EDUCATIONAL CONDITIONS

In Williamsburg as Viewed by Expert Teacher-Some Bouquets.

Concerning the trustees' meeting held here Thursday, August 4, Prof W K Tate writes as follows to the Columbia State:

Thursday was spent in Kingstree with the summer school and the trustees of Williamsburg county, who met in joint session. The meeting of the trustees of this county was one of the most significant events not, why not? Study carefully the thich has come under my notice. Though Williamsburg is a distinctly rural county, in the movement for the consolidation of schools it, perhaps, leads the State. In the county there are eight or ten strong community schools, which have been formed by the consolidation of smaller schools. The first of these schools to be organized was the one at Rome, which now has as its principal Mr O M Mitchell, a graduate of Wofford College. It employs six | it is: other teachers, maintains a high school and, although it is twenty-five miles from a railroad, claims the distinction of preparing more pupils for college than any other school in the county. The people of these consolidated community schools are very proud of them and would under no circumstances return to the small neighborhood school. The establishment of these schools has caused rapid appreciation in land values in the neighborhood, and settlers are attracted to these communities because of their school advantages. Superintendent McCullough is assisting in the organization of consolidated schools in other parts of Williamsburg county, and expects within the next few years to have every district in the county supplied with an efficient long-term school.

The trustees of the county at their meeting in Kingstree formed a permanent organization, of which Mr B B Chandler of Rome was elected president. They will meet twice during the year, and will discuss the problems which arise in the work of the rural school trustees. A special committee was appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws to be pre-.sented at the next meeting. A special committee was appointed to secure information which will enable the trustees of the county to co-operate in the purchase of school desks and other school supplies. The trustees of this county are exhibiting an ability to co-operate which may well be emulated hy the other counties of the State. Several other counties have formed these associations of school trustees, and it is hoped that by the end of this year every county will have such an association. The formation of such organizations is one of the most significant movements now in progress. During the last ten years the town of Kingstree has more than trebled its population. This has been done without the development of any factories or new industries, which would attract a population. I asked the hotel keeper in Kingstree for his explanation of the rapid growth of the place. He attributed it to two things: First, the agricultural pros- price. We are compelled to do this perity in Williamsburg county and the consequent increase in import- It will be to your advantage to see ance of Kingstree as a trading cen- us. ter; and, secondly, the good schools of Kingstree had attracted to the town many people who wished to use its educational advantages. Both in the town and in the rural com-munity are exemplified in Williams-burg county the fact that the school is the most valuable business asset is the most valuable business asset lands, to with is the most valuable business asset land, to with 50 acres of land in Auderson township of the community. If County Super-intendent McCullough and the trus-of Williamshurg county contees of Williamsburg county con-tinue their present progressive poli-ey, this county may soon be the Wodel for the whole State. A CARD. A Very Strong Argument.

Below we give the sworn tobacco report for the month of July, 1910. You will see that only one market sold as much tobacco as Lea & Tredway sold in the Banner warehouse alone and that Lea & Tredway's average was by far the highest in the State. Did you sell with them and get the worth of your tobacco? If figures below, they speak for them-

On Tuesday, August 9, our entire sale amounting to 58,195 pounds averaged $10.67 per hundred. On that day we sold at public auction ungraded leaves as high as 221c and 27c per pound. A few days since we sold our whole curing of graded tobacco at at average of 36c per pound. The reason why we do these things is because Lea & Tredway are born warehousemen and have had more experience handling South Carolina tobacco than any two men in the State. Their new auctioneer is the talk of the country. We are selling a bigger per cent of the crop this year than ever before. Don't be afraid of over-working us. We are both in the prime of manhood and able to stand it. The dollar is what you want, so come to headquarters and get the worth of your tobacco. Your friends,

The examination for the vacant beneficiary cadetship at the Citadel Academy, Charleston, to which this county is entitled attracted seven handsome and intelligent young gentlemen last Friday. The examination, which took place in the court house, lasted nearly all day and included the ordinary branches of study, geography, grammar, history, arithmetic and algebra through "quadratics." The papers will be forwarded to the Superintendent of the Academy, who will pass upon them and select the winner of the valuable prize, which is worth just $1,000 to the successful contestant. The applicants were:
