THE GREAT CAUSE

OR

HUMAN MISERY.

Just Published in a Sealed Envelope.

Price six cents.

A Lecture on the Nature, Treatment, and Radical Cure of Seminal Weakness, or Spermatorrhea, induced by Self-Abuse, Involuntary Emissions, Impotency, Nervous Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Consumption, Epilepsy, and Fits; Mental and Physical Incapacity, &c.—By ROBERT J. CULVERWELL, M. D., author of the "Green Book," &c.

The world-renowned author, in this admirable Lecture, clearly proves from his own experience that the awful consequences of Self-Abuse may be effectually removed without medicine, and without dangerous surgical operations, bandages, instruments, rings, or cordials; pointing out a mode of cure at once certain and effectual, by which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This Lecture will prove a boon to thousands and thousands.

Sent under seal, in a plain envelope, to any address, on receipt of six cents, or two postage stamps.

Branchville News and Gossip.

BY HAROLD.

The Order of the Knights of Honor is progressing finely.

Mr. J. D. Rhoads has had a ditch cut from his premises across main street.

The footways over the several stop holes between here and the river are in a wretched condition.

Branchville hasn't seen a fresh piece of beef for a, these many days. Where are the butchers?

Mr. D. D. Myers is having his handsome new residence on main street painted. It is an ornament to the place.

Considerable ditching is being done under the direction of the present Council. A lick with a spade hereabouts is never amiss.

The shad season is over and fisherman have taken in their nets and seines. Now for the red breast and bream and—any other kind the angler can hook.

Mr. Joseph Tobish, a young man who always did hard work for the Democrats on elections days, has left here for a home in the North. The well wishes of friends attend him.

Mr. Isaac Loryca of Lewisville has been spending several days here with his brother, Mr. L. W. Loryca. He says Branchville is progressive but Lewisville is "more so."

The days are getting long and tedious now, and to beguile the monotony of the afternoons "the boys" occasionally get up a rabbit chase. A couple of packs of splendid hounds are always taken along, after the rule is that no one shall shoot anything, a regulation that has never been violated save by our horse doctor. These hunts afford splendid sport, one of these a few evenings since resulting in the death of seven "cotton tails."

There is a certain store plaza in Branchville into which it is his satanic majesty were to swoop some afternoon, he would find no trouble in catching a goodly number of his disciples, amongst whom would be some old offenders.

L. W. Loryca while handling his gun a few evenings since in his store, preparatory to a rabbit hunt, fired it off accidentally, the load of shot going completely through the opposite counter, and making a lodgment in the wall beyond. This is what comes of parents allowing children to play with fire-arms.

It is certainly the duty of the Council to look after the hygiene of the place; and yet after this there are several houses here in the heart of the town under which water from one to sixteen inches deep lies for days, thereby engendering typhoid fever and other diseases. Intendant Reeves makes a model officer, but he should appoint a board of health with power to abate nuisances.

South Carolina Oratory.

O'Connor not Extreme Enough for the Fenian Organ.

The climate of South Carolina seems to be as favorable for Oratory as that of Italy is reputed to be for Music. The crop is perennial. Not crops of mere rhetoricians, but of men of thought and purpose. John C. Calhoun was all logic—"logic on fire," as Gen. Shields says. Of pupil orators Dr. Ficker of Charleston was the most eloquent we have ever heard. It is needless to say anything of the renowned Dr. England, whose fame is known on both sides of the Atlantic. Of all the bishops in the United States to-day Bishop Lynch, the successor of Bishop England, is intellectually the head and front.

And now South Carolina opens her eloquent mouth once again in the person of M. P. O'Connor, on the floor of Congress, whose brilliant speeches — when his tongue is once let loose — will make musical the halls of the National Legislature and recall the silver trumpets of a generation gone by.

But to what purpose will this flood of eloquence be poured out? Is it to win a niche for the orator in the temple of Fame, or to advance the cause of God and Man? Mr. O'Connor is an honorable gentleman. He could not be induced, under any possible circumstances, ever to stoop to anything mean or dispicable, or to oppose anything that he conscientiously believed to be for the common good; but Mr. O'Connor, while he would do knightly service against the noxious pretensions of a hereditary aristocracy, is not, we fear, entirely free from the trammels of professional and "society" aristocracy, and whilst the Democratic party has an unquestionably won a valuable acquisition in the man, and whilst we, amongst others, must enjoy his orations as masterly literary treats, we cannot help regretting, at the same time, that he has "given to party what was meant for mankind." Yet an agreeable disappointment may be in reserve for us.—Lehigh Herald.

A Cheerful Heart.

A merry or cheerful countenance was one of the things which Jeremy Taylor said his enemies and persecutors could not take away from him. There are some persons who spend their lives in this world as if shut up in a dungeon. Everything is made gloomy and forbidding. They go mourning and complaining from day to day that they have so little, and are constantly anxious lest what little they have should escape out of their hands. They look always upon the dark side, and can never enjoy that is to come. This is not religion. Religion makes the heart cheerful; and when its large and benevolent principles are exercised, men will be happy in spite of themselves. The industrious bee does not complain that there are so many poisonous flowers and thorny branches in his road, but buzzes on, selecting the honey where he can find it, and passing quickly by the place where it is not. There is enough in this world to complain about and find fault with, if men have the disposition. We often travel on a hard and uneven road; but with a cheerful spirit, we may walk therein with comfort and come to the end of our journey in peace.

Tired of Politics.

We have, upon various occasions, endeavored to impress upon the Republicans the fact that the negroes are growing tired of the part they have been misled to play in politics. At a meeting of negroes in Philadelphia the other day, ex-Congressman Cain, of South Carolina, boldly announced that his race desired to be let alone in future—supplementing in this respect, the recent remarks of Frederick Douglass. "Let us alone to take our chances," he said, "just as you do with other people," and he advised colored men to drop politics and give attention to their mental improvement. At the same meeting another negro named Tanner called attention to the fact that there is a general disposition, more prevalent at the North than at the South to refuse work to the negro. The blacks he said, are everywhere told at the North, "you may stand by my side at the ballot box, but not at the loom, the furnace, or the work-bench," and he might have added, not in office. The colored men are opening their eyes to the inwardness of Republicanism.—Atlanta Constitution.

A War Against Whiskey.

The annual meeting of the Grand Lodge of Good Templars, which has just adjourned, has instituted a movement which is destined to create a profound sensation in this State. The unanimity with which the resolution was adopted calling a Convention of all Temperance organizations in South Carolina, to meet in Columbia, to consider the best measure of advancing the common cause, shows that the members of the Convention, representing a very respectable element of the community in all parts of the State, feel that the time for combined and earnest action against the evils of intemperance has arrived, and that they are determined to push the war against whiskey. There is no doubt that the indiscriminate consumption of ardent spirits in this Commonwealth, as elsewhere, is the cause of great and growing social evils. Whether our Temperance friends will adopt the best method of combating the ills of which they justly complain, remains to be seen.—News and Courier.

To Young Men.

Some old genius gives the following elegant advice to young men who "depend on father" for their support, and take no interest in business, but are regular drones in the hive subsisting on that which is earned by others:

"Come, off with your coat, clinch the saw, the plow-handles, the axe, the spade—any thing that will enable you to stir your blood. Fly around and tear your jacket rather than be the recipient of the old gentleman's bounty. Sooner than play the dandy at dad's expense, hire yourself out to some potato patch, let yourself out to stop holes, or watch the bars, and when you think yourself entitled to a resting patch, do it on your own hook. Get up in the morning, turn around at least twice before breakfast, help the old gentleman, give him now and then a lift in business, learn how to take the lead, and not depend upon forever being led, and you have no idea how the discipline will benefit you. Do this, and, our word for it, you will seem to breathe a new atmosphere, possess a new frame, treat a new destiny, and you may begin to aspire to manhood."

A Sweet Temper.

No trait of character is more valuable in a woman than the possession of a sweet temper. It is like the flowers that spring up in our pathway, reviving and cheering us. If men can never be made happy without it. Let a man go home at night, wearied and worn out by the toils of the day, and how soothing is a word dictated by a good disposition. He is happy and the cares of life are forgotten. A sweet temper has a soothing influence over the minds of the whole family. Where it is found in the wife and mother, you observe kindness and love predominating over the natural feelings of a bad heart. Smiles, kind words, and looks characterize the children, and peace and love have their dwelling place there. Study then, to acquire and retain a sweet temper. It is more valuable than gold, and captivates more than beauty, and to the close of life retains all its powers.

Governor Simpson has issued pardons for F. L. Cardozo and Robert Smalls. The reason for extending clemency to these men is not given. To plain people it will appear to be a great abuse of the pardoning power. These men were not guilty of political offenses, neither were they obscure persons, who had committed crimes more through ignorance than design. They are both men of intelligence and both have held high office—Cardozo having been Treasurer of the State and Smalls a member of Congress. They were convicted after fair trials and to pardon them is to mock justice. The poor man who steals a hog or a sheep must serve his term of imprisonment, while these lofty scoundrels escape punishment altogether.
