

AFFAIRS AT ANDREWS.

Death of a Little One—Local News and Personal Opinion.

Andrews, August 22:—Your local scribe was on the sick list last week, which is why no news letter was sent. Am glad to say that "Richard is himself again", or nearly so.

Our old friend, Mr Henry Inman of Georgetown, spent a few days last week with the family of Mr Bachman Dear.

Our community was visited by two small showers last week, the first rain we have had in nearly three weeks.

I understand that great preparations are being made for "farmers' day" here next Saturday.

Cotton picking is going on quite lively now. The cotton here will all be open within thirty days, the crop being nearly ruined by dry weather.

Misses Minnie and Fannie Marshall of Morrisville passed through town last Sunday in a la automobile going to visit the family of Mr G W Camlin. The Misses Marshall are teachers in Earls High school.

Mr and Mrs John Swails lost their infant child Sunday morning. We have not learned the cause of the child's death. The family have the sympathy of the community.

Miss Ossie Camlin is visiting her sister, Mrs Elma Cliff, at Ceylon, Ga.

By the way, Mr Editor, certain magistrates have discovered some new laws down here. Where no magistrate now can issue claim and delivery papers they say an attorney is the only one who can issue such papers. The magistrate simply executes them. Our law-makers had better reprint this law, so the learned officers can understand it. All over this little town they are trying to intrude on the rights of our people. As I have long ago predicted, some good man will be killed over this matter, then the whole thing will stop. I have made it a point to discuss the matter with the officers of the town, but still the work of totally taking away the rights and privileges of our people is carried on.

If all would-be rapists or negro vagabonds who insult white ladies were treated as the Abbeville negro was, no doubt those heinous crimes would stop. Besides, those criminals will still suffer at the hands of the law if they recover. It is a crying shame how our fair women suffer at the hands of black brutes. Just last week at St Georges a lady was choked and struck in the mouth three times, and now in Oklahoma, I believe it is, the people are on the verge of a race war over two white ladies being killed by negroes. It has come to the pass that we must submit to the brutes taking the lives of our wives and daughters and we must not resent it. This thing is growing to an alarming extent. Later or sooner trouble will be had right here with the negro.

Kind of Twisted.

Pat Kelly came home one night a little to the bad and went to bed with a somewhat hazy idea of things.

Before long he was awakened by the cry of "Fire," and in his hurry to get his clothes on, Kelly put his trousers on hind side before. He then started down stairs but slipped and rolled to the bottom. A friend rushed to his assistance and exclaimed: "Are you hurt, Pat?" Kelly got up and examined himself. Seeing his trousers hind side before, he said: "No, but I got a h— of a twist."—National Monthly.

The Burglar's Umbrella.

Among a collection of articles used by burglars when engaged in their nefarious calling is one particular contrivance that arouses great interest. In appearance it resembles a large umbrella that has seen hard service. It was formerly the property of a burglar, and it was by its means that he was able to enter the second story of a building. Removing the cover, a stick wound with ropes is revealed. The stick opens like a telescope or a jointed fishing rod. Wound round it is a rope ladder made of strong material and about thirteen feet in length. The ladder is only wide enough for one foot to be placed on the rungs. The extending stick was used to raise one end of the ladder to the window through which the operator wished to enter, and on the upper end of the ladder are two hooks to be fastened to the sill. This imitation umbrella is regarded as one of the most ingenious affairs ever made use of by a thief.—London Standard.

Took the Shilling.

A recruiting sergeant one day met an ignorant youth idling, with his hands in his pockets and standing before a house on the front of which was a notice informing the public that the building was to be sold. The notice ran thus: "To Be Sold by Private Treaty."

The sergeant approached the youth and asked him if he had ever thought of joining the army.

"Not me," was the reply. "You'd have nothing in the army worth talking about."

"Is that so?" said the other. "Well, how is it then Private Treaty has a house for sale and him only a private yet?"

The youth looked thoughtful and puzzled, and presently, over a pint of ale, the possibility of owing a house by joining the army grew into a certainty and the shilling changed hands.—London Tit-Bits.

Wonderful Animalcules.

Of all the minute creatures that inhabit this globe unseen by the naked eye there is none so astonishing, according to the Scientific American, as the little living things that live in stagnant water. They are called slipper animalcules, or, as the scientist has it, the paramecium. These tiny, invisible things develop so rapidly that if they were able to live through 350 generations they would crowd every other living thing off the face of the earth and form a mass larger than the planet itself. Should they go on reproducing until the nine hundredth generation these little creatures would form a mass large enough to crowd the moon and stars and even the sun entirely out of space. Luckily for us this is not possible, according to nature's decree. The paramecium dies after it has attained the one hundred and seventieth generation, and so the awful possibilities are checked off its multiplying to fill the universe.

Passed the Bottle Too Quickly.

Will Low, the palmer, told this story of the Latin quarter days of Robert Louis Stevenson. Low and Stevenson were great friends in their youth. Their friendship indeed continued up to the time of the writer's death.

"Louis," said the artist, "was no less diplomatic than brave. He could be fiery, and he could also be gracious and pacific. One night, I remember, we sat in a garden in Montmartre. The red wine had been flowing pretty freely, and one member of our party got heated and aggressive. Finally some one said a thing that this fighting chap disliked. As soon as the words were spoken he grabbed up a bottle and hurled it at the other's head. It was a strong, true shot and would have hit the mark had not Stevenson spring to his feet and caught the missile."

"Tut, tut, George," he said to the thrower—"tut, tut! If the bottle is passed so quickly none of us will be able to stand out the evening!"

Poor Thackeray.

Sir William Howard Russell's diary for April 1852, has this amusing glimpse of Thackeray:

"The sportsmen among whom I had the honor to be numbered were of the Winkle order. Thackeray, Dickens, John Beech, Jerrold, Lemon, Ibbotson, were invited, and carriages were reserved to Watford. As we were starting a written excuse was brought from Dickens to be conveyed to Mrs. X. by Thackeray. The party drove up to the house, and after compliments Thackeray delivered the billet. The effect was unpleasant. Mrs. X. fled along the hall, and the guests heard her calling to the cook: 'Martin, don't roast the ortolans; Mr. Dickens isn't coming.' "Thackeray said he never felt so small. 'There's a test of popularity for you! No ortolans for Pendennis!'"

Off the Line.

"What became of Buts' educated goat?"

"He had to dispose of it."

"What was the trouble?"

"The neighbors thought the goat was learning too many human accomplishments, and there was a crisis when the animal began to take in washing."—Augusta Herald.

Evidence.

"Was your husband a bear in Wall street?"

"I think so," replied young Mrs. Torkins. "He certainly acted like one when he got home."—Washington Star.
