

TRIO TOWN TOPICS.

Hot and Dry--Trio-Andrews Road--Mad-dog Scare.

Trio, July 31--Crops are very much in need of rain. Everything hot and dry.

Mr and Mrs T G McDonald and daughter, Gussie, visited friends and relatives in Sumter Sunday and Monday.

Rev Mr Whaley from Georgetown conducted a protracted meeting last week at Spring Gully Baptist church. Sunday there eleven converts baptized in Black river and next Sunday, August 13, there will be nine more. Mr Whaley was assisted by Rev H C Haddock in the meeting.

Mr J W Register visited his family in Georgetown Sunday.

Mr J B Files has some cotton open in his field near here--genuine this year's crop.

Mr and Mrs E L Powell will leave about August 12 for a visit to the former's home in North Carolina. Before returning they will go to Baltimore.

Messrs Powell, Rowell and Register have a force of men working on this end of the Trio-Andrews road. From all accounts they will have it before much longer. Glad to hear this.

There was a small mad-dog scare here last week, but fortunately no one was bitten.

Well, Mr Editor, as I will be away for a short time, I shall not be able to send you any more news soon. Thanking you for the space you have allowed me in the past and wishing you and The Record much success, I am,

THE PRODIGAL.

We shall miss our esteemed correspondent's cheerful, newsy letters even for a short while and hope soon to hear from him again. Better not stay away too long. "Prodigal;" remember the fate of your Scriptural prototype and don't wander too far afield.--Editor The Record.

Making a Home Run. Angle Morin, ex-ball player and umpire, was telling a story to a group of fans.

"There was a time when I played in the state league, and at that time on the Hazleton team there was a noted eater, "Kid" Jordan. Well, the year that Hazleton won the pennant nothing was too good for the boys, and a number of business men arranged a banquet for the team and a few of the dyed-in-the-wool rooters. Everything went off well, the courses were arranged temptingly and called 'innings,' and the table was decorated to represent a baseball field.

"We had everything there was to eat, and one of the innings was roast squab. This was served on a platter and the vegetables arranged in the shape of a diamond. The base lines were made of creamed potatoes, and at every base there was some vegetable cooked and cut in the shape of a base.

"This dish was a hit with the boys, and we all commented on it. I turned to Jordan, who wasn't saying much, but was industriously paying attention to the dish, and asked him how he was getting along.

"Fine," he said. "I'm eating 'em up around third base."--Philadelphia Times.

Poisoning as a Diversion.

Poisoning is never likely again to become a fashionable diversion, as it was from time to time in ancient Rome. In B. C. 331, for instance, there was a mysterious pestilence, which seemed to be particularly fatal to leading men. At last a slave girl gave information to the authorities, and a consequent police raid resulted in the discovery of about twenty matrons, some of them of high patrician families, busily preparing drugs over a fire. They insisted that the drugs were not poisons, but, being 'compelled to drink them publicly in the forum as a guarantee of good faith, perished miserably. Further informations followed, and 170 matrons in all were condemned. But this record was soundly beaten in B. C. 184, when a four months' inquiry by the praetor is said to have led to the condemnation of 2,000 persons.--London Chronicle.

A Dream and Its Result.

In 1720 a terrible epidemic decimated Marseilles and Provence, and Sardinia owed its escape to a dream. At this period the viceroy of Sardinia dreamed that the disease had invaded Sardinia and that the ravages were frightful. When the viceroy awoke he was deeply impressed by his dream, and a little later a merchantman put in its appearance at Cagliari and demanded a place to berth. The Sardinia refused, and when it was hinted that the merchantman wanted to land some sick the viceroy threatened to train the guns of the forts upon the vessel if the captain did not depart instantly. The people of Cagliari thought that the viceroy was mad, but great was their joy later when they learned that this very ship, which went on to Marseilles, was responsible for introducing the plague into the famous port.

Roads of the Olden Time.

A curious illustration of the lack of any systematic authority over the roads in England, even as late as the fifteenth century, is preserved in the records of the manor of Aylesbury. A local miller, named Richard Boose, needed some ramming clay for the repair of his mill. Accordingly--we learn from "Old Country Inns"--his servants dug a great pit in the middle of the road, ten feet wide and eight feet deep, and so left it to become filled with water from the winter rains. A glower from Leighton Buzzard, on his way home from market, fell in and was drowned. Charged with manslaughter, the miller pleaded that he had no place wherein to get the kind of clay he required except on the highroad. He was acquitted.

A well known Des Moines woman after suffering miserably for two days from bowel complaint, was cured by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by all dealers.
