PRICES STILL SOARING.

Advances are Noted on Almost All Lines of Merchandise.

Talking with Mr A C Swails upon his return a few days ago from the Northern markets he told us that he had found prices greatly advanced on practically all lines of goods, and that if he had not placed his orders several months ago he would have had to pay an advance of 10 to 50 per cent and that the large firms with which he had placed his orders were not at all anxious to fill them at the prices stipulated at the time the goods were ordered. It was plainly evident that the larger dealers and manufacturers had been too conservative in their estimate of the advance in prices between the time of selling and delivering. This advance is not only on dry goods but affects nearly every line of merchandise and materials and perhaps more seriously than any other, print paper, such as The Record is printed on. We used to pay $50 per ton for it; now it costs us a round $100 and is still advancing. Mr Swails says he intends to give his customers the benefit of the low prices at which he bought his goods as long as they last. This is as it should be, though some dealers slap on the advanced price the moment a rise in the market is noted, thereby doubling or trebling their profits. We wouldn't like to pay 10c a pound for sugar if we knew it had cost our grocer only 3c, but, on the other hand, knowing that he has had to pay the advanced price, we are willing to come across without grumbling. In June we bought a ton of print paper from a firm at $90, a few weeks later another paper man came along and sold us a ton of the same paper at $70. Upon investigation we found that the $70 paper had been contracted for by the jobber before the price soared, and the manufacturer was obliged to deliver at the old price. They are all selling at the same high prices now. Dealers in other lines have doubtless had similar experiences.
