

WEE NEE CLUB GIVES BRILLIANT FUNCTION.

DANCED ALL NIGHT TILL BROAD DAYLIGHT, WENT HOME WITH THE GIRLS IN THE MORNING.

Friday night the Wee Nee club gave an Easter dance at the Kellahan Hotel, which will go down as one of the most memorable events in the annals of Kingstree society. To the soul-inspiring strains of a succession of waltzes and two-steps played by the orchestra of the First Artillery band of Charleston, than which there is no better in the South, the hours glided by, no one realizing how fast, until rosetate dawn proclaimed the new-born day, and even then it was with lingering regret that the crowd dispersed.

At 12:30 a. m. dainty refreshments were served.

Special thanks are due the First Artillery orchestra for the part they played in the success of the occasion. They showed their appreciation of the hospitality extended them by the club by continuing to play two and a half hours longer than their engagement called for, and they played as no other band can play, cheerfully responding to repeated encores.

The following were in attendance: Mr and Mrs W T Butler of Marion; Mr and Mrs T M Gregg, Mr and Mrs Elliott Rogers, Mr and Mrs Will Haigh, Misses Mattie Brown, Edna Maddox, Ethel Lake, Jessie Jennings, Odessa Harrison; Messrs C G Brown, P C Brown, S M Gregg, Jr, B Burch, D T Kuker, James Burch, Thos Barringer, M D Lucas, J E L Dibble, Otis K Scott, F H Hodges, Otto Kuker, W W Benton and L T Burch of Florence; Miss Louise Bass and Mr J S Bass of Lanes; Miss—King of Richmond, Va; Miss Amelia Beckham of Rock Hill; Misses Lucile Mullins and Edna Ellerbe of Marion; Dr T R Howle of Andrews; Messrs S W Barron and H C Bruns of Manning; Messrs A C Brown and S W McClary of Gourdin; Mr W A Fass of Dillon; Mr R D McFaddin of Sardinia; Mr and Mrs W N Jacobs, Mrs B W Butler, Mr and Mrs W C Claiborne, Misses Leila Fowler, Banner Wilkins, Estelle Campbell, Sadi Phillips, Sidney Hughes, Sue Stell, Dell Van Keuren, Margaret Van Keuren; Drs R C McCabe, C D Jacobs, Messrs J H Scott, J D Gilland, W S Gilland, E L Montgomery, W M Tobias, W B Brockington, D E Evans, D M Evans and G T Floyd.

The enjoyment of the occasion was largely due to the courteous attention of Mr J W Chandler, the hospitable host of the Kellahan Hotel.

Tribute of Respect.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Mallard Lumber Company the following tribute of respect to Mr John F Register, Secretary and Treasurer, was adopted:
Whereas, God, in His Providence, has removed from our midst John F Register, our efficient and trusted Secretary and Treasurer, and,

Whereas, he has served this company for thirteen years with marked ability and singular faithfulness;

Therefore, be it Resolved: That in his death, which has fallen so suddenly and unexpectedly upon us, we bow humbly to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

Resolved: That we desire to put on record our profound appreciation of his long and valued service. He was worthy of every trust reposed in him; faithful to every duty committed to him. His conscientiousness in the discharge of every work and his wise counsel contributed in no small measure to whatever success has come to us. We have lost a valuable friend as well as co-laborer.

Resolved: That a page in our minute book be inscribed to his memory and that a copy of these resolutions be published in The County Record and a copy sent to his bereaved family.

BOON'S LICK ROAD.

The Famous Highway Was the Father of the Santa Fe Trail.

The most famous highway in the central west was the Boon's Lick road. Surveyed in 1815 from St. Charles, twenty-five miles west of St. Louis, to Old Franklin, Mo., 150 miles farther west, it turned immigration toward central Missouri and six years later brought Missouri into the Union as a state.

It was the road that made Missouri, says the World Today. It was the father of the Santa Fe trail, which, extending west from Old Franklin, brought commerce and immigration to Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico. The making of roads means the building of commonwealths. The Boon's Lick road is a notable though almost forgotten example.

In 1804 two sons of Daniel Boone, the great pioneer of the west, Daniel and Nathan Boone, made salt at salt springs found in central Missouri. The country was then a wilderness. The Boones and their companions were the only white men in the territory west of St. Charles. They boiled the spring water in huge iron kettles, and the crude salt which formed the residue they floated in hollow logs down the Missouri river to be sold at the French village of St. Louis.

Deer had come to the salt springs to lick the salt. The place in western pioneer slang was a "lick" and because the Boones there manufactured salt the locality was named Boon's Lick. The Boones spelled their name indifferently with or without the final "e."

Two years later a settlement of English speaking men and women was made near Boon's Lick, and shortly afterward the town of Old Franklin, twelve miles distant, upon the Missouri river, was founded. Then arose the necessity for a highway between Old Franklin and St. Louis and St. Charles, the large cities of the new west, each with several thousand inhabitants. The Boon's Lick road was the result.

It was not much of a road as roads go now. It was not macadamized or paved or graveled. Indeed, it was little better in its early days than a mere "trace" or hint of the road's direction.

The two Boones, with surveying parties, ran a line that followed the ridge or watershed between the Missouri and Mississippi rivers. The smaller streams were forded. On the large rivers were primitive ferryboats, hollow log canoes locked together. There were no bridges. The signposts were the blazes or marks cut in the forest trees along the roadway. The road machinery consisted of a rifle, an ax and a grubbing hoe.

Waiter's Idiosyncrasy.

"If madame would like a special dish that is especially good I would recommend venison stew with noodles," said the waiter.

Madame said very well, she would try venison stew with noodles.

"Why," said the man, "you hate noodles."

"I know," she sighed, "but I would rather eat something I hate than to make that waiter hate me. I expect to eat here again, often. Maybe he will wait on me. I can't afford to make him hate me. But he would hate me if I should decline venison stew with noodles. That is the way of waiters. They always hate people who refuse dishes they recommend, and every chance they get they take revenge."

Got His Answer.

Born in China and educated at Yale, the editor of the Chinese World of San Francisco was long known as a wit and humorist as well as a wise man. He dressed as an American. One day a drummer came to him with the expectation of selling a certain grade of paper. Thinking to be smart, the drummer began his conversation by asking the impudent question, "What kind of a 'nese are you—a Japanese or a Chinese?"

The editor smiled kindly and bowed with great courtesy as he replied, "First please inform me what kind of key you are—a Yankee, a monkey or just a plain donkey?"

Statesmen In Their Cups.

The deep drinking which was a social custom in the time of the younger Pitt had its influence occasionally on the minister, whose habit it was to indulge liberally with his friends when free from the occupations of state. An epigram of the time gave the following dialogue between Pitt and his colleague and boon companion, Henry Dundas, afterward Viscount Melville:

Pitt—I cannot see the speaker, Hal. Can you?

Dundas—Not see the speaker, Billy? I see two!—"Anecdotal History of Parliament."

A WONDERFUL ESCAPE.

Charleston Child Falls Two Stories to Stone Pavement and Lives

Falling from a second story piazza to a brick yard, sustaining a concussion of the brain, unconscious for about two hours, and four hours after the fall sitting up in bed playing with her toys and on the road to a speedy and absolute recovery, 3-year-old Clara Smith, a little white girl, who lives at No 71 King street, may lay claim to being one of the most remarkable little girls in Charleston. At any rate, the case is unique in medical annals, according to the physician who attended the little girl after the fall.

The little girl was playing on the up-stairs piazza at about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and it is supposed that she must have climbed upon the railing. Suddenly there was a cry and the horrified mother saw the body of her little one go hurtling through the air and strike the paved ground.

Several people rushed to the scene of what was thought to be the tragedy, and they picked up the limp form of the little girl. The child had landed on her head, her neck had been bent, and to the layman's eyes it appeared that she had fractured her skull. A physician was called and he responded at once. He straightened the little one's spine, fixed her neck and applied hot bottles to her body.

Then for about two hours the little girl was left entirely alone, and no other methods of treatment were used. Care and patience were rewarded when she opened her eyes and lisped a question. The physician then left the house, and on his return, about two hours later, found the little girl sitting up in bed playing merrily with her toys and seemingly none the worse for the accident with the exception of a few trivial bruises. A second examination was made and it is believed that in spite of the accident the child will be perfectly normal, both physically and mentally.—News & Courier, April 22.

A NURSERY

Is one of the easiest rooms to make pretty, and one of the most important.

The dainty whiteness makes for that cleanliness which is the first and greatest requisite for a baby's health. Besides, prettiness is the only fit surrounding for any child.

You need a chiffonier and bureau in white enamel (perhaps we can show you how to do over your present pieces) a good brass or iron crib with sides high enough to keep baby from falling, a rocking chair, straight back chair and small table, also in white. These with a pretty rug, dainty wall paper, and muslin curtains, complete the room.

Be careful to get a STEARNS & FOSTER mattress, for it is the best. To a child, good sleep means good health, a sturdy body, a fresh, retentive mind. Even nervousness is often due to lack of really sound sleep. Get a STEARNS & FOSTER for the crib to-day. If after 60 nights' trial you are not entirely satisfied, we will give you your money back without a word.—$3.45 to $11.25.
