

EDITORIAL GLEANINGS.

Gen. Hancock is invited to the Atlanta Exposition.

Palmetto trees are being planted on East Bay in Charleston.

Oh Harmony! How many crimes have been committed in thy name.

Miss America Cason was killed from the explosion of a kerosene lamp last week at Ninety Six.

The irrepressible Tim Hurley, a stalwart South Carolina Radical, is now a big Democrat in New York City.

A number of delegates from South Carolina are in attendance upon the National Teacher's Association at Atlanta.

Gov. Hagood and suite went up to Greenville on Monday to the meeting of the State Agricultural Society.

Justice Clifford died on Monday which causes a vacancy on the Supreme Bench of the United States.

Even John Kelley, who hates Conkling with a holy hatred, admits that the treachery of some of his pretended friends was such as men instinctively despise.

J. L. W. Matthews, the editor of the Fourche Valley Times of Arkansas, was shot last week by a "select" band of outlaws who had a grudge against him.

October 19th is spoken of as the day for Thanksgiving for the recovery of Garfield. We had better wait to see if it is the intention of Providence that he should recover.

The enforcement of the Revenue laws seems to be fruitful of violence and blood shed. There is something wrong. Let a change be made.

Mr Gladstone, the English Premier, has sent his condolence to the White House in a very feeling and complimentary letter.

An address has been issued by the citizens of Columbia calling for a State Prohibition Convention on the 27th of September.

The South Carolina Railroad will be sold to the highest bidder today at 12 o'clock before the Charleston Post Office.

Mr. Miller, Senior, being asked if he did not feel it a great honor to have a son elected United States Senator, answered, "I can tell better at the end of the term."

Dr. Bliss is reported as having said that if he had a probe on the bullet he would not draw it out. Upon which some experts do not hesitate to say that Dr. Bliss is a fool.

Mr Conkling, like "Brer Fox," will "lie low." No telling what may happen. There are startling changes in this wicked world.

The Democrats have not the slightest objection to Grant and Conkling being read out of the Republican party. Should like to have seen them thus eliminated when Hancock was running for President.

If the President lives, Dr. Bliss will be the greatest man in the land; but if he dies he will be the littlest. Is there anything that succeeds like success?

"Billy the Kid," the Mexican outlaw, a beardless youth scarcely 21, who boasts that he has killed a man for each of his years, was at last killed himself last week by a Mexican Sheriff.

Gen. J. C. Claussen of the colored militia was severely, if not mortally stabbed on Saturday night in Charleston in a street row. Cause Beechcrism.

Gov. Q. M. Roberts of Texas declined to unite with Gov. Foster of Ohio in the proposed appointment by the Governors of a day of prayer for the recovery of President Garfield. His grounds were that he is opposed to the principle of the union of church and state. He desired as much as any one else the recovery of the President, but he objected to all gubernatorial appointments of religious meetings on the above grounds.

Great indignation is expressed in Texas about it.

There is a rumor that Senator Conkling intends to visit the South next autumn, to make acquaintance with the people and, by his airs and graces and newly conceived opposition to monopolies, capture their political support.

The opposition of Gov. Roberts of Texas to the appointment by State authority of a Thanksgiving or a day of Prayer for the churches to observe, is not a new idea, nor is it confined to Gov. Roberts. We know of ministers of the gospel who oppose it not only on the ground of the necessity of keeping church and State separate, but also on the additional ground that worldly men have no right to order appointments for the church.

Drs. Gross and Hancock, two distinguished surgeons of Philadelphia on Wednesday last successfully removed, by a very delicate operation, a troublesome and dangerous epithelial growth that had formed inside the mouth of Senator Ben Hill of Ga. The affection was of a very dangerous character and has been growing about eighteen months.

THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1881.

Trembling in the balance.

In our last issue the dispatches from Washington authorized us in reporting the President as on the high road to recovery. This week the aspect is entirely changed for the worse.

State Agricultural Meeting.

The Annual meeting of the State Agricultural Society opened in Greenville on Tuesday, about two hundred prominent farmers being present from this State and Georgia.

A paper was read on the cultivation of upland cotton, by Mr. E. R. McIver of Darlington; one on the cultivation of upland rice, by Dr. J. W. Summers of Orangeburg, and another on the labor question, by Mr. C. H. Moise of Sumter.

The Overthrow of Conkling.

After a most disgusting and wearisome fight at Albany, Conkling has been overthrown, and Lapham, a man in many respects his inferior, has been elected over him as Senator from New York.

The Health of Washington.

From common report and occasional newspaper paragraphs, the health of the city of Washington does not appear to be any of the best. It is said that the malaria from the Potomac affects the atmosphere and that fever and kindred diseases from this cause are not unfrequent.

Labor and Capital.

It may be a matter of interest for us to note that wages are higher in other States, than in South Carolina. The range as taken from carefully compiled statistics is from about $25 per month, for laborers in the New England States to $41 in California.

in is the law of water seeking its level th nature. It may be said that one cause of higher wages in the Northern and Western States, is the higher state of improvement, and consequently, the greater productiveness of land in these States. We grant this. But, what is the cause of the difference of improvement? It is the combination of capital with labor.
