FINE PLEASURE VEHICLES

The Oxford buggy Co., Oxford, N. C., has long enjoyed the reputation in the South for the manufacture of superior pleasure vehicles, it being a sign of good taste in Dixie Land for one to ride in an Oxford vehicle. The dealers who handle the Oxford line find it an easy matter to meet competition, for they have something that they can back up with the strongest guarantee.

For the year 1916 they have introduced new styles, many of which are tradewinners. Their buggies are built by skilled mechanics who know their business from beginning to end, having made this their life work. Selected material is used throughout, so that as hundreds of dealers testify, the Oxford, Chase and Stud buggies are thoroughly satisfactory and dependable, embracing three cardinal points of vehicledom, viz: Style, Comfort and Service.

CURIOS ICE COLUMN.

The Transformation That Took Place In a Bottle of Water.

A mother gave an empty cologne bottle to her little boy to play with on a cold day in winter. The bottle was of colorless glass, six inches high and three inches across at the bottom. About midway it began to taper and was about half an inch in diameter at the top. Toward evening the child filled the bottle with water, inserted a cork and left it on a shelf in the pantry.

In the morning a curious sight met the mother's eyes. The night had been cold and the water was frozen solid. Strange to say, the bottle was not broken, but out of the top rose a column of ice four inches tall and exactly corresponding in diameter with the mouth of the bottle. The column of ice was as round, straight and true as a lead pencil. To its summit the cork was frozen tight. This phenomenon was viewed by the whole family. To account for it the following theory was suggested.

It is well known that by a law of nature all substances contract with cold. Water is thus affected until the freezing point is reached, when crystallization takes place. The particles of ice then arrange themselves in such a manner that there is expansion instead of contraction in the entire bulk—that is to say, a cubic foot of water will make more than a cubic foot of ice.

Putting the case another way, a pound of ice takes up more room than a pound of water; therefore, a given bulk of ice is lighter than the same bulk of water. It is because of this provision of nature that ice floats instead of sinking. If the ice should sink to the bottom of a lake or stream new ice would form at the top and sink in its turn, and so on until the entire body of water became frozen. No summer heat could thaw it through, and it may easily be imagined that the results would be disastrous to mankind.

The bottle of water which has been described was on a shelf near a window and a little lower than the sill. It is probable that the cold first attacked the water immediately below the cork. The crystallized particles took the direction of least resistance and made their way upward. As they emerged from the bottle the particles immediately under them next became frozen and were forced upward by expansion. This process was continued until the column of ice was formed.—Washington Star.

A Grim Deathbed Joke.

It was the 21st of April, 1821. Dr. I. P. Frank, the eminent governor of the University hospital, Vienna, lay on his deathbed and was expected every moment to pass away. Once more the eight leading medical men of the capital gathered round his couch. All at once the patient burst out laughing.

"What is it that tickles your fancy?" his friends inquired.

"A story has just come into my mind," was the reply. "On the battlefield of Wagram lay a French soldier counting his wounds. 'Ha!' he exclaimed. 'It takes eight bullets to kill a French grenadier.' Gentlemen, there are eight of you too." Thus he spoke and expired in a fit of laughter.

An Astonishing Invention.

Perhaps one of the most astonishing inventions on record was the device of a Frenchman who suggested the laying down of huge suction tubes from the coast out to various points in the open sea. When war broke out and hostile fleets approached the coast, machinery on shore would be set to work, the enemy's vessels would be caught by the irresistible suction, drawn to the ends of the tubes and there held firmly as prisoners. The one essential part of this idea which seemed to be missing was the machinery which was going to draw a 25,000 ton warship backward with its engines going at full steam ahead.

Marvels of Ship Construction.

Each man-of-war is built upon paper before a single plate of steel is forged. Not only are length and breadth of a ship decided upon, but the naval constructor can tell to an ounce how much water she will displace when her armor and guns are mounted upon her, how many times her propellers will revolve in a minute with a given pressure of steam, and how many tons of coal an hour must be consumed to attain a certain rate of speed.

Critical Definition.

Professor—Define transparent, translucent and opaque.

Stude—If I may give an illustration instead, sir, I would say that the windows of this room were once transparent, they are now translucent, and if not cleaned very soon they will be opaque.—Boston Transcript.

Lawrence M. Ard Dead.

Mr Lawrence M Ard, formerly of the Leo section, died Monday night of last week. His remains were laid to rest in the Horseford burying grounds Wednesday morning. Funeral services were conducted by his pastor, Rev Thos Poston, after which the body of the deceased was turned over to the Masons, of which order he was a faithful member. He was a member of Indiantown lodge, also a charter member of Leo lodge U. D. (though Leo lodge is awaiting arrival of its charter, which will be soon, when the lodge will be instituted). Mr Ard was reared in the Leo community and spent the greater part of his life there upon the farm. He was 58 years old and leaves a wife and several children and grandchildren.

Six Born in 18 Month.

William Pasco, a teamster, of Chaddsford, Pa, applied for a raise in pay at the opening of his employers' office one day last week, and gave as his reason the birth of quadruplets at his home. Three girls and a boy were born during the night, and all are alive and apparently in the best of health. Twin boys were born to Mrs Pasco 18 months ago, these having been their only children before the advent of the four.

AN ACT OF KINDNESS.

A Kingstree Resident Speaks Publicly for the Benefit of Kingstree People.

If you had suffered tortures from kidney trouble, Had experimented with different remedies without relief: If you were finally cured through a friend's suggestion— Wouldn't you be grateful? The following statement has been given under just such circumstances. Mr McIntosh has used Doan's Kidney Pills.

He publicly tells of the benefit he has received.

His is a simple act of kindness to other Kingstree sufferers.
