

Among Our Exchanges.

A young lady in Spartanburg sent her little brother to a person with the request to come quick and perform a marriage ceremony. The person was slow, and the little boy was sent a second time. When the person arrived and called upon the couple to stand up and be made one, the young man announced that he had been joking and the marriage was declared off, to the great disgust of the person and the expectant bride. That was carrying a joke too far and that young man needs a cowhiding.—Gaffney Ledger.

Thanksgiving at Billville.

We return thanks to six subscribers for one turkey. If we were compelled to invite those six men to dinner that turkey would stand a slim chance.

We are going to try to be thankful this year, though our wealth in this world consists only in an appetite and ten children.

We take turkeys on subscription, but the trouble is, the people who patronize us are opposed to raising them.—F. L. S. in Atlanta Constitution

* Why Not?

"You will observe," said the professor, "that the higher the altitude attained the colder the temperature becomes." "But isn't it warmer up in the mountains?" asked the youth at the foot of the class, whose father was in the hardware line. "Certainly not," replied the professor. "Why do you think it would be warmer there?" "I thought the atmosphere was heated by the mountain ranges," answered the young er.—Household Words.

Twenty-five Per Cent.

The Yeoman, along with others directly and indirectly engaged in the stationery business, is in receipt of a circular letter announcing an advance of 25 per cent. in the price of envelopes of all grades. The envelope trust is the latest trust and controls about 90 per cent. of the production. The object, as announced in the beginning in the formation of the trust, was of course to "secondarize in the cost of production" and thus be of benefit to consumers at large. The result has been that when every trust has for a real object, and that is a greater profit for those who are in the combine, through restricted production, lower cost, and higher prices for the product.—Yorkville Yeoman.

THE ARMY MULE.

Deceived Tribute to a Much Maligned but Very Useful Animal.

The army mule came out of the civil war not exactly haloed, but much respected. He has won laurels in the Yanks-Spanks war, and though he will probably not get all the praise due him, he will be occasionally mentioned in song or story, and possibly in a Government report. His achievements in Cuba have been very meritorious. He went there a stranger to the climate and all unused to the horrors of war. From the quiet and peace of a Southern plantation he was plunged into the tumult and disorder of the Cuban campaign. He stood the plunge well. Serene amidst alarms, patient in toil and courageous in the fiery tests of battle he has proved himself a hero. If he has occasionally kicked, it is not more than most of those who have had anything to do with the Cuban campaign have done, and his kicking not been called hostile to the Administration. So he has not done much harm and has probably done some good.

Twelve hundred robust and heroic army mules have been sent to Cuba, and it is recorded that only twenty-two have died. They have defied all the rules of sanitary science. They haven't drunk boiled water or slept on platforms lifted from the ground. And yet they live to tell the tale and wag the tail. Much longer let to them and more pain. They are more daring warhorses and more valiant and heroic than some of the young noblemen who were "spared" into the army.—New Haven Journal Courier.
