

Five more families of immigrants arrived at Columbia this week. A church roof fell in, in Mexico, last week, killing over fifty persons. Guiteau reads no other book but the Bible strange to say. The crop prospect is reported as gloomy in Darlington on account of the drought. The name "Stalwart" has got into disrepute since the attempted assassination. A one armed confederate soldier knocked a man down in Chicago last week for abusing Garfield. The most delicate, the most sensible of all pleasures, consists in promoting the pleasure of others. W. W. Corcoran, the philanthropist of Washington has contributed $5000 towards the fund for Mrs. Garfield. It is coldly suggested that morphine has probably had a good deal to do with the Presidents bright remarks. The White House folks could set up a variety store with the presents that people all over the country are sending them. The difference between a cat and a comma is that one has the claws at the end of the paws while the other has the pause at the end of the clause. A Northern lady sent Rev. W. P. Jacobs a check for a $1000 for the Presbyterian Orphanage a few weeks ago. Old Mother Garfield wants to know what on earth put it into the head of that wretched man to hurt "my baby." A woman in Tennessee gave birth to seven girl babies at one time. They are all doing well. The woman is robust and hearty, but the husband is a very thin light made man. Jackson, Lincoln and Garfield, the three Presidents most notorious for wild power, have been the objects of the attempts of assassins. Guiteau, the assassin, was not too insane to write campaign documents which were distributed during the last campaign by the Republican committee. He was truly a stalwart. Gov. Foster of Ohio, has directed a circular addressed to the Governors of all the States and Territories calling for a national day of thanks giving and praise for the recovery of President Garfield. The Governors will fix and announce the day. Hon. Jefferson Davis in a private letter to a friend says, "I sincerely trust that the President may recover, and that the startling event will arouse the people to the consideration of a remedy for the demoralization which a wild hunt for office is creating. Henry Walker a colored boy was murdered in Red Oak Swamp in our adjoining county Colleton, on Saturday. The boy left Mr. Kiddocks store about dark on the night of the murder with Tom Tracy and Charles Simmons, who are supposed to be the murderers. The New York Chamber of Commerce sent Mrs. Garfield a check for $250,000 in order to relieve the President's mind as to the future of his family. It is now proposed to increase the sum and make the present national. An exchange from Cuthbert, Ga., brings the intelligence that in South West Georgia, many farmers have almost reached starvation. There are families who can find nothing to eat, and the horses are ploughed in the morning, and then let loose in the swamp to gather food for themselves until plowing time returns again next morning. In 1835, Richard Lawrence, a lunatic, attempted the assassination of President Jackson in the rotunda of the capitol. He imagined that he was king of the United States, and, being given a trial, was consigned to the Lunatic asylum to enjoy his king ship. In 1865, Edwin Booth, an eccentric tragedian, killed Lincoln in a Theatre, and died defending himself against his pursuers. And now another lunatic has attempted the assassination of President Garfield. It seems as if the Presidents are beset with lunatics. James Clyburn, a boy 19 years old living in Camden, entered the residence of John Sheorn on Sunday and fired upon him with a double barreled shot gun and then proceeded to make his escape. He was pursued by Sheorn, who seizing the gun fired the contents of the other barrel touching his assailant on the back of the head. Clyburn then took out his pistol and attempted to kill himself the ball striking near the heart. Sheorn died in a short time, and Clyburn was arrested. The difficulty was about a woman of ill fame. Two sons of Mr. Seabrook of Edisto Island, boys from 17 to 19 years of age became involved in an encounter with a negro named Cold about a week ago. They were parted however and no serious damage was done. Nothing more was thought about the matter until a few days afterwards Cold was found dead in his house, without, however, any marks of violence about him. A jury of inquest, half white and half colored, was summoned and a verdict rendered in accordance with the facts. The negroes however, on the Island became very turbulent, and it was with difficulty that a riot was prevented. They swore all along that "de buckra kill um." The coroner was to blame for not ordering an autopsy to be made.

Party Spirit. We have published in full in another column an editorial from the New York Journal of Commerce on the above subject which we esteem as so excellent that we hope it will repay perusal on the part of our readers. Party spirit has been the bane of all communities in all ages. It has embroiled Mexico with constant revolutions and internal commotions; it has lacerated England with the bloody wars of the Roses; it has caused France to reek with fratricidal strife and turmoil; and it is the rock upon which America is in peril of being stranded, unless reason resumes its sway over the minds and hearts of the people of all sections. As the Journal of Commerce truly says, the crime of Guiteau is but the natural fruit of the terrible spirit of party, and we would add that it is but the symbol of the scenes in which the rancor of this spirit, if indulged, will finally engulf us.

The Mania for Office. If any good may result from the tragic scene so recently enacted at Washington, we hope it may be the thorough awakening of our people to the enormity of the terrible scourge of the times, born of human selfishness and greed of gain, the miserable mania for office. Mr. Tilden very wisely says that he hopes the attempted assassination, which has been so appalling in its nature, may have the effect of causing the people to devise means to check the terrible evil of having 100,000 public offices put up at a grand rate at the end of every Presidential election. The effect must be demoralizing upon individual and public morals and the evil ought to be guarded against by all good citizens, who desire to promote the peace of the community and the stability of business. The Chief Marshal at Washington says that the place is infested by swarms of office seekers and many of them, like Guiteau, are religious fanatics who believe that it is the will of Providence that they should have something to do with the government.

The Road to Prosperity. The New York Herald contains an interview with Mr. C. C. Baldwin, President of the Louisville and Nashville Rail Road system which, coming as it does from a practical business man, and from a northern man too, whose prejudices may not encourage too favorable an admission for the South, is full of interest, and gives a bright view of the future of this section. Mr. Baldwin, who has visited every section of country and has carefully studied their commercial industries, speaks from a purely commercial and not from a sentimental view. He says, "I made up my mind that commercially, the South was the section of this nation that would show the most rapid development during the next decade." This development is to be brought about by immigration railroads and commerce. These constitute our road to prosperity. Politics is our bane. Intolerance of opinion checks the tide of immigration. But our people are learning better sense. Patriotism does not build rail roads, and sentiment will never make us rich. The resources of the South are unlimited. Our natural advantages far exceed those of the North. The attention of the world is being drawn to this beautiful section, and the day is not far distant when the wealth of the Union will be to a great extent transferred from the North and East to the long suffering South, if we are not drawn from the plumb line of progress by politics, and torn up by civil discord.

The examination of public school teachers will commence next Thursday. Read notice in another column.

The Latest from the President. It will be gratifying to our readers to know that President Garfield is steadily improving. This is now the eleventh day since he was shot, and great confidence is felt by his physicians that he will ultimately recover. At the same time he is, by no means, out of danger. All we can do is to hope for the best.

Public Instruction. The Georgia Legislature is now agitating the question of higher taxation for educating the people, and the Constitutionalist advises that the fund be so increased as to keep the public schools open six months, outside of the local system. The subject is a very important one for our State, and we think the people make a mistake in supposing that higher taxation will be burdensome. We now educate our children at private schools and pay the tax in addition to the tuition. Why not then save the tuition and pay all in a just and uniform tax, and thus elevate the standard of public education? We throw out this thought for the people to ponder upon carefully. In the mean time there is a practicable plan which every community can work upon. We are glad that it is meeting with favor in many parts of Orangeburg. The plan we refer to, is to amalgamate the public and private schools, by supporting the teacher from the public fund as many months as it will last, and, as soon as it is exhausted, for the patrons to come to the rescue, and support the teacher for the rest of the full term. By this means we get back the taxes and secure efficient teachers and good schools.

Another plan is the local tax system, which all towns and thickly settled communities ought to adopt. Now that the new school year will soon commence, let the people take a proper interest in the matter for the good of their children and the country. The public school system, as it now stands, could be made a great blessing, if parents in every community would only co-operate with the school officers. Let the matter be done at once. We are progressing in other matters. Why should we be laggard in that which affects the future happiness and prosperity of our loved ones?

Taxing Twice. A correspondent from Orangeburg brings to the attention of the News & Courier the injustice, under our present laws, of requiring taxes on both real estate and the mortgage given for it, which amounts to double taxation. We brought this matter before the public in an editorial during the winter, we think during the session of the Legislature. Under the present system, if a man buys a farm on time for $6000 and gives a bond and mortgage for $6000 for payment, taxes are collected on both for $12000. This is a very bad law and our next Legislature ought to rectify it at once. Either the mortgage or the land ought to be relieved of taxes.

Obituary. Died at Orangeburg, S. C., July 11th 1881, Thaddeus K. Sasportas, Jr., aged 5 months and eleven days, only son of Thaddeus K. and Mary A. Sasportas. "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of Heaven."

Y. M. C. A.—The Rooms of this Association over the store of Mr. W. Willock, on Russell street, are opened every evening in the week (except Sunday), from half-past eight to half past ten o'clock. Reading matter, games, &c., are furnished to entertain any who may be disposed to visit the Rooms. The prayer meeting of the Association has been resumed and is held every Friday evening at half-past eight o'clock. These meetings have been encouragingly attended and interesting in character. It is hoped that the young men of our town will further encourage this Association by attending this service, as well as by making use of the Rooms during the evenings it is opened. The subject for the next prayer meeting will be "The measure of service" and the reference Luke, Chapt., 36, 50 verse. We bespeak a large attendance next Friday evening at the Y. M. C. A. Rooms at half past eight o'clock, and also at the future meetings.
