

VOL. XVIII.

KINGSTREE, S. C., THURSDAY, APRIL 17, 1902.

Steele-Cottingham.

At Gallovan, Marion county, Thursday afternoon, April 10, 1902, Mr. James Bennett Steele led to the altar Miss Bessie Collette Cottingham, skilful touch of Miss Kate Carter, the organ pealed forth Mendlessohn's Wedding March. The bridal couple was preceded by Mr. L. Cottingham and Miss Kate Cottingham - a brother and a cousin of the bridewho entered the parlor and took officiating minister. Following them of Charleston, with Mr. J. L. Young, came the bride and groom, who of Laurens, followed by the bride advanced to the centre of the room of Laurens, blowed by the bride and stood just beneath two silver hearts suspended from the ceiling while Rev. J. A. Campbell, pastor of Little Rock Methodist church, spoke the solemn words that joined them in the holy bonds of matrimony.

The bride was attired in a beautiful white organdie, trimmed with pearls and chiffon.

hearty felicitations had been offered, the wedding guests were ushered into the dining room where a delightful rapast was served.

6 o'clock evening train to Kingstree, where they will board with the familyof Dr. A. M. Snider, on Railroad avenue, until their dwelling that is building in East Kingstree is completed.

The bride is the eldest daughter of Mr. J. C. Cottingham of Gallovan, and is a highly accomplished and attractive young lady. Mr. Steele is manager of Messrs. Thomas & Bradham's sales stables at this place, and is well known and very popular in town and county.

A Coming Wedding.

With a besitting sense of apprecia-tion the editor acknowledges the following card of invitation: Mr. and Mrs. L. Stackley beautiful and impressive marriage ceremonies that has been witnessed in Eureka for years was celealtar Miss Bessie Collette Cottingnam, The wedding was a quiet, home affair, there being present only a few relatives and friends. The time set for the ceremony was 2 o'clock p. m. and premptly on the traine of wedding procession, which marched into the church to the strains of the ever beautiful march of Menwho entered the parlor and took of Eureka, with Mr. James Quinby, their places on the left of the of Graniteville; Miss Margaret Rose,

Wedding Bells at Eureka.

The bride, and groom stood under two suspended gold hearts, pierced by Cupid's silver arrow. The bride is from Senatobia, and esteem in which this happy couple was held. They left the next Mr. and Mrs. Steele boarded the morning for Greenville, where for o'clock evening train to Kingstree, the present they will make their B. L. A. home.

Eureka, S. C. April 10, 1902.

Jail Breaking.

Stone walls do not a prison make, Nor iron bars cage."

Nor from ours cage. His exit from confinement was accomplished before day break Saturday and in the coid, gray mists of the morning he flitted away. Consider-ing the utensils at hand the escape showed a certain amount of ingenuity as well as a talent for brick masonary, which might be employed to better purposes.

for brick masonary, which might be employed to better purposes. The overhead ceiling of the jail is composed of pine boards and Green (whose name belies his wily nature) had no idea of pining away in durance vile. With the leg of a heater he cut through the ceiling and made a hole through the brick and mortar of the gable end near the roof large enough to admit the passing of his body. When the jailor made his rounds saturday morth-ing he found the bird had flown.

BEYOND THE GRASP OF MAN. Last evening one of the most The Sage of Possum Fork Illustrates

the Marvets of Infinity. Editor County Record :--

I have been asked to count again in regard to the postage stamps required to send all the letters in the Kansas letter chain to the 100th term, that is if it was carried out, and also to give names so the number can be numera-ted. Names however are not essential to understand higher numbers, for the mind cannot grasp them with name or without names.

Into the church to the strains of the ever beautiful march of Men-delssohn's, was headed by Messrs. S. J. Brooks, of Aiken, and U. G. Swearingen, of Trenton, acting as ushers. Following them were the eouples. Miss Benjamine Landrum, of Eureka, with Mr. James Quinby, of Graniteville; Miss Margaret Rose, of Charleston, with Mr. J. L. Young, of Laurens, followed by the bride and groom. Miss Pearle Landrum, of Eureka, played the wedding march during the entire ceremony. The bride, and groom stood under two suspended gold hearts, pierced by Cupid's silver arrow. The bride is from Senatohia. English writers apply new names to by Cupid's silver arrow. The bride is from Senatobia, Miss., and besides posessing many charms of appearance and manner. is loved by all who know her the is loved by all who know her. She because I am not a Latin scholar, but The bilde was attired in a down full white organdie, trimmed with pearls and chiffon. Miss Kate Carter, the bride's maid, wore a handsome and stylish cos-tume of pink swiss and silk. The parlors were tastefully decor-ated with ferns and evergreens. A number of pretty and useful wedding prescuts was presented to the young couple by their admiring friends, Shortly after the ceremony, when is a graduate of Clinton in the class you can understand them all the same. rying a bouquet of roses. The and 1.000,000,000, 000, an English billion. given the bridal party by Mr. and 1.000,000,000, 000, an English billion. Mrs. Landrum. many valuable But the French plan calling a thous-presents bore testimony to the love, and millions a billion, has been adopt-ed by us and most of the nations, and I reckon old England too by now; so a new name to every new power of a thousand,-that is to every three figures, -is perhaps universal to day. But ures, — is perhaps universal to day. But the old names are still applied, how-ever unmeaning they may be, for one of our billions is only the one thous-andth part of an old English billion. All this however has nothing to do with the value of the figures. They remain the same, no matter what you call them and 3 000 000 000 000.000.

000, 000, 000, 000, 000, 000,000, 000, tons and require more ships than all the oceans of the world could hold, a thousand times over, to carry so many tons. But this is too big for me, let us look at it another way. It can be shown that said number of stamps is far greater than the whole number of leaves and blades of grass that ever grew from Adam and Eve's time till now, not because they can be counted up, but because the vegetation that grow every year is sufficient to cover the ground only a few inches yearly. But that number of postage ld he more than e

We have decided to retire from the Clothing business in order that we may devote the entire time to the Dry Goods, Shoe and illiner Business, and in order to close out our stock of clothing wickly we offer our entire stock of Clothing and Gents' Hats at 25 per cent discount.

We would also impress the fact upon our Williamsburg friends tha our stock of

