AN AWFUL DEATH.

Guard at Trestle Near Kingstree Killed by Train Monday Morning.

His comrades and the people of Kingstree and vicinity were grievously shocked Monday morning when they learned that Private Gilliland Hall, of near Camden, a member of Company M, First South Carolina regiment, had been found dead at his post of duty about 4 o'clock that morning.

Young Hall was one of a squad detached here temporarily to guard the A C L trestle spanning Black river just south of town. He with a companion attended service at the Presbyterian church Sunday night and, returning to camp, went on post at midnight at the north end of the trestle.

When the next man on duty came up to relieve Hall he found the lifeless body lying on its back partly in a fire and partly on the track, one foot crushed by the car wheels and the face, shoulder and one arm badly burned by the fire into which the young soldier had fallen when struck by the passing train.

At first it was thought that Hall had fallen asleep on the side of the track and had been struck by the engine, but this theory passed out of the minds of the people as a closer investigation was made as to the position of the dead body, the cuts and bruises on it and the record of the young man as a soldier. There is no doubt as to his death being caused by the train, but as to just how the young man was struck by it, no one knows. One theory is that he was standing by the fire with his gun across his shoulder and the train struck the muzzle of the gun, knocking him senseless into the fire. Another is that a loose hanging car door of a rapidly passing freight train struck him. Of the two theories the one of the gun seems most probable because the gun was damaged.

Monday morning the body was brought to Kingstree and prepared for burial by the Kingstree Hardware Co. That evening the remains were escorted to the depot by the Boy Scouts and sent to Camden. The floral offerings by the Boy Scouts were numerous and beautiful.

Gilliland Hall, it is said, was an exemplary young man, and enjoyed the confidence and esteem of the officers and fellow privates of his company.

The motorboat Mary Lee Swann is plying daily between Kingstree and the soldiers' camps. Many ladies and gentlemen have taken this method of visiting these volunteer defenders of our country, and all should do so. The Swann made two trips Saturday.

SOUL-STIRRING SERVICES

Still Going on at Presbyterian Church—Great Interest Manifested.

The people of Kingstree and surrounding community are still enjoying a rare spiritual feast in the evangelistic services at the Presbyterian church. Two services are held daily except Saturday, at 10:30 a. m. and 8:00 p. m., and three on Sunday, at 11:00 a. m., and 3:00 and 8:00 p. m. The interest of the people is at white heat, and the famous saying about Charleston is now equally applicable to Kingstree: "Everyone goes to church here." The principal business men of town are generously aiding the good work by closing their establishments during the hours of worship.

The meetings are conducted by Rev Dr J Ernest Thacker of Norfolk, Va, evangelist of the Southern Presbyterian church. He is a speaker of great force and possesses a good voice, an excellent delivery and a charming personality, so that he attracts all with whom he comes in contact. He preaches extemporaneously and deals in no disputed matters of doctrine. His effort is to bring all to confess and call themselves Christians and to hold the faith in the bond of peace and in righteousness of life.

Dr Thacker has an invaluable assistant in Mr James W Jelks, musical director. He possesses a voice of much sweetness and compass and is a born music teacher. He has a large choir of both adults and children, composed of members of all the churches here. They are deeply interested in their work, and Mr Jelks is much pleased with their rendition of the music.

Dr Thacker will speak tonight on "The Inheritance of the Children of God."

In addition to the morning and evening services Sunday, there will be a meeting at 3:00 p. m. at the Baptist church for men and boys only, conducted by Dr Thacker and Mr Jelks. At the same hour a meeting for ladies only will be conducted at the Presbyterian church by Mrs Thacker, wife of the evangelist.

About 400 persons have signified their intention of uniting with the various churches, or, when already members, leading a more consecrated life.

Gradually Improving.

The host of friends of Dr R Claude McCabe will learn with a feeling of profound pleasure that this popular young man is gradually improving in health.

"Doc" has doubtless had a tough time of it. He told the writer yesterday, while calling on him, that he had been on the "very brink" and that all along he had had to fight for what he has, and that he was still fighting to get well and to rid his system of the poisonous corpuscles that in some way, and at some time, invaded his body and polluted his blood through contact with a patient in the course of his professional practice as a dentist. His trouble has not been of a pulmonary nature, as reported.

We were delighted beyond expression to see our young friend looking as well as he does, after the siege he has gone through, and to note the cheerful, hopeful spirit that pervades his being.

Pay Town Taxes.

Tax books of the town treasurer will close on Tuesday, May 15. Only four more days in which to pay your town taxes without also having to pay the execution penalty of $2.

Dr R J McCabe returned to Kingstree Tuesday evening and will be at his dental office here until further notice.
