Tells of "Feeling Better" Than She Ever Remembers "Of Feeling Before."

ABOUT LOST HOPE.

Advice Given by Pastor's Wife Led to a Wonderful Change in the Life of Mrs McManus.

"The reason I put so much faith in Tanlac is because I had taken so many medicines and they helped me only while I was taking them, but Tanlac not only helped me when I was taking it, but its benefits have proved lasting," said Mrs S A McManus, of 207 Second St, Olympia, a suburb of Columbia, in a statement she gave in endorsement of Tanlac.

"When I quit taking Tanlac, I really felt better than I ever remember of feeling before. Tanlac is the only medicine I ever took that helped my indigestion and nervous troubles.

"I suffered particularly from nervous indigestion, and my system was badly run down. I had worried myself almost to death over my troubles, and that made my condition all the worse. I suffered a lot with headaches and I could not eat anything. I suffered so much with my head that I was almost crazy at times with the pain. My nerves were in such bad shape that if anyone knocked unexpectedly at the door, it would fly all over me and I would tremble all over and feel like I was freezing, for my nerves were a complete wreck.

"My husband lost a lot of time from work because he had to stay at home and work around the house when I was sick in bed. I never felt well, but I just dragged around the house and did my work the best I could when I was not in bed. I never was really able to do my household work, though.

"I never have been healthy and I have been doctored all my life, but I continued to suffer and gradually grew worse, until I had about lost hope of ever feeling well again.

"Then one day my pastor's wife came to visit me for I was on the 'sick list,' and she urged me to try Tanlac. I knew it would be well to do if my pastor's wife told me to, so my husband bought me a bottle. And now I can truthfully say that Tanlac is the only medicine I have ever taken that has helped me, and Tanlac broke up my troubles, even if I had suffered badly for three years and had suffered less severely for five or six more years. Tanlac, too, is the only medicine that ever helped my indigestion and nervous troubles, and these troubles, the doctors told me, were the cause of all my bad health.

"All my Tanlac gave me a fine appetite, increased my strength and made me able to do my own household work. I feel fine now and am not bothered with my nerves. I do not have headaches and my stomach is in fine shape. Tanlac is the best medicine I have ever taken, and hundreds of dollars have been spent trying to break up my troubles."

"Tanlac, the master medicine, is sold by Kingstree Drug Co, Kingstree; Mallard Lumber Co, Greelyville; Farmers' Drug Co, Hemingway; S S Aronson, Lane; R P Hinnant, Suttons; W D Bryan, Bryan.

A man who speaks of woman's moods may often speak of his own experiences.

The Habit of Taking Cold

With many people taking a cold is a habit, but fortunately one that is easily broken. Take a cold sponge bath every morning when you first get out of bed—not too cold, but a temperature of about 90 degrees. Also sleep with your window up. Do this and you will seldom take cold. When you do take cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and get rid of it as quickly as possible. Obtainable everywhere.

A woman's hesitating no, no, no, ever is but yes, each man for self must answer guess.

Neglected Colds Grow Worse.

A cough that racks and irritates the throat may lead to a serious chronic cough, if neglected. The healing pine balsams in Dr Bell's Pine Tar Honey—nature's own remedy—will soothe and relieve the irritation, breathing will be easier, and the antiseptic properties will kill the germ which retarded healing. Have it handy for croup, sore throat and chronic bronchial affections. Get a bottle today. Pleasant to take. At all druggists, 25c.

A PERILOUS FEAT.

It Took Nerves of Steel, a Cool Head and a Steady Eye.

The cathedral at Salisbury, England, lifts its spire 404 feet. This spire is topped by a ball, and on the ball stands a cross. From the ground the ball looks to be about the size of an orange, but in reality it is greater than a man's height.

A distinguished American visiting Salisbury when a very young man had a curiously weird adventure on this spire. Workmen were at the time repairing it. The American felt a desire to climb the spire and stand on the horizontal beam of the cross. Accordingly, late in the afternoon, when the workmen had gone, the young man made his way up the scaffolding to the ball. Then came the slightly more difficult climb to the foot of the cross over the bulging curve of the ball. A short platform gave him foothold. He reached up and put his hands on the base of the cross and pulled himself up. To gain the crossarm was merely "shinning" up a good sized tree, and soon he stood on the horizontal timber and, reaching up, touched the top of the cross.

After enjoying his moment of triumph he slid to the foot of the cross and, with his arms around the post, slipped down over the big bulge of the ball. His feet touched nothing. The little plank from which he had reached up was not there.

Here was a Poe-like situation requiring a cool head and a steady eye. He could, of course, not look down. The clinging hold that he had to maintain on the bottom of the cross shortened the reach of his body and made it less than when he stood on the plank and reached up to the cross with his hands. He must drop so that his feet should reach the plank, for he would never be able to pull himself back if he should let himself down at arms' length, and his feet hung over empty air.

But this young American had a good head, which he immediately put to work. He looked up at the cross and tried to recall exactly the angle at which he had reached for it to make his memory tell him just how the edge of that square post had appeared. A few inches to the right or to the left meant that he would drop into vacancy. Bending his head away back, he strained his eye up the cross and figured his angle of approach. He cautiously wormed himself to the right and made up his mind that here directly under his feet must be the plank. Then he dropped. And he lived to tell the tale.

He Got the Pass.

The manager of a road show, once playing a country town, was stationed at the front door one evening taking tickets when a young man presented himself and asked for a pass, simply stating that he was the "bellman."

"What do you mean by 'bellman'?" asked the manager. "Well," came the answer, "next door to the opra house is a tower with a large bell, and at 9 o'clock I ring the curfew. If I get in to the show free I'm going to give the bell a couple of light taps. If I don't get in free I ring it to beat the cars for fifteen minutes, and it generally breaks up the show."

The Bellman was passed in.

High Pillows.

"Of all the thousands of patients I have seen in bed I have never met with one who arranged his pillows hygienically," said an eminent doctor.

"All too high, far too high. High pillows curve the spine, bend the neck and thus prevent the free circulation of blood in the brain. You can never get the full value out of a night's sleep unless you fix your pillow so low that the head and neck are just on a level line with the spine."

Air Consumed in a Minute.

In one minute in a state of rest the average man takes into his lungs about 8 liters or 48.8 cubic inches of air. In walking he needs 16 liters or 97.6 cubic inches, in climbing 23 liters or 104.3 cubic inches, in riding at a trot 33 liters or 201.3 cubic inches and in long distance running 57 liters or 347.7 cubic inches.—Scientific American.

Proof of Her Ability.

The One—I can't understand why you imagine she has wonderful conversational powers, when, as a matter of fact, she talks extremely little.

The Other—That's just it. She shows remarkable discretion in the selection of things to be left unsaid.—Chicago News.

Electricity.

Lightning and electricity are fundamentally the same. Franklin proved this with his famous kite. What electricity is down at bottom nobody knows any more than we know what any other force is. We witness its operations, but its nature is a mystery to us.
