

CLEMSON & WINTHROP AGRICULTURAL TRAIN

WILL START OUT EARLY IN JUNE --FARMERS SHOULD GET BUSY.

Clemson College, May 17:—Prof D N Barrow, director of the extensive work and institute division, has announced the following interesting information about institute work. Plans have been perfected with the leading railroads for the operation of the agricultural train that is to be run over this State by Clemson and Winthrop colleges. The train will consist of one arms palace stock car, one baggage car, one flat car and two passenger coaches. In the stock car will be carried representatives of at least two dairy breeds of cattle and two or three of the beef type, together with the red polled or general purpose cattle. Four breeds of hogs will represent the swine industry, and in addition to the cattle and hogs there will be a pair of draft mares as samples of what is necessary to breed good mules. Stops from one to three days will be made in each county. The stock will be first exhibited on the flat car, where an expert will go over the points of each and explain in what particular each animal excels. After this work is done the animals will be "detained," when all who wish may have an opportunity of inspecting them at close range. The baggage car will be used as a laboratory in giving practical instruction in various operations of the farm. Corn judging will be taught in a practical way along with the preparation and application of sprays for fruit; lessons in soil fertility will also be given. Among the special features of note in this car will be a model farmers' library, containing just what books a live and progressive farmer should have in his home. Where conditions are favorable, practical demonstrations will be given on nearby farms, both in orchard and field work. The train will be provided with a number of the latest and best agricultural implements, especially those suited to rapid and economical cultivation. Where crops and seasons will permit the workings of both these implements and the draft mares will be illustrated in the fields. One passenger coach will be equipped with lantern and will be used as a lecture room, in which will be given lectures on various subjects of interest to the farmers. The other coach will be presided over by representatives of Winthrop College, who will give practical demonstrations in domestic science.

It is planned that this train shall start in the lower part of the State, starting out the early part of June and spending from one to three days in a county. No stop of less than a day will be made, as it will take more than that time to do all the work that is planned. Where more than one stop is made in a county, they will be so distributed as to give the greatest number of people an opportunity of visiting the train. As largely as possible the stops will be made by request. The people of each county should immediately get together and agree among themselves where these stops will be most effective and immediately put their application for in a visit of the train, sending same to the Superintendent of Extension Work, Clemson College, S. C., who is now at work making up the itinerary. As little time as possible should be lost in doing this, as the itinerary will have to be completed some time in advance of the starting of the train.

University of South Carolina.
