ARTHRITIC DIATHESIS.

People Who Are Afflicted With a Rheumatic Habit of Body.

What doctors call "diathesis," which is really a constitutional predisposition to a certain class of diseases, has recently, in the opinion of the New York Medical Journal, been neglected by physicians, whereas it ought really to be studied most carefully, so that disease may be prevented.

There are five general diatheses or habits of body—the arthritic, the scrofulous or strumous, the lymphatic, the nervous and the bilious.

The person with the arthritic diathesis—that is to say, with a "rheumatic habit of body"—has certain peculiarities that make it easy to detect the predisposition. There is often no marked weakness in his early years. "Perhaps the most marked feature is sore throat with recurrent tonsillitis, and * * * the tonsils are a site of lodgment of the specific germs of rheumatic infection. Arthritis more or less acute is apt to occur in children, and the existence of this arthritic tendency entails a specific liability in the textures of the individual to receive and encourage the development of the specific toxin of rheumatism."

Among the affections that come under this head are all forms of heart disease, cerebral and spinal meningitis and gouty symptoms coming on in and after the third decade of life. There is a tendency to stoutness in families that inherit this diathesis. One of the most noteworthy features is the resistance of such persons to the inroads of tuberculosis.

All statistics prove that the diseases coming under this head are those most largely on the increase and that the life that most people lead in our big cities is especially conducive to it. So any one who has this diathesis should look to himself and adopt preventive measures, for hardening of the arteries and heart disease are much easier to prevent than to cure.

Made Good Matches.

She—I can't make out how it is that Mrs. Wise has fish for nearly every meal. It can't be for economy's sake, for she must be fairly well off.

He—She has a large family of unmarried daughters, you know.

She—Now, don't be nasty and say something about girls and their brains. That's so old.

He—Oh, no, I hadn't the slightest intention of doing so!

She—Well, can't you tell me?

He—I don't know, I'm sure, unless it's because fish are rich in phosphorus.

She—I don't see what that has to do with it.

He—Perhaps not, but still it's good for making matches.

Odd Way of Smoking.

During the South African war a Boer soldier named Frank Brown was shot in the forehead with a rifle bullet. Strangely enough, it did not kill him, and after the war he secured employment on one of the transatlantic steamers. When fully a year had passed he complained of trouble in his head, and after a thorough examination the surgeon of the ship decided that the bullet, which had never been removed, must be extracted. This was done, and afterward, for the amusement of his friends, the wounded soldier placed a lighted cigarette in the hole from which the bullet was extracted and drew the smoke through his nose.—Strand Magazine.

Waste of Energy.

"Angry!" exclaimed the young man. "Of course I'm angry. It seems to me what we need in this world is some system of general thought transference or mind reading. You know how hard I worked to get Margaret. Gave all my waking thoughts to the subject, neglected my business, went off my food and made an ass of myself generally!"

"But you succeeded."
"Oh, yes; we're engaged! And now that we have exchanged confidences I find that she was working just as hard to get me as I was to get her, and when I think of the waste of effort I get tired!"—Exchange.

What He Is Called.

A teacher in one of the lower grade schools was instructing a class in the departments of the national government recently and came finally to the customs department. "When an ocean liner reaches Philadelphia," said the teacher, "a man all dressed up in uniform meets the passengers and takes all they have and inspects it. Now, can any one in the class tell me what the man is called?" A ready hand in the last row flew up. "Well, Tommy?" "Please, ma'am, he's called a pirate."
