"Poor Conrad" Points Out an Evil and the Remedy.

(Written for last week's issue.)

Editor County Record:—

I would like to mention something that might save some one the misfortune of a fall, a severe bruise or a broken arm, if the peelings of apples and skins of bananas are kept off the sidewalks of this town. It was shocking to see them this blessed Sabbath morning on God's holy day littered up and down—better say messed up—especially in front of where fruit is sold. Mr. Thompson, I think the oldest and a useful gentleman in town, passed me going to the postoffice this morning and fell flat on the hard cement sidewalk by stepping on a banana peel. Can't the authorities of this town make a law for every merchant or shop-keeper to sweep the sidewalks in front of their stores on closing at night, especially on Saturday night? Where are the police and town marshals? It should be their duty to see to that. If it were left to me I would see to it or somebody would have a fuss on hand, as well as selling fruit. As for me, I vow not to buy or eat fruit of any kind until I see an ordinance like that put into effect. What a shame to think of such gross carelessness! Mr. Thompson is 79 years of age and of more than average weight; would anyone suppose a person of that age could fall as suddenly as a banana peeling would throw him and not get hurt? Our Southern people cry so much for protection, pocket protection, I guess.

During the Civil war a poor Confederate soldier lost a leg in one of the battles in Virginia and after remaining in the hospital at Richmond until he was able to go on crutches, was given a furlough to go to his home; but on the way to the railroad station he happened to place one of his crutches on a banana peel and fell and broke one of his arms. The same thing may happen here and who would be responsible? I know who. I saw while I walked up the street several places where some one's foot had a slide on a peeling.

Another thing I would like to know, why some kind of crossing cannot be made at the end of the concrete sidewalk at Mr. O. H. Patrick's store. I live over the branch—a place that should be called Brooklyn, and on leaving the business part of the town after a rainy day or night, it is either shoe-mouth deep in mud or go back almost half a block to the brick crossing and re-cross at Vause & Son's shop, and mud again, but not quite so much. I think it hurts Mr. Patrick's trade, also Milhous & Jennings', Jenkinson Bros Co's and the meat market's, if people going out of town may not want to buy their supplies up town and tote them a block or two, when they would wish to trade at the last-named places.

Talk about water-works—better have a way to keep out of the water before trying to harness it for some other purpose. Spitting on the sidewalk is another nuisance. Go down on Main street on a Sunday morning before people get up and it looks like a battle-field, the enemy routed and gone and the pursuing army out of hearing; broken boxes, fruit crates, banana stems, an old broken-down wagon or wrecked old buggy, waste paper. People generally try to fix up and put on their Sunday clothes on Sunday morning and try to look clean, so should the town have a Sunday look. This truth may hurt, but Kingstree could be called a city on a hill, a historic old town on the Wee Wee, the court house 100 years old, beautiful shaded streets, the grand Confederate monument and as many pretty women as any town of its size in Dixie.

"In Dixie land I take my stand To live and die in Dixie land."

POOR CONRAD.

P. S. Oh, Mr. Editor, a friend took me to the opera house last night and I went to church to-night. There were a great many more at the opera house than at the church to-night; and, Mr. Editor, I do believe everybody paid those people money to see them cut antics and hear foot talks. I thought to-night, when the coins dropped in the church basket so cold and slow, of the poor widow who dropped in her few mites, all she had. What if the religious denominations could collect money like the shows and would-be theatrical traveling troupes? Couldn't they build temples and churches instead of chapels? But, I suppose, this was the fashion before the time of Belshazzar, down past the time of Nero, who fiddled while Rome burnt, down to this time.

No more at present. P. C.

Tribute of Respect.

Whereas, our Heavenly Father in His infinite wisdom has seen fit to remove from our ranks our brother, A. W. Lawrence, whose soul took its flight to the Celestial Realms on the 20th day of July, 1911, therefore, be it resolved:

1st. That in Brother Lawrence's death Indiantown Lodge, No. 165, A. F. M., loses one of its best members.

2nd. That we bow in humble submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well.

3rd. That to our brother's bereaved family, in their hour of sorrow, we extend our sincerest sympathy and would comfort them with the blessed hope of a happy reunion some day with their departed loved one in that bright home where sickness and death are unknown.

4th. That a page in the record book of the lodge be set apart sacred to the memory of our departed brother and that these resolutions be inscribed thereon; also that a copy of these resolutions be sent to his family and be printed in The County Record.

Respectfully submitted,

Seen at Smith's.

Smith's, October 16:—Mr. Editor, as I have not seen anything from this place in some time, I thought I will give you a few dots, but news is hard to find.

The health of our community is good at present.

Some of our farmers have failed get their cotton gathered as yet. Cotton pickers cannot be had for love or money.

The hay crop is unusually fine, and we can hear the sound of the mower every day.

Our school is progressing nicely. Our Sunday-school is also flourishing.

The game of baseball between Hebron and Sandy Bay Saturday afternoon resulted in the score of 9 to 0 in favor of Sandy Bay. Nox.

Pride yourself on having fancy and well bred stock.

BOY RUN OVER BY HORSE.

Little Allen Driggers Knocked Down and Seriously Hurt.

Kingstree, October 19:—Allen, the five-year-old son of Mr. J. M. Driggers, who lives a few miles from town, was run over and seriously, if not fatally, hurt here Thursday afternoon. It appears that the child, in company with an elder brother and sister, was going out to where Sanger's Combined Shows were spreading their tents for the day, and as they neared the show ground they encountered a frightened horse, which had gotten away from its owner, and before the little fellow could get out of the animal's way he was knocked down and trampled upon, receiving serious injuries on the scalp, body and legs. The scalp wound is severe but is not considered fatal.

The child was taken to Drs. Gamble and Jacobs, who dressed the wounds and rendered such other medical attention as was needed. Later reports indicate that young Driggers will recover from his injuries.

A Card.

Editor County Record:—

In the "Final Presentment" of the grand jury published in your last week's issue, I find the following paragraph:

"We have examined the books of the magistrates and find a shortage of $21.50 in books of R. C. McElveen."

In reply to the foregoing I beg to submit the following statement, which should be convincing evidence to any fair-minded person that the grand jury's allegation does me a grave injustice, and I think the committee of investigation should retract their charge against me and give it the same publicity that was given their presentment.

This is to certify that we have examined the criminal docket of R. C. McElveen from the date of his commission and find that he has collected in fines, etc., the amount of $187.50, and after checking up same by the Treasurer's books we find that he has turned over to the Treasurer $187.50. This examination is from date of commission to September 30, 1911.
