

SPECIAL COURT IN FLORENCE

To Try Negroes Charged with Brutal Murder.

Columbia, November 12:—Governor Ansel has ordered a special term of court to try the negroes thought to have been implicated in the killing of Mr E M Moye of Ebenezer in Florence county, the court to commence the fourth Monday in November. The special term was ordered upon request of Solicitor Walter H Wells, of the 12th judicial circuit.

Clarence Ham was named some days ago as a principal in this case. He is the one who is said to have confessed, and to have implicated two other negroes, Alex Wellington and Willie Burroughs, who were placed under arrest. In Ham's alleged confession it was stated that the motive was robbery, and that Wellington did the shooting. There was considerable excitement in Florence at the time Mr Moye was killed, and it was feared that mob violence might result following the finding of the supposedly guilty persons. The excitement subsided after the arrest of Ham.

For cold-blooded brutality and the insatiate greed that instigated it, the crime committed is strikingly suggestive of the murder of the lamented Julian Wilson, at Cooper postoffice several years ago, for which three negroes paid the penalty on the gallows. On Friday night, October 28, Mr Moye returned from church with Howard Cole, a neighbor, and got out of Mr Cole's buggy at his gate. He was a widower and lived alone.

A woman living near the place claims to have heard a gun shoot about the time he is supposed to have been shot, near 11 o'clock, but no investigation was made. The neighborhood is thickly settled and is one of the best in the State. Mr Moye's own gun had been used to kill him and was found at the house.

The murderer had probably concealed himself in a room with robbery in view, for Mr Moye was known to have sold some hogs and cotton the day before. He was evidently surprised by his assailant, for though he had a pistol in his pocket, he had not attempted to draw it.

FOLEY'S URINO-LAXATIVE
FOR STOMACH TROUBLE AND CONSTIPATION

THE DARK GETHESEMANE HOUR
Matthew 26:36-40—November 20

AFTER the Master and his disciples, as Jews, had celebrated the Passover Supper and after he had subsequently instituted the Memorial of his death with the bread and the cup, and after Judas had gone out to betray him, Jesus and the remaining eleven left the upper room in Jerusalem, crossed the city to the gate and thence crossed the Valley Kedron and ascended the sloping side of Mt. Olivet toward the Garden of Gethsemane. The word Gethsemane signifies oil-press. Tradition has it that this Garden belonged to the family of which the Apostle John and James were members, and that for this reason the Lord and his disciples were privileged to feel themselves at home there. St. Mark, the writer of one of the Gospels, but not one of the Apostles, is credited with having been a member of the same family. One of the accounts of the arrest of the Master tells that amongst those who followed after him was a young man wrapped with a sheet and who fled naked when some members of the band attempted to lay hold of him. That young man, tradition says, years afterwards was known as St. Mark.

The Journey to Gethsemane

This was the most memorable night of the Master's experience. He knew perfectly the meaning of every feature of the Passover. He knew that he was the Lamb of God, antitypically, whose death was to be accomplished on the following day by crucifixion. Yet his thoughts were for his dear disciples. He must give them final words of encouragement and instruction. And so he did. Three chapters of St. John's Gospel record the incidents of the intervening time between the leaving of the upper room and the arriving at Gethsemane, the place of the oil-press. And Judas also, who betrayed him, knew the place for Jesus oftentimes resorted thither with his disciples" (John viii, 2). In St. John xiv the Master told his disciples about the place he would go to prepare for them, but that he would send the Spirit of Truth to be their Comforter and it would show them things to come. In the fifteenth chapter he gave them the parable of the Vine and the Branches and assured them that no longer should they be servants, but friends. "For all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you." In the sixteenth chapter he explained to them that persecutions must be expected, if they would share his sufferings and be prepared to share his glory.

A little while and they would not see him; then again a little while and they would see him. The entire period of his absence, from the Divine standpoint, as compared to eternity, would be but a little while. Then, by virtue of the resurrection "change," they would see him, because made like him. "In the world ye shall have tribulation; but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." "These things I have given unto you that in me ye might have peace." In the 17th chapter is recorded his wonderful prayer to the Father on behalf of his followers—not for the Apostles only, but for all those also who would believe on him through their word.

In the Garden of Gethsemane Thus discoursing they reached the Garden, or olive-yard, where the press for extracting the oil from the olives was located. Somewhere near the entrance eight of the disciples were bidden to remain watching while Jesus, with the specially beloved Peter, James and John, went a little further. And then, realizing the impossibility of even his dearest friends appreciating his sorrowful condition, he went still further alone to speak to the Father. The disciples, perplexed, astounded, by the things that they had heard from his lips, did not comprehend the true situation. They evidently thought that there must still be something parabolic in his utterances. They would indeed watch with him, but they were weary and sank into slumber. The spirit was willing, but the flesh was weak.

If some have queried why the Master preferred to be alone in prayer so frequently, the answer is, "I have trodden the wine-press alone; and of the people there was none with me" (Isaiah liiii, 2).

Judas the Ungrateful Apostate

The world is full of sadly disappointing characters. In many things we all fail. Selfishness, meanness, perversity, pride, etc., mark the human family most woefully. But withal can anyone find anything more reprehensible than the ingrate who would betray his best friend?

The world is of one opinion respecting such characters as that of Judas. And although he is a noted example he is by no means an exception; there are many. Some of them live today. But whoever can see the meanness of such a disposition with a reasonably good focus will surely be saved from manifesting such a character, however mean might be his disposition. The man who could sell his Master for thirty pieces of silver is justly in contempt with all humanity. Nor was it merely the thirty pieces that influenced the ingrate. Rather it was pride. He had thought to be associated with the Master in an earthly throne. He had set his faith upon this expectation. Now the same Master explained more fully that the throne was not yet in sight; that it belongs to an age to follow this and was to be given only to those who should prove themselves loyal and faithful unto death. In the mind of Judas the matter took not the wisest and best way. Holding the Great Teacher in contempt, the deceived one probably intended that the delivery should be merely a temporary one—a lesson to the Master not to talk that way, not to carry matters too far—an incentive to him, compelling him to exert his power for the resistance of those who sought his life and thus, in exalting himself, make good to his disciples the share in the Kingdom which he had promised or, failing of this, to wreck the entire project. Alas, the love of money, the love of power puff up and make delirious some who become intoxicated with ambition. How necessary that all the Lord's followers remember the message, "He that humbleth himself shall be exalted and he that exalteth himself shall be abased." Humble yourselves, therefore, under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time" (1 Peter v, 6).

Spiritism Said to Be Demonism.

A most interesting little brochure has recently come off the press setting forth with Bible proofs that the communications received by and through Spiritist Mediums is of Demon origin. The writer traces his subject through the Scriptures from the time when certain of the holy angels became disobedient. He proves from the Scriptures that these fallen spirits personate the human dead, with whose past history, spirits, though invisible, are thoroughly acquainted. He shows that they also frequently personate the Creator and the Redeemer, commanding their deceived ones to pray, do penance, etc. This, however, is merely to lead them on and to bring them more thoroughly under demonic control. Sometimes by breaking down the natural barrier, the human will, they possess their victim, and rule him more or less to his ruin—frequently sending such to the mad-house. Numerous Illustrations, Scriptural and otherwise, are given. The price of the little book is but ten cents; it should be in the hands of all interested in Spiritism or who have friends interested therein. Good Manner Rule.

If you are puzzled about a question of etiquette and have not time to consult an older or more experienced friend or relative apply the Golden Rule—to do as you would be done by—for this will almost always bring you out of your difficulty with flying colors. The expression "a nature's gentleman" is often applied to some simple minded and unsophisticated man who is thus guided, for, whether one be gentle or simple, the truest "good breeding" is shown by care for the feelings of others.—Exchange.

True Courtesy.

A gracious and charming woman was asked how it was that she was always able to put visitors at her house so completely at ease. She laughingly disclaimed any secret skill. On being pressed she said reflectively:

"I don't know if this is the reason for it, but I always try to feel that the person who wishes to see me is the person I wish to see."—Exchange.

Applause Under Difficulties.

Opie Read, the novelist, appeared as entertainer for a switchmen's convention in Peoria.

"It was a very enthusiastic audience," said Mr. Read. "They laughed heartily, but they didn't applaud much. You see, there were so many one armed men there that they had to applaud in pairs."—Success Magazine.
