APPRECIATION OF TWO SISTERS QUICKLY WON

SAYS BOTH ARE THANKFUL FOR THEIR GOOD FORTUNE—MOTHER BROUGHT NEWS.

Greenville Woman Gives Her Views On the Momentous Preparedness Question.

"I had indigestion so badly that often I would begin to hurt after I had eaten only a few bites and at times the pains would be so severe they would almost draw me double, but I have not been troubled with indigestion since I took Tanlac," declared Mrs C W Quinn, of 44 Ninth St, Sampson, Greenville, in a statement she gave March 21. "I certainly did suffer with indigestion, though, and my sister, who lives near Campobello, had this trouble far worse than I did, and she finally got so that she could not eat anything at all and she had lost flesh until she was almost skin and bones. Really her condition became awful. She looked like a skeleton, and complained of suffering terribly all the time. I never have seen anyone who looked as badly as she did and yet out of bed.

"Tanlac had done my sister so much good I decided to take it, and it proved a fine medicine for me in every way. I have not been troubled with indigestion since I took Tanlac.

"My mother visited me and told me how Tanlac had helped my sister and also my sister wrote me. My sister said no medicine could be better than Tanlac for indigestion. She did not give any details, but she wrote a lot telling how fine she found Tanlac to be. My mother said Tanlac just made a new woman of my sister.

"I am glad to praise Tanlac, for it did so much for us, and I think that a bottle of Tanlac should be kept on hand for any emergency."

Tanlac, the master medicine, is sold by Kingtree Drug Co, Kingtree; Mallard Lumber Co, Greelyville; Farmers' Drug Co, Hemingway; S S Aronson, Lane; R P Hinant, Suttons; W D Bryan, Bryan.

PAYING FOR THE WAR.

Views of a Leading Newspaper on the Proposed Revenue Bill.

The War Revenue Bill, the most sweeping measure of taxation ever proposed in the United States, should be subjected to searching criticism and amendment before it becomes a law, but in the main it adheres to correct principles.

Contemplating a yearly levy of $1,800,000,000, which will bear heavily upon every man, woman and child, it wisely avoids the financial errors of early Civil war days, when resort was had only to bond sales and fiat money. Staggering as its burdens must be, the present generation is by no means to meet the entire cost of the war, but its payments from earnings and savings are to be heavy enough to stabilize credit and preserve a sound economic policy.

While nearly all of the vast sum to be raised will come from direct taxes, not one of the new internal revenue imposts in the bill as drawn taxes the table. The application of a 10 per cent tariff to goods now imported free and the addition of 10 per cent to existing custom rates will produce a considerable revenue without restoring the old inequalities and extortions. It is so palpably a war revenue bill that in all honesty it must be repealed in most of its parts soon after the conclusion of peace, leaving conditions as they were.

Income and excess-profits taxes have been doubled, with smaller exemptions for individuals, and the surtaxes upon incomes exceeding $5,000 run as high as 33 per cent. Probably these features of the bill will receive close scrutiny in both Houses, for economic questions of the utmost gravity are here presented all along the line, especially in regard to the excess-profits tax, now placed at 17 per cent.

Liquors and tobaccos are to pay enormous increases, and practically all forms of amusement, sport, travel and communication are to yield money to the tax-gatherer. From automobiles to chewing-gum, from musical instruments to playing-cards, from jewelry to grape-juice, from motor-boats to patent medicine, from inheritances exceeding $50,000 to a bottle of pop, nothing escapes.

For some reason, the most elaborate system of stamp taxes on documents ever devised omits bank checks, an easy and natural source of revenue; but the authors of the bill did not forget to restore 3-cent postage and 2 cents for postal cards, or to insist upon the objectionable zone system in fixing exorbitant mailing rates for newspapers and magazines. In this way publications of wide circulation which do much to co-ordinate American thought, including all the farm journals, are discriminated against, and revenue, instead of increasing, will positively decrease.

Retroactive income taxes must also furnish legitimate grounds for controversy. The supreme court has upheld legislation of this kind, but it is in sharp conflict, nevertheless, with the spirit of the Constitution. With almost unlimited resources at its command, Congress has a poor excuse indeed for collecting a second time after it has once given its receipt in full.

When in 1862 Representative Justin S Morrill of Vermont, one of the Civil War Tax Bill of that year, presented it to the House, he said with emotion that it was the most drastic act ever applied to a free people; but, on behalf of Government, he registered a solemn promise that it should not outlast the war. Vexatious as that measure was to a people unused to searching taxation, it was mild in comparison with the bill now in hand.

Ought not some one in authority today to repeat to those who pay for the world's deliverance from autocracy the pledge made fifty-five years ago to the generation that paid for union?—New York World.

An Army Aviator's Luck.

Many an aviator among the fighting nations owes his life to miraculous good fortune, like the British air man whose escape is described in Tales of the Flying Services by C G Grey.

An officer went out on a bombing expedition and met a German machine. In order to save weight he had left all his small arms behind him, but he thought it was a pity to pass by a good target, and so he decided to drop a bomb on him. But dropping a bomb on a swiftly moving mark is not the same as firing at a fixed point. So he missed the German. Unfortunately for him, he also exposed himself to the fire of the enemy, and received a rifle bullet in the thigh.

To be strictly accurate, the bullet struck his trousers pocket, hit a five-franc piece, broke itself and the coin, and distributed the assorted pieces of metal about the lower part of his body.

Feeling that he was badly hit, the pilot shut off his engine and dived for the ground from a height of about six thousand feet. When he was a thousand feet from the ground he espied some aeroplanes in a field, and, not knowing whether he was over German or France territory, he made up his mind to land among the aeroplanes, certain that if they did happen to be German machines, he would be well treated by the flying corps.

Two hundred feet above ground he completely lost consciousness, but in some curious subconscious way he made a perfect landing—right alongside a British motor ambulance. So well did he land that for some minutes no one troubled about him. When they did go to look they found a badly wounded officer in a state of collapse.

He was promptly put into the ambulance and sent off to the hospital. There it was found that the bullet had cut a large artery and that the pilot would have bled to death in a few minutes if the bullet had not also cut a muscle, which had sprung back and wrapped itself like a piece of elastic round the artery and formed, as it were, an automatic tourniquet.

ECONOMY IN THE HOME.

Carl Vrooman, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, Gives Good Advice.

The domestic life of a modern army should be an example to every American housewife. In the army the ration is well balanced, the cheapest nutritious and palatable foods are purchased, and the most economical means of preparing them are used.

It is a patriotic duty at this time and all the time, whether there is war or peace, for every American woman, rich or poor, to keep her home "prepared." Home preparedness means substitution of cheap, appetizing dishes for costly foods, practical elimination of waste, and scientifically balanced rations.

There are two great groups of food that enter into a balanced human ration—the protein group, like meat, eggs and beans, and the starch group, such as potatoes, rice, cereals, bread, etc. The protein foods as a rule are more expensive than the starchy foods. Some protein foods, however, are cheap. The prime factor in economy in foods is the choice of protein foods that are at the same time cheap and palatable.

A cheap food, rich in protein and fats, is the ordinary field soy bean, often sold under the name "togo bean." Ten cents' worth at the price of 15 cents a quart will supply over five ounces of protein, while average beef at 20 cents a pound will supply little over one ounce of protein for the same money.

Don't depend on one kind of food. When potatoes are dear, remember that one pound of dry cornmeal provides about five times as much fuel or energy and five times as much tissue-building as one pound of raw potatoes and costs from one-third to one-sixth as much.

Save fuel and labor by making hot breads only when using your fire for cooking other foods. Avoid the danger of overcooking, and conserve the flavor of your dinner by using a fireless cooker. You can make a good one yourself very cheaply.

By such expedients as these every woman can "prepare" her home not only against war but also against sickness and hard times.

To Dispatch Trains by Telephone.

Washington, May 11:—Train dispatching on the Southern railway between Washington and Atlanta will be done entirely by telephone, it became known here today. After trying out the telephone in dispatching trains between here and Spencer, N C, road officials have just issued orders to construct telephone circuits between Spencer and Atlanta.

Telegraphers who have been doing the work will be retained in the road's service, it was said.

Big Money in Irish Potatoes.

It has been stated by some that Florence affords an indifferent market for the sale of vegetables, but Mr W M Kennedy, who is trucking on a small scale on the outskirts of East Florence, can testify to the contrary from his own experience. On February 22, Mr Kennedy planted three-quarters of an acre in Irish potatoes. He used no fertilizer, except a small amount of stable manure. On May 8 Mr Kennedy gathered his crop, amounting to forty bushels. He sold the potatoes in Florence for $120. He does not think he spent more than $30 for seed, rent, labor, etc, making a net profit out of the crop of $90. Mr Kennedy is much pleased with the result of his potato crop. He intends to make this same three-quarters of an acre yield him twice $90 before frost comes.—Florence Times.

An Excellent Reason.

Not every maid combines the aptitude for blundering and the talent for ingenious explanation that characterize the young woman about whom the United Presbyterian tells this diverting story: "What do you suppose has come over my husband this morning, Sophia?" exclaimed a conscientious little bride to the new servant. "I never saw him start down town so happy. He's whistling like a bird!" "I'm afraid I'm to blame, mum. I got the packages mixed this morning, and gave him birdseed instead of his regular breakfast food, mum."
