

MEXICAN WILD HOG.
Small but Fierce and Sometimes Used as a Watchdog.

Ranchmen in the vicinity of Colquitt, Tex., use the javeline, or Mexican wild hog, as a watchdog, says the Kansas City Star. The javeline is far superior to the ordinary dog when it comes to guarding the home and premises to which it has become attached. It is easily domesticated if taken when it is a pig. There is hardly a Mexican household in this section that does not have a pet javeline, which serves many useful purposes.

The javeline of the southwest has very few characteristics of the hog. Beyond the fact that it closely resembles the hog in appearance, it might well be classed as an entirely different species of animal.

In point of fierceness it surpasses any other animal that roams the chaparral of the southwest. It is one of the few wild animals that do not hesitate to attack man. It is feared by every deer hunter who visits the region. Innumerable instances are known of hunters having been forced to seek refuge in trees to avoid being torn to pieces by enraged javelines. They are so ferocious in their wild state that only the most intrepid sportsman will brave the dangers of hunting them.

When taken as a pig and domesticated the javeline can easily be trained to do almost any trick that can be taught the most intelligent dog. It is quick to learn to know the members of the family and will protect them against harm with its life if necessary. No strange human being or animal is permitted to enter the house or yard where a pet javeline is on guard. It has a bark something similar to that of a dog, and when danger approaches it sets up its peculiar cry.

The javeline is almost as fleet as a dog, and one javeline will whip several dogs. They weigh when full grown from fifty to eighty pounds. They are taller in the fore part of their body than in the rear. In this respect they resemble the wild boar.

The javelines in their wild state run in droves of twenty to fifty. They always travel in single file and appear to have a recognized leader. When feeding or bedded for sleep or rest one of the javelines is always on guard. Whenever a drove of animals is about to cross an open space a sentinel is first sent out to take a view of the situation. If everything is found to be clear the signal is given by the sentinel and the whole drove trots across the clearing and re-enters the chaparral.

Corner Trees Are Delicate.
A man owning corner property planted three trees, one at the corner, the other two about fifteen feet down either street. The trees down the street thrived, but the one on the corner withered and finally died. Again and again the man set out new trees at the corner, but his efforts to beautify that spot failed. Each tree made a feeble attempt to take root, but soon gave it up and followed in the way of its predecessors.

"How do you account for it?" asked the property owner of an arboriculturist. "The soil is good, and I take excellent care of the trees. Why do they die?"
"I don't know why," said the expert, "but it is a fact that a corner tree is twice as likely to die as one in the middle of the block. Look at all the dwarfed, stunted trees in New York's streets and you will find that three-fourths of the failures stand on the corner."—New York Press.

She Didn't Count.
A writer, to illustrate one view of charity, said that two old men were smoking and drinking together after dinner. The host rang the bell and an old woman appeared. "Confound you, stupid!" said the host. "Didn't I tell you I wanted the Scotch? Take this back and bring what I asked for, you old fool!" "Come, come," said the guest after the old woman had hurried away in a great fright. "Come, come, my friend, don't you think you are rather too sharp with your old servant?" "Oh," said the other, "she's not a servant. She's only a poor relation I'm keeping out of charity." The guest looked relieved. "That alters the case, of course," he said.

The Interest Worked Backward.
"Look or heck, mass," said Mr. Green, who had lent Deacon Forie $10—"I'd fuh a day or so till I draw, the request had been." "You done owe me dat money now goin' on 'leven months. Ef ye done pay me right away I gwine mok de short-iff level on yo' wages."
"Mr. Green," said the deacon impatiently, "It's interest at yo' own 'n'rich. I sho' I Deas ye know de interest done et up dat $10 long ago."
"Mr. Green is just figuring," said the deacon.

Dyspepsia and General Debility are cured by P. P. P., Lippman's Great Remedy, the superior of all sarsaparillas.
P. P. P. is the greatest tonic for the stomach that was ever known. Indigestion, Bad Dreams, and Biliousness give way rapidly to the powerful tonic and blood cleansing properties of P. P. P.

A prominent Railroad Superintendent living at Savannah, Ga. (in which city he was born), says he feels better than he ever did, and he had the worst case of dyspepsia on record. He had no appetite, and the little he ate disagreed with him, causing him to vomit often; he had pains in the head, breast and stomach; but after using three bottles of P. P. P. he felt like a new man. He says that he feels that he could live forever if he could always get P. P. P.

His name will be given on application to us. Sold by W. L. Wallace.

Those who desire to pay their taxes through the mail, would expedite matters by dropping the Treasurer a postal asking for the amount of their tax so as to avoid sending the wrong amount, also stating the township or townships, (if property is owned in more than one) and if possible give school district where property is located, also state whether poll or road tax, or both are wanted. After paying taxes examine your receipts and see if all of your property is covered; if not, see about it at once. By following the above suggestions complications and additional cost may be avoided.
