WEDNESDAY, APRIL 6.

[Editorial Correspondence.] MELROVILLE, ORANGE CO. FLA., March, 20th, 1870.

Here we are, up or down the St. John's, and its hard tugging which. We are at the head of navigation for moderately sized steamers, drawing three feet water, and are informed that we are high up on the river, but somehow we are very much impressed with the idea that we are "away away away down South in Dixie" and feeling that we have heard, seen, and enjoyed much more in the few days past, since leaving Darlington, than it is possible to condense into a single communication, and more especially at a time and place, where every inducement offers for throwing aside the pen in exchange for the rifle or fishing rod, and when satiated with these pleasures, to vary by a ramble thro' the Orange groves; and very naturally put off to a "more convenient season" spinning yarn on paper; but there seems to be but little difference of seasons here, if all reports are true—"December, as is pleasant as May" and we are of opinion 'tis a little more pleasant than May, considering the hot weather experienced yesterday and to day—therefore, without further delay—proceed with a hasty outline sketch, of our trip thus far.

On reaching Charleston, after a few hours stroll about the city we found ourselves and party comfortably lodged on board the steamer "Dixie," of the Florida and Charleston Line. When we saw "Comfortably" we mean it in the full broad sense of the word, everything conducive to comfort, neat, clean, and commodious state rooms, and saloons; intelligent, courteous, gentlemen for officers, with attentive servants and bounteous fare, caused us to congratulate ourselves that we had chosen this route in preference to the rail route.

The steamer left her wharf about half past 8 o'clock on Tuesday evening last, and was soon over the bar, where with a stiff breeze we did not require a long argument from Mr. NERUSK, to satisfy us thoroughly that it was just as cheap to lie down as to sit up, whether we slept or not, thus convinced, we retired from the deck, where the argument was held by "the sweet silver light of moon," and under the serious conviction, that something disagreed with us, beat a hasty retreat to our state-room, and there laid as still as a mouse, until sleep came to the rescue. On awaking we found the steamer nearing her wharf at Savannah; breakfast over we were ready for a short tramp on Georgia soil; by the steamer remaining until three o'clock in the evening we had several hours to spend in "the Forest city"; the steamer presents a busy scene of commercial activity, quite a number of vessels of heavy tonnage were in port, besides the fleet of smaller craft. We were too late in the market to form much of an opinion as to how it was supplied, but from all appearances, insofar that the supply is good as to quantity and variety, especially in the fruit, vegetable and fish departments. Here too we observed healthy, vigorous orange trees in bloom and at the same time retaining a goodly quantity of ripened fruit. There is much to be seen in this beautiful place that speaks a high degree of taste and refinement for its inhabitants. The City Park, with its shell walks, fountain, and shady groves is truly a delightful place for recreation.

Our next morning after leaving Savannah, dawned as we entered the mouth of the St. John's. We had touched at Fernandina, during the night, consequently saw nothing of the place. We will not attempt at this time, a description of the St. John's. The scenery is magnificently varied, striking the tourist with peculiarities that can be claimed by no other river on this continent. After passing Jacksonville, the stream loses all resemblance to a river and presents more the appearance of a chain of beautiful lakes, which continue as far up as Piletka. Here, after a few hours walk around the place, we reluctantly removed bag and baggage from the Dictator to the steamer Starlight; the river no longer affording sufficient depth of water for so large a boat as the Dictator.

Here we can but return our thanks to Mr. L. M. COXETER, JR., the modest, unassuming, modest Partner of the Dictator, for his many kind attentions throughout the trip, seeing our party on board the Starlight, and paving the way for our making new friends. Here too, we met, in the Captain of the Starlight, a familiar name and face, Capt. MANSFIELD, long and favorably known in our Post-Office section, as a veteran in the steamboat business, who with his attentive Partner, soon made us feel once more at home. After leaving Piletka, we were not long in reaching Lake George, the largest of the chain, the farther shore receding from the view, had much the appearance of a calm ocean, after passing through one or two smaller lakes the river becomes narrow and tortuous with low muddy banks thickly wooded in places, alternating with lagoons, marshes, and occasionally with extensive Prairie.

and continued for the greater lively and exciting scene, very ride, show gun, and pistol. The warm sunshine had come to melt the snow, from one to another, here the 'Red, and in a common cause.

against the reptile kingdom. The forward deck of the steamer was occupied by the ladies and neutrals, the sharpshooters, and dull ones too, took position on the top, and everything from a coat to an aligator was duly honored with a volley. Some were made to jump in, and others out of the water. No reliable estimate of the killed and wounded will ever be made.

The miserable reptiles were not altogether without sympathizers; there was not wanting among the numerous passengers a few of those Philanthropic, tender-hearted, Paralytic specimens of female Yankeeism; who, as we suppose, from the want of a proper "fellow-feeling in their bosoms" could laugh at Southern blood and suffering as nothing; yet shed crocodile tears over a dying alligator, and put up a most piteous plea for the poor, innocent creature.

I may be wrong in my surmise as to the cause of such inconsistency; perhaps 'tis natural with them to love the negro and the alligator, as they strongly resemble in color and scent.

Our remarks on Yankeeism, is by no means intended as generally applicable. We have met a good many Northern gentlemen, and ladies from whose society we have derived much pleasure during our travel.

Our present stopping place is situated on the southern shore of Lake Monroe, opposite the village of Enterprise. Melroville takes its name from Capt. Mellon, who was killed here in an encounter with the Indians. The lake is a pretty sheet of water, some five or six miles wide, with a sandy beach gently sloping into the deep water. The lands surrounding, and immediately adjoining the lake are generally low and flat, with a dense growth of palmetto, live oak, &c., with a small undergrowth, evidently good soil, but very difficult and expensive to clear and prepare for cultivation. This description of land extends to a few hundred yards from shore, when it gently rises into a pine barren interspersed with small ponds and lakes, the higher portions having a growth of scrub-oak. To all appearances the land in its wild state presents quite an unfavorable and uninviting aspect to the farmer in search of land, all the evidences of a miserably poor soil surround him; scattering scrub-oak, white sand, and wire grass, are to be seen on every side, and were it not that others who are acquainted with the hidden virtues of the soil, and are practically demonstrating them, few indeed would ever dream of settling here.

After a walk of about one mile from the steamer's landing, over a sandy road, through a very desolate tract, all at once, arising a slight elevation, and "Præsto!" what a change, we were entering a magnificent grove of more than a thousand orange trees, all fragrant with blooms, with here and there the bright luscious fruit, peeping through the rich foliage, still farther on and before getting through the grove, we observed a row of Lemon trees, presenting somewhat the appearance of tall hedges of Osage orange, and semi-tropical plants, all seeming to flourish as though they felt at home. Sweet potatoes and cotton of last year's planting are still growing. We could here realize to the full extent, our change of latitude, not only in the tropical fruits, but in the evergreens with which we sought the shade, and the ladies of our party in purchasing sun-downs and parasols. This portion of the State is now attracting attention, on account of its perfect adaptation to the raising of most of the tropical fruits.

There is quite a number of Carolinian and Georgians, who from the nucleus of what promises to be a very flourishing and delightful neighborhood. The remarkable kindness, sociability, and intelligence of those with whom we have been thrown, has very much endeared the place and its good people in our memory—especially are we indebted to Mr. MARTIN, of "The Lake Monroe House." This hotel is within a hundred yards of the landing—Melroville boasts of another excellent hotel, kept by Maj. MARKS, with a name not to be found in "Webster's unbridged." We can remember it, and suppose that the Major must have gotten it from some of those un-reconstructed red fellows in the Everglades.

Should any of our readers get "Orange on the brain" or having any reason for visiting this section of the State, and at the time desire to meet one of the most accommodating landladies anywhere, under the Lord's heavens, just step off the boat at Melroville, and ask for Mr. MARTIN, and you will find what you are looking for—and when you reach his hospitable roof you will then see what you have read of. "The Lady of the Lake," the estimable wife of a worthy man.

You will also find in Mr. EVANS, who is a joint partner in the hotel, a clever, quiet gentleman, whose amiable lady, did much to render our stay at Melroville a pleasant one.

MORE ANON.

Mr. Whittemore.

We expect to publish next week, Mr. Logan's speech delivered in Congress, in opposition to the motion to postpone the consideration of the resolution to expel Mr. W. from the House of Representatives.

Mr. Logan, is Chairman of the Committee on "Military Affairs," from which the resolution was reported. He therefore, speaks knowingly; he fulfills the defence which Mr. W. attempts now to find upon his own; and exposes the rascality of his transactions.

properly away" Massachusetts' morality to be sure. The country owes Mr. LOGAN a debt of gratitude, for the fearless and manly way in which he exposes the Preacher speculator.

"Corporal of the Guard!!!"

Rob't. K. SCOTT, says he has been on picket for two years. That he has—and he has Picked it (the Treasury) pretty close too.

Bulling Passions.

We had supposed that "His Excellency's" propensity for rifling had been nearly satisfied—We were mistaken. (Vide R. K. S.'s Washington incoherencies.)

The Census Fraud.

We notice that the Marion Star has published an article showing that there has been a fraud practiced upon the people of that County in the Census returns. This is but another trick of the designing "Down-Easter" to carry a monetary point.

OUR BOOK TABLE.

Rural Carolinian for April.—On time and crowded. As much reading matter in this particular line as any farmer can well dispose of before the next will be out. And variety withal. Articles that excel for literary excellence, unpretending articles chock full of facts, article that combine the two. "Agriculture in Education," by Wm. Pinkey Starke, can be read with equal profit and pleasure by the philosopher and the planter.

"My Plantation is a well considered planter's Utopia. Snarl's "Short comings in Farming" will touch many readers in a tender place. "Novel and Curious Vegetables," handsomely illustrated, is worth the year's subscription. But why attempt a selection, much less an enumeration of the good things in this unusually good number of an unusually good magazine. The table of contents occupies an entire page, and there is not an article that the thoughtful farmer will neglect to read.

The Rural Carolinian, contains monthly sixty-four pages of reading matter beautifully illustrated, is published for the wonderful small sum of $2 per annum, by Walker, Evans & Cogswell and D. Wyatt Aiken, Charleston, S. C.

The Sumner News.

The enterprising go-ahead paper, published at Sumter S. C., by Messrs. DARR & OSTERS—two practical printers—announces a new Original Story, from the pen of the talented author JOHN WITHERSON ERVIN, entitled "The Mysterious Marriage," to be commenced on the 1st of April, which will be followed during the year by other Original Stories by the same distinguished writer.

Home Magazine.

The work has again made its appearance in our table. For a long time it has been absent, and we are glad to give it a hearty welcome. It is as full of interest as ever and contains much that is useful and instructive, especially to the Ladies. The fashion plates are superb. Send 20 cents for specimen copy, to T. S. Arthur & Sons, Philadelphia.

[For the Democrat.] PRO BONO PUBLICO.

A Day Well Spent.

With some others, we went to the growing little "city" of Florence, on Saturday last, to see and be seen, notwithstanding the wet weather, and the low price of gold, our old friend, "Mac Houdrix," the popular and gentlemanly Conductor of the C. & D. R. R., handed us safely in the promised "big city" just for fifty cents. We met many familiar faces, and as many old friends who greeted us in the good old style. A small walk about the town proved the energy of our Florence friends. In spite of the dull season, the work of improvement goes bravely on. The merchants are cheerful, and are getting ready for the spring trade. Among the improvements now going up, we notice the very elegant mansion of our old friend, Wm. H. Brown, also, that of the Ashley, and the new store of Mr. Wiesenberg. I. H. Husbands' new shops, the great improvement Capt. Currie has made at the car shops of N. E. R. R., and sundry other marks of good cheer spirit (if I may use the term) as to business, the retail trade at present seems flat, but the public spiritedness, Messrs. M. Jacobi & G. M. Soll, are driving a very extensive wholesale business in Corn, Bacon, Flour, Syrup, Sugars, Coffee, &c., &c., and all kinds of family supplies, and plantation wants. Every Saturday is Auction day at Mr. Jacobi's wholesale store-house, and Mr. Soll, the auctioneer, conducts things in his usual good business style. All of us know him, and all know he is the right man in the right place. His business capacity, as well as his kind and gentlemanly manner has won for him a host of friends. No one who goes to Jacobi's sales, white or black, but have a good word to say for friend Soll. His neatness, quick and pleasant way of auctioneering of the lots of good things, as well as his determination to please, and do the right thing for everybody, has justly a powerful influence on the crowds who attend the auctions, and we congratulate Mr. Jacobi in the choice of the man to conduct this large business. The display of Goods on Saturday was very large, it reminded us of the large wholesale business of Charleston and other city establishments, certainly the largest that we have ever seen in a country place. Everything of first quality and in great quantity, no misrepresentations, no loose system, but a square auction, and a liberal and extremely accommodating spirit on the part of all concerned. Our own purchases of Saturday could not be duplicated by Charleston, at the prices we paid, and we had the advantage of seeing what we were about to buy. Mr. Jacobi, who is so favorably known, deserves great praise, the thanks and the cordial support of every man of sense in the country, for the public spirit and enterprise he has displayed in undertaking such a "big thing." He is very liberal and pleasant. After a few minutes chat with him, we were pleased to learn that he had fully determined to continue these auction sales, and wholesale business, and that the liberal patronage, and good wishes of the people warranted him in doing so.

Owing to the inclemency of the weather, many who wanted to be there, had to stay at home, but in spite of the rain, among the crowd we met such thorough going business men as G. J. W. McCall, Capt. McSwain, L. W. Lide, Dr. Norment, H. E. P. Sanders, S. Burch, Dr. Johnson, P. C. Coggeshall, A. P. Lucas, Mr. Hanby, and last, but not least, our beloved parson, Rev. J. O. B. Dargan. The sale went off well and at living prices, and all who bought went home well pleased indeed. A very large quantity of corn, wheat, sugar, molasses, flour, coffee, &c., was sold, and a rough glance at friend Soll's sales book showed us that the day's sale would be something like $25,000 or $30,000.

We are now fully satisfied with entering Florence, and Jacobi's auctions, for we went, we saw, and we bought. We regard these auctions a God send, and to be attended with advantage by everybody, and I know of no better mode of stating those facts, than through the columns of the DEMOCRAT.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

Having just received another cargo of Phoenix Guano direct from the islands, we fill all orders for either of the following valuable Fertilizers: Phoenix Guano; Wilcox, Gibbs & Co's Manipulated Guano; Guano Salt and Plaster Compound. The "Manipulated" and the "Compound" are prepared by us at Charleston and Savannah Ga. Professor Shepard, State Inspector, says of them: "I can heartily recommend these Fertilizers, not only on account of their physical properties, but on account of their chemical properties." Pamphlets containing analyses and numerous certificates from planters furnished on application. Orders promptly filled by WILCOX, GIBBS & CO., Importers and Dealers in Guano, No. 64 East Bay, Charleston, S. C., No. 99 Bay Street, Savannah, and No. 243 Broad Street, Augusta, Ga.

It is commonly supposed that there is a general equality of happiness; but this would be at least contrary to analogical presumption. Health, beauty, strength, intellectual endowments, influences, are all distributed in endless proportions. Besides, only let two persons placed together in contact—what would be the result? In the health and manly vigor of the one who used the "Old Carolina Bitters" is beheld such a marked contrast to his sick and emaciated companion; and he, too is persuaded to take advantage of the curative properties of this sterling remedy.

UNPRECEDENTED SUCCESS.—Within the past year, fifty thousand boxes of Dr. Tait's Vegetable Liver Pills have been sold, and not a single instance is known where they have failed to restore health, and give these pills.
