TO BENEFIT SOUTHERN GIRLS.

Plan of a Four-Year Course in Progressive Gardening.

Washington, D. C., January 23:—To meet the demands of thousands of Southern girls who have been successful in raising a tenth-acre of tomatoes and who want to "go on," the representatives of the department of agriculture and the State colleges in charge of the canning clubs in the fifteen Southern States have worked out what may be called a progressive, four-year practical garden and canning course for girls. The purpose of this course is to start the girls with one crop and from year to year add new annual crops, encourage them to run winter and glass-frame gardens and finally in the course of their work to lead them to plant perennial and small orchard fruits. It is hoped that under this system the girls will gain knowledge of how to handle a wide variety of garden vegetables and trees and that the member, by the time she gets ready to go to high school or college, will have a garden of perennial fruits that can be readily cared for by other members of her family.

The first year of girls' club work throughout the Southern States consists in raising tomatoes in tenth-acre gardens. It is believed by those in charge that every girl should first master this plant and learn how to utilize or sell its products before she takes up other vegetables and fruits. In sections where tomatoes suffer from blight and wilt, however, it is sometimes necessary to substitute another garden crop.

The second-year girls continue to grow tomatoes on one-half of their garden space and devote the other half of the space to one other crop, preferably beans, peas, peppers, okra, beets or onions. The girls are also encouraged to start winter gardens in the late summer and fall on one-fourth to one-half of the tenth-acre plots. Lettuce, spinach and kale are the crops recommended.

The third-year girls grow three crops, continuing the two that have been grown the second year and adding cucumbers, eggplant, fig-tomatoes, salsify, parsnips or horseradish. In each case those in charge of the work select the additional vegetables with reference to local agricultural conditions, market demand, and suitability for canning. Many garden combinations other than those suggested are possible. For instance, if the community is interested in canning soup mixtures and Creole sauce, they must secure from their gardens tomatoes, peppers, okra and onions. In fruit-growing sections the girls are advised, when conditions are right, to substitute from 5 to 10 fruit trees for one of the vegetable crops. The member then becomes responsible for the pruning, spraying and general care of these trees.

The development of crops of perennial vegetables and fruits is insisted on at the end of the third year, and in many cases the work is begun at the end of the second year. The perennials are substituted for some of the annual vegetables and the girls are given credit for the condition of their bushes or trees which are not yet bearing and therefore do not yet yield a product that can be counted in the canning score.

It is hoped that as a result of this planting of perennial fruits and vegetables several thousand of the girls, before many years, will have at the end of their junior garden permanent gardens containing some such profitable combinations as the following:

Strawberries, asparagus, cherries; raspberries, rhubarb, plums; gooseberries, currants, peaches; strawberries, asparagus, quinces; strawberries, rhubarb, pears; dewberries, figs, pecans; currants, asparagus, grapes; blackberries, figs, scuppernongs; strawberries, figs, oranges; asparagus, starawberries, kumquats.

To enable them to use the products of these permanent gardens, the agents give the girls special instruction in making preserves, jelly, marmalades, pickles, etc.

Is your wife a jewel? Tell her so. Tell her so, anyway.
