For the Democrat.] Whittemore's Defence.

He is sorry he sold the cadetship. Of course he is, because that deed of darkness came to light, and caused him to lose a fat office. His zeal for school houses, he thinks ought to cover a multitude of sins. He is fully up with the Jesuits—a very popular sect just now—in making the end sanctify the means. According to his philosophy—if the diabolical culprit, Paul Brown, after knocking Mr. Dickson down, had found a thousand dollars in his pocket, and appropriated it to building school houses, instead of being sentenced to the gallows, he might have occupied a lofty niche in the temple of fame, and become a luminary for the admiration of the latter day saints of the "higher law" order without whose influence, religion, morals, politics, literature &c., would be "no-where." He says his resignation was "hasty"—certainly, it was—hasty enough to dodge expulsion. A few "hot spurs" did the mischief, but strangely enough, the vote was unanimous against him.

He boasts of having edited the first loyal paper here after the war, which served to enlighten the darkness of this region, to promote harmony, and hasten reconstruction. Great blessing these, for which he ought to be remembered and sent back to Congress! Well—let him go—he will be less obnoxious there, than here, and be with "hale fellows well to do," who are waiting to give him a hearty welcome. Perhaps his conscience there will satisfy him that he was victimized for speculating on a scale so pitiful as a $2000 cadetship, and learn him to operate on a scale of grandeur corresponding with the dignity and elevation of the grand Sanhedrin at Washington. If it must be so—be it so.

A Wonderful Southern Discovery.

In the South Liver complaint and bilious disease prevail to so great an extent, there has long been felt a need of a medicine that would act specifically and promptly on the Liver, restoring it to its normal functions; and at the same time be safe from after effects, and yet so simple that it might be used by any one. It is claimed that Dr. T. W. Veitch's Vegetable Liver Pills supplies this want. They act directly on the Liver; their constant use will not injure in the slightest degree the most delicate constitutions. Females at all periods may use them with great benefit, and realize great relief from the distressing nausea which they experience at certain times. These pills are not recommended as a universal cure-all, but simply for diseased Liver, and those maladies which follow a derangement of that important organ, such as Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Costiveness, Piles Jaundice, Sour Stomach, Ladies Heartburn, Chills and Fever, Foul Breath, Restlessness at night, and Flatulency. These invaluable pills may be found in every Drug Store of any note in the South and West.

Safe! sure! reliable! is Wineman's Worm Candy.

We think we are doing our readers a favor by calling their attention to the handsome catalogue of the well known Agricultural Warehouse of Messrs. R. H. ALLEN & Co. of New York City, the oldest and largest establishment there. The Retail Seed Catalogue has numerous illustrations of the novelties and specialties in vegetable, grain and grass seeds, and, though expensive, is sent to all applicants on receipt of stamp or prepaid postage. They also deal largely in Agricultural Implements and Machines, and small tools of every kind for Farmers, Gardeners and Stock Raisers use, and publish a large catalogue, which is a handsome volume of about 300 pages with nearly 700 illustrations of the latest and most improved articles in their line; among them many things which our farmers ought to have, and which they cannot buy at any of our local stores. Of course this is a costly book, and they charge $1 for it, but even this is refunded to the purchaser when he sends an order; so that in reality it costs nothing. Even if it did, we should advise every man who owns any land, no matter how small, to get a copy now. Their address is P. O. Box 376, N. Y. City.

Having six counties to operate in, viz: Darlington, Marion, Chesterfield, Marlborough, Horry, and Georgetown, it will be impossible for me to attend to all who may wish repairs made on their Gins in the Fall season, in so large a scope of country, therefore I would say to the Farmers of Darlington and adjoining Counties interested to send in their orders now, and have their Gins repaired for the coming season, as I expect to work entirely in the other counties during the season. Persons desiring my services will confer a favor by obtaining as many jobs in their section as possible for me. I am prepared to sharpen Saw, Mill Boxes and Trucks, and to put your Gins in splendid order. Orders will receive attention in due time, at your residences. Payment for work will be made easy.
