It is in, cram it in, Children's heads are hollow. What are teachers paid for? ... Rap it in, tap it in: What are teachers paid for? ... How the teacher crammed it in, Rapped it in, and slapped it in, When their heads were hollow.

HIRIHIQUA.

"Viva el Adelanto!" The shout of welcome blazoned echoed through the city of Santiago de Cuba (since known as Havana) when on the last Saturday in May, 1898, the gallant Hernando de Soto landed with his princely retinue.

A band of pikemen led the way, wearing iron corselets and bearing long pikes with steel heads glittering in the sun. They were followed by a band of archers with well filled quivers, and then came a small band of the newly organized halberdiers, equipped in casque and plate armor.

The conqueror of Peru was then in the prime of life and rode with chivalrous bearing upon the richly caparisoned charger just presented to him. He wore a full suit of polished steel armor richly inlaid with gold, while about his neck was the gorgeous collar of the order of the Golden Fleece, a gift from his monarch.

But to the great sorrow of Don Vasco Donna Inez was never on the plans to dismiss his troops at their daily guard mounting, their shining plumes, polished armor and glossy chargers now extending into line, then at the sound of the trumpet closing into square.

Florida! It was on the last day of May, 1898, that De Soto and his chivalric band landed at what is now called Tampa Bay and hoisted the Spanish flag as they took possession of the country in the name of Charles V.

"I am at your feet, senorita," said a gallant cavalier, approaching the window and unconsciously doffing his plumed hat. It was that worthy Hidalgo, Don Vasco Ferrallo de Figueroa, whose sacred blood and grizzled hair bore witness of his long services in the old world ere he crossed the Atlantic.

"Yes, by my faith, it is," replied Don Vasco. Then, entering the court, he soon occupied a place in the window. We have said that he had seen much service and that his hair was turning gray, yet he had not seen 50 harvest moons, nor was there a more graceful cavalier at the Adelanto's balls. Tall, compactly built, with an electric black eye and a winning smile, he was the envy of many younger Hidalgo's, while his broad chest made him the more attractive to matchmaking Donnas.

On reviewing his troops that afternoon Don Vasco was somewhat annoyed to find that one of his most trusty men at arms had brought a strapping son to share the perils of the expedition.

"What! exclaimed Donna Inez, with a look of uneasiness, 'you go to the wars again! Oh, for the sake of the Blessed Virgin do not go.' 'Nay, my fair ward, were you not just admiring the scene?'

window platform. "Do you not see this fishing armor, these spitted horses, the waving banners, these bright standards of war? Oh, you, gentlemen, you must fill it with a world of things that the echoing notes of a trumpet would make your blood surge through your veins like a mad stream."

"What! exclaimed Donna Inez, with a look of uneasiness, 'you go to the wars again! Oh, for the sake of the Blessed Virgin do not go.' 'Nay, my fair ward, were you not just admiring the scene?'

"Ah," replied the knight, with a deep sigh, "it might not avail me aught. Specially, though, my fair ward, I feel that honor calls me to join the expedition. The lady of the brave De Soto will remain here and I feel confident that she will far eclipse my poor services. So I now kiss your hand, as I must make the necessary arrangements for the management of my estates during my absence, and should I fall, Inez, remember that everything I possess will be your dower. Adios."

"My dower," exclaimed Inez, turning from the window and speaking hurriedly to herself. "I shall be a bride of the church, then, or earth will have no object that I can love." When she reached her chamber, she bolted the door; then, throwing herself upon her couch, wept long and bitterly.

For several weeks the city of Santiago was a scene of jubilee. In the daytime the cavaliers indulged in that national yet cruel amusement—halflighting. Mounted on the choicest steeds and clad in brilliant armor, the gallant knights contended for prizes of gold or for choice embroidery presented by the fair ones, whose bright eyes graced their lists. At night there were bellicose masquerades, where the future invaders of Florida mingled in the midst of his dance.

De Soto, while he encouraged his diversions, which served to train his youthful cavaliers in the use of arms and horsemanship, was not a participant in the sports. Anxiously awaiting the return of a pilot whom he had sent to discover a safe harbor for disembarkation, he occupied himself in perfecting every arrangement, nor had he a more efficient ally than Don Vasco, whose martial spirit appeared rekindled with fiery zeal. Equipping a well armed retinue of men from the vicinity of his estate, he soon had them the pride of the whole expedition.

BROKEN DOWN. But Restored to PERFECT HEALTH. By the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. "For eight years, I was, most of the time, a great sufferer from constipation, kidney trouble, and indigestion, so that my constitution seemed to be completely broken down. I was induced to try AYER'S Sarsaparilla, and took nearly seven bottles, with such excellent results that my stomach, bowels, and kidneys are in perfect condition and, in all their functions, as regular as clock-work. At the time I began taking AYER'S Sarsaparilla, my weight was only 129 pounds; I now can brag of 190 pounds; and was never in so good health. If you could have seen me before and again after using you would want me for a traveling advertisement. I swear by AYER'S and believe this preparation to be the best in the market to-day."—S. P. SMITH, 312 Poplar st., Towanda, Pa.

"Little now, I admit. But he knows how to dress a wound and take care of a sick comrade, and he is as true as steel." "Well, well," replied Don Vasco, who was pleased with the youth's appearance, "you are a worthy fellow, Pedro, and I will take the boy as my page."

As the Spaniards advanced unhesitatingly after messenger came from Hirihiqua, warning him not to proceed, but the hot-headed Don Vasco judged that this was a spur on him at last came to a tangled hammock, in which was a diurnal looking morass shaded by cypresses. This his men knew it would be impossible to cross, laden as they were with heavy armor, but Don Vasco was not so easily daunted. Putting spurs to his horse he leaped the morass, but his steed soon foundered, and fell. It was impossible for him to extricate himself, and he was in danger of sinking into the quagmire.
