Local and Personal.

School opens Monday, September 16.

Nobody works in Florence on Labor Day.

Mr H A Meyer has been quite unwell for several days.

See notice of the general (municipal) election in this issue.

Remember that Florence's gala day is next Monday, Labor day.

A fish fry on the river was enjoyed by a congenial party last Tuesday.

Mrs G W Hightower of Denmark, S C, is visiting her sister, Mrs Nora Elliott.

Maj S M Askins of Lake City, spent Sunday with the family of H G Askins, Esq.

Miss Sadie Meyer has returned home from a pleasant visit to relatives in Charleston.

Supervisor Singletary attended the recent Good Roads convention in Spartanburg.

Dr W L McCutchen of Columbia is visiting friends and relatives in town and county.

Mr H T McClary of Salters was among the appreciated visitors at our sanctuary today.

Mr S T Godwin of Lake City was a visitor in town Monday and called pleasantly to see us.

The "fleece staple" period has arrived and it is hoped that, for a while at least, the hard times are over.

Mrs R H Kellahan has returned from Glenn Springs. She is accompanied by her cousin, Miss A M Lockamy.

When you want to buy or sell anything in Kingstree, Lake City, Charleston, or anywhere else, it will pay you to look through THE RECORD'S advertising columns.

There was an ice famine in town for a couple of days this week, but fortunately the situation has been relieved. It seems that the town gets out of ice too often now-a-days.

Commodore Constein gave the visiting Woodmen and their friends a complimentary trip on the Mercedes last Sunday afternoon, which was very much enjoyed by all who participated.

So many were here from the various parts of the county at the unveiling of the monument last Sunday that it would be invidious to attempt to give even a partial list of those present.

Mr A J Ham of Florence, who sold us our new gasoline engine is in town today. And, by the way, the "International" is a daisy. We haven't a single kick coming after using it two months.

Mr N D Lesesne, the assistant cashier of the Bank of Kingstree, has returned from a trip to Pickens, Greenville, Chick Springs and other points. His vacation was cut short by the illness of Mr Fairey.

Born, on Tuesday, August 27, 1907, to Mr and Mrs H W Shealy of Lexington, S C, a daughter. Mrs Shealy is a daughter of our townsman, Mr H A Meyer and it was at his home that the interesting event took place. The little stranger's name is Mary Elizabeth—after its grandmother.

Mr J S Eron, "The Bargain Specialist," has just returned from New York, where he purchased a large stock of up-to-date merchandise in his line. Mr Eron will soon move into one of the new brick stores on Academy street, where his large stock will be displayed to better advantage.

The outlook for business this fall is brighter than ever before in the town's history. More people during the busy season come to Kingstree in a week than used to in a month. THE RECORD reaches two-thirds of the voters in the county. If you have anything to advertise what better medium could you find?

Dr Clarence D Rollins of Baltimore, Md., who is visiting relatives in Lake City, was in town yesterday. Dr Rollins is the only son of the late lamented R D Rollins, and while we regret that he has left his native heath, still it is gratifying to learn that he is succeeding nicely in his profession in the city where he has elected to cast his lot.

Mr L H Fairey, the cashier of the Bank of Kingstree, has been confined to his bed for some days with fever. Although comparatively a new-comer to Kingstree Mr Fairey has made a host of friends. His uniform courtesy in his business relations, added to his genial personality, have gained the confidence and esteem of the public and we feel that we voice a wide-spread sentiment in hoping that he may soon be able to resume his duties in the position he fills so well.

Miss Essie McRoy of Foreston is visiting her sister, Mrs G O Epps.

Everybody loves our baby, rosy, sweet and warm, With kissy places on her neck and dimples on her arms. Once she was so thin and cross, used to cry with pain— Mother gave her Cascasweet, now she's well again. Sold by Dr. W. L. Wallace.

SAYS PROHIBITION IS BOUND TO COME.

EX-ATTORNEY GENERAL BELLINGER SAYS A GENERAL STATE LAW WILL BE PASSED.

COLUMBIA, August 23. — The Hon G Duncan Bellinger, formerly attorney general of South Carolina, who is now practicing law in Columbia, has recently made several business trips to Washington and Baltimore, and in conversation on his return he stated that there is a great deal of significance being everywhere attached to the growth of the prohibition sentiment in this country, especially in the South. Mr Bellinger has never advocated State prohibition, but he is a Democrat and believes in the rule of the majority, and he is convinced that the people of South Carolina will soon demand the passage of a prohibition law, just as has been done in Georgia and will be done in North Carolina.

"I believe," said Mr Bellinger, "that the wisest thing for the prohibitionists to do would be to enact a law giving the whole State prohibition and permitting those counties which desire to have whiskey sold therein to vote it in instead of requiring, as now, the counties which want prohibition to vote whiskey out. Under the present arrangement the whole burden is on those who oppose the sale of whiskey and this should not be. The present law makes it necessary for those opposing the sale of whiskey to get up the petitions for the election and to wage the campaign for prohibition; then after the election if there is a contest, the prohibitionists are compelled to put up funds to fight it. Those who are interested, either financially or otherwise, in the sale of whiskey will naturally be prepared to spend money to retain this privilege, but it is hard to compel the sincere prohibitionists to go down into their pockets and put up the money for such fight.

"My firm and myself personally have represented the dispensary faction in many of the contests which have been brought to test the legality under the Brice law and the Carey-Cothran law, and the suggestion I am making will not only not bring me any money, but if put into effect would cost me heavily, but I am convinced that it is the best plan to insure the success of prohibition in this State. While I was always a dispensary man as long as I was in politics, my sympathies throughout life have been with those forces making for temperance, law and order, and I admire the sincere prohibitionist.

"There is no use denying the force of the sentiment which is growing in favor of prohibition in this and other Southern States, and if the prohibitionists are wise they will substitute for the present unsatisfactory law a State prohibition law, which will cover the Commonwealth like a blanket, putting on those who want whiskey sold in any county the onus of securing an election and of instituting the dispensary. The prohibitionists have the power to do this if they choose, and it is to their advantage to do so. Personally, I should be glad to see such a bill introduced at the session of the general assembly by some sincere prohibitionist, and it seems to me that it would meet with the approval of Governor Ausel, whose inclination towards prohibition is well known." In speaking of the contests, which his firm has conducted to test the various elections on the dispensary in the last few years, Mr Bellinger said he knew that he had been criticised, but that he considered he had done his State a service if he has assisted in instructing the people how elections must be conducted to be lawfully conducted. "I have always stood for the enforcement and observance of the law," said Mr Bellinger, "no matter what the law is, and shall always do so."

Mr Bellinger has an intimate acquaintance with the whiskey laws which have been in force in this State during the last fifteen years. He was solicitor when the dispensary law was first enacted and his record for vigorous prosecution of law-breakers of all kinds stands unequalled in the court annals of South Carolina. Then he was elected attorney general when the dispensary law required daily interpretation for the guidance of the State officials and his opinions were accepted as final on the questions which he was called on to consider. Since his retirement from that office he has been engaged in almost every contest of the Brice law and Carey-Cothran law elections that have been made. Although out of office Mr. Bellinger keeps in touch with the people and knows their sentiment. — News and Courier.

A Beautiful Bull. The foreman of a grand jury in the west of Ireland had been presented for some public service with a gold watch, of which he was very proud, and as he displayed it at a dinner of the grand jury bets were made by members as to whose watch was most accurate. At last some one suggested that it was impossible to decide. "Oh," said the foreman, "there's no difficulty about that! There's a sundial in the garden, and we'll take a lantern and decide the bets that way."

Diplomatic. Stranger (watching a big row in a village inn to the landlord)—Well, they are all going for each other pretty freely except that big fellow. He lets every one hit him and does nothing.
