

JURIES IN FRANCE.

They Enjoy Great Latitude and Are Not Tangled in Red Tape.

If the position of jurors is unenviable nowadays it must have been almost unendurable in England centuries ago. If they could not agree they were re-enforced by the addition of other jurors, and if the newcomers did agree on a verdict the first twelve jurors were immediately arrested and imprisoned and their lands and chattels forfeited to the king. At a later period the wives and children of such jurymen were ordered out of their homes, their houses torn down, their trees rooted up and their meadows plowed.

When a French jury is selected two substitutes are also chosen, who attend all sessions of the court, occupying seats with the audience and listening to all the testimony. If any of the jurors falls ill one or the other of these men is called upon to take his place. A hung jury is impossible in a trial in France, for unanimity of opinion is not required. The verdict is determined by a majority vote, and only one ballot is ever necessary. A tie means acquittal.

At the close of each day's session the French juror is permitted to go to his home and about his customary pursuits. He has taken no oath of secrecy, given no pledge to abstain from a discussion of the case or the reading of newspaper comments. At night he relates to his family the incidents of the day, receives their opinions and reads the impressions of the reporters who are covering the trial.

A juror serving in a case of great importance frequently finds that two daily newspapers for which he has never subscribed are being delivered at his home. One strongly favors the prosecution; the other champions the cause of the defense. The enterprising lawyers are careful to see that no favorable comment escapes his notice.—New York Sun.

Tolerance.

Tolerance is a calm, generous respect for the opinions of others, even the opinions of one's enemies. Tolerance is silent justice blended with sympathy. Tolerance always implies wisdom and kindness. It seeks to convert others from error by gently raising them to higher ideals, by honestly leading them to broader lines of thinking and by patiently helping them to help themselves. Tolerance does not use the battering ram of argument or the club of sarcasm or the deadly rapier of ridicule.

Scandinavian Flags.

The Swedish flag is older than the flag of Norway. Sweden has flown the yellow cross on the pale blue field since Gustavus Vasa became king in 1523, and the independence of Sweden from Denmark was acknowledged. Norway had no political existence as a separate kingdom until 1814, when she "seceded" from Denmark and adopted as her flag a device made by superimposing a blue cross on the white cross of the Danish flag.

Clay's Famous Maxim.

Henry Clay, though he favored a high tariff in 1833, introduced a bill reducing the then existing duties. Its object was to pacify the agricultural states which had objected vehemently. In South Carolina the opposition had taken a very serious form. His friends told Clay that his chances for the presidency would be injured, when his reply was the famous sentence, "I'd rather be right than president of the United States."

He Remembered.

"Harold," said his mother, "you forgot to wipe your shoes when you came in."

"No, I didn't, mother," protested Harold. "Honest and truly I didn't."

"Then how do you account for all this mud on my best rug?"

"Why—er—I guess that's where I wiped them."—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Sahara's Oases.

Some of the oases of the Sahara are quite large, one of them being 120 miles long and fifty-eight miles wide. The springs are of various kinds—hot, cold, mineral or gaseous. The Kargha oasis dwellers raise grain, onions and dates, but live on the least possible amount of food, work and reasoning power. Marshes abound and fever prevails.

Shell Shock.

The nervous shock from exploding shells from big guns is so great that it oftentimes brings horses up in their tracks, apparently incapable of moving. Horses occasionally fall down and give every appearance of having been shot, though actually unhurt. Dogs suddenly and unaccountably go lame, though untouched.

Eyes With Double Pupils.

Cicero says that "the glance of all women with the double pupil in the eye is noxious, blighting and withering." Cadmus tells us that such persons would not drown. Still others say that if they did drown the body would never sink, neither would it decay. They could cure the disease of the chest—consumption—by rubbing their perspiration on the affected parts of the individual, and in case the double pupils were red instead of black they could cure the lepers and the blind. So thought the ancients.

Church of St. Sophia.

Mohammedans reverence Constantinople next to Mecca, and St. Sophia, or the "Church of the Divine Wisdom," holds first rank in the affections of the faithful.

Commenced in the year 532 A. D. on the site of several successive Christian churches of the same name, no fewer than 10,000 workmen are said to have been employed upon its construction, under the direction of 100 master builders.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.
