A ROMANTIC MARRIAGE.

Miss Jennie McCollough, of Salters, Weds Mr. Henry N. Sheperd, of Wilmington, N. C.

At an early hour yesterday morning this city was the scene of a little romance in real life which had its beginning over in Wilmington, N. C. Mr. Henry Norman Sheperd, a prominent lumber dealer of a North Carolina town, and Miss Jennie McCollough, a society belle of Salters, S. C., arrived in the city shortly after midnight and proceeded to the Charleston Hotel in company with W. E. Register, of Wilmington, a confidential friend of Mr. Sheperd. Prior to their arrival Mr. Register had wired Night Clerk Motte to have a Presbyterian minister at the hotel when the midnight fast mail reached town. Mr. Motte was unable to procure a preacher in time. When the party of three appeared at the hostelry they made several unsuccessful attempts to get hold of a minister of the gospel. Finally they journeyed around to the residence of the Rev. J. W. Daniel, at 94 Wentworth street, aroused the preacher and had the knot tied at the very ungainly hour of 2 o'clock a. m. After the ceremony the happy pair went back to the Charleston Hotel.—News and Courier, Dec. 21.

Frauds and Other Frauds.

Editor Constitution: Has the endless-chain business come back again. My daughters and others are almost daily receiving letters from anxious women all over the country wanting them to buy twenty-five cherry trees at $1 apiece and thereby get an agency of $15 a month to write to other ladies and get them to buy more trees and take more agencies. Are these cherry trees descended from the tree that George Washington cut down with his little hatchet?

There seems to be another endless chain in Chicago, sprung by the Pioneer Music Company, and which says: "Dear Miss: We have just published a beautiful song, 'A Sermon to the Boys,' which by request of a friend of yours has for a pleasant surprise been dedicated to you. Your name appears on the title page in elegant, artistic style. We will be pleased to send you two for 50 cents or six for $1." Many of our young ladies have received a similar letter and some sent money before they found out the scheme.

Then again I am afflicted with letters from Virginia to Texas wanting to know if the publisher of a paper in Monticello, Fla., is my son, and will he perform his promises if they get him twenty-five subscribers at $1 each. These letters are from ladies who are struggling to earn a little money and have been assured that the Monticello man is my son and that he will give them permanent employment at $15 a month for three or four hours' daily work in writing letters. Every mail brings me one or more of these letters, and so to save answering them I wish to say that the gentleman is not my son nor any kin, nor do I know anything about him or his paper. CHAS. H. SMITH, (Bill Arp.) Cartersville, Ga., Dec. 12, 1901.

Additional Locals.

Mr. Emile Arrowsmith came up from Georgetown Wednesday morning to spend a day or two in town.

Miss Esther Gordon, who is attending the graded school, has returned to her home at Gourdings for the Christmas holidays.

The Christmas dance at the Coleman House was well attended and in every respect a most enjoyable affair. Quite a number of visiting young ladies were present.

Prof. T. Olin Epps, who is principal of a flourishing school at Hendersonville, S. C. (Colleton county) has been spending the Christmas vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Epps. Prof. Epps is well pleased with his work and his patrons are to be congratulated on having secured his services.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Jacobs entertained the following guests on Christmas day: Misses Gussie Hoffman and Cecil Hirschman, Charleston, Mabel Levy and Margie Burns, Georgetown; Mr. Eddie Jacobs, Macon, Ga.; Messrs. Julian, Clarence and Louis Jacobs, Jr., Charleston, and Mr. Nappie Jacobs, Georgetown.

We had intended to issue THE RECORD a day earlier this week, so that it would reach our readers on Xmas day. The forms were made up on Tuesday and everything was ready to "go to press," but the perverse Fate usually presiding about the festive yuletide (or the Southern Express Co.) set our plans at naught by delaying the week's supply of paper, which did not arrive until Wednesday. Of course it would have been unreasonable to expect our force to work on Christmas day, hence this issue is a few hours late, instead of a day ahead of time as was intended.

A Letter from Santa Claus to S. I. Till, of Manning,

Says to tell all the dear little children to come to his Racket Store, a Manning, and see all the pretty little Christmas Goods, Toys of a Kind, Horns, Wagons, Carriages, Dolls, Drums and everything for children.

Santa Claus calls everybody children, any age from one to seventy-five years old; so everybody come to see what he has left at Till's.

Santa Claus says he left his Goods to show and for the children to see, as Till sells everything so cheap, and the Racket Store is the place where all such goods are kept.

Now, children, if you can't come to Manning, just write a letter to Santa Claus and send it to S. I. Till, and he will keep it until Christmas night, and then all those letters will be opened at S. I. Till's store. He and S. I. Till will give out all that you ask for. Be sure and ask for something for mama and papa, as all such goods are here. And if you don't want anything for mama and papa, ask for something for your sweetheart. Now don't send your letter to any one but S. I. Till, of Manning, S. C., as his Racket store is Santa Claus' Headquarters.
