THE TAPESTRY WEAVERS.

Let us take to our hearts a lesson— No lesson can be better— From the ways of the tapestry weavers On the other side of the sea.

Behold their hands the pattern hangs, They study it with care. The while their fingers deftly work, Their eyes are fastened there.

They tell this curious thing besides, Of the pattern, plodding weaver: He works on the wrong side evermore, But works for the right side ever.

It is only when the weaving stops, And the web is loosed and tured, That he sees his real handiwork— That his marvelous skill is learned.

Alas, the sight of his delicate beauty, How it pays him for all his cost! He never, daintier work than his, Was ever done by the frost.

Then the master, bringing his golden hire, And growth him prizes as well, And how happy the heart of the weaver is, He tows his own can tell.

The gaze of man are the looms of God, Let down from the place of the sun, Whence we are weaving away, Till the mystic web is done.

Weaving blindly but weaving surely, Each for himself his fate; We may not see how the right side looks, We can only weave and wait.

But, looking above for the pattern, No weaver bath need to fear; Only let him look clear into Heaven— The Perfect Pattern is there.

If he keeps the face of the Saviour Forever and always in sight, He will shine brighter than honey, His weaving is sure to be right.

And when his task is ended, And the web is turned and shown, He shall hear the voice of the Master: "It shall pay to thee, 'Well done!'"

And the white-winged angels of Heaven, Shall hear him thence shall come down, And God shall give him gold for his hire— Not coin, but a golden crown!

—Anon G. Chester.

Manners in the Pew.

Reverence for the sanctuary, as the place where we go to meet and worship God, should induce quiet and decorous behavior while there. Most people would be intolerant of levity in God's house, if they thought of the place and the purpose, and regarded them in the proper light. Even pharisees, which as everybody knows—often invite criticism by their frivolity, would be ashamed to look over their shoulder in prayer-time, write notes to each other, or exchange glances and whisper audibly, if they remembered each young gentleman and lady individually, that they were in the court of the King. It is forgetfulness of the day, of the place, and of the object, which induces persnickiousness and irreverent demeanor in church on the Sabbath.

There is a matter of minor morals, which incites the present word of reminder—a sort of venial transgression, which good people commit without a notion of its being improper. The whole affair of manners in the pew is really on the same basis as that of manners in the household, in the drawing-room, or anywhere in society. Leaving the higher consideration wholly out of sight, we may observe good manners or the reverse in the pew and praise or condemn them precisely as we would in the parlor.

The noisy way in which many people put their hymn-books in the rack, at the conclusion of the hymn, is an offence against good taste. The sweet echoes of the song or psalm have hardly died away, when presto! there is, as it were, a rattle of musketry all over the building. The innocent books go slanting into their places, as though they were projectiles which their owners were bound to throw as far as possible.

Taking out watches, and scanning them during the sermon, is another gross piece of rudeness. No one would dream of consulting a watch during the pastor's personal call at his home. It is equally unpardonable to manifest impatience of the pulpit, and indifference to the message spoken therefrom—regarding the impatience and indifference simply as a breach of courtesy.

Donning cloaks, furs, and overcoats during the Doxology and benediction, as some people do, is another infringement of propriety. The whole service demands the attention of the congregation; and during its continuance, the edifice should not be turned into a dressing-room.

Making a frantic rush for the door, the instant the minister has pronounced the final Amen, is a bit of indiscretion but too frequently witnessed. One would suppose the building to be on fire, noticing the haste with which the occupants leave it. How much better a decent pause, a moment of silence, and then a restrained and unobtrusive movement through the hallowed aisles and out of the pleasant portals into the world outside.

Love for our special place of worship is as natural and as proper as love for our own homes. "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget its cunning." The more dearly we cherish the house of prayer, the more chary let us be of doing aught that shall diminish our sense of worthiness, and our feeling of the dignity of the service there performed.—Christian Intelligencer.

Eight Golden Rules.

- 1. Stick to the truth; simply and sincerely do what is right. 2. Never join in anything in which you cannot look up and say 'Bless me in this O, my Heavenly Father!' 3. Try to be kind and forgiving, both to friends and foes. 4. Speak no evil of others, under any circumstances. 5. Watch against anger. 6. Deny yourself indulgence, especially in laziness. 7. Keep down pride; allow none but humble thoughts of self. 8. Pray every day, for in prayer is your greatest safety.—L. Richmond.

Newton says: 'My principal method for defeating hypocrisy is by establishing truth. One proposes to fill a bushel with tares; now if I can fill it first with wheat, I shall defy his attempts.'

Sabbath Desecration.

The extent to which the Sabbath day is desecrated is truly alarming. The Divine command is 'Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy'; and this command is just as binding upon the people of this day as it was upon those who first received it. But men seem not to regard it; they act as if the Sabbath was made for pleasure and dissipation. Business men not unfrequently take the sacred day to travel for markets for goods; another class devote the day to drinking—the liquor saloons and beer gardens being open in many cities; and still another class appropriate the day to pleasure; in a word, the day is used as if man was made for the Sabbath. The proper observance of the Sabbath—'to keep it holy'—should receive the earnest attention of the parent, the press and the pulpit—the truth that the Sabbath is the Lord's day should be often and forcibly impressed upon the people.

Every citizen of the United States who wishes to see the Sabbath day respected must surely blush with shame and indignation at Congress remaining in session until noon on Sunday, March 4—our national lawmakers being Divine law-breakers. Morality and respect for the Sabbath has thus received a severe blow, from which it may take years to recover. We trust, there may never again be a repetition of this offensive act.—Christian Neighbor.

Dangerous Companions.

When a young man has made up his mind to walk on the edge of a precipice for the sake of seeking prospects, he always finds plenty of company. There are abundance of people with strong heads who having walked those paths until they are quite certain of their foothold, are ready to go out with new beginners. If they accidentally lose their heads and fall over, whose fault is that? Not theirs, of course. They never fall. They look where they step, and their heads do not turn. It is not only drunkards and thieves who are dangerous companions to the green boys just in from the country. Oh, dear, no! It is your respectable young men that have learned to sip discreetly in all sorts of forbidden fountains, and nibble here and there carefully of the forbidden fruit. They are held as a pattern. They drink, but are never drunk. They have exactly the knack of seeing and knowing all that is to be known, in the ways of wickedness, and yet keeping every step with the righteous. Some of them are church members and Sabbath-school teachers; some are regular shrewd business men. They are never going to hurt themselves, they tell you, but they believe in a certain freedom. They never could see the sense of temperance pledges. For their part they don't need them, and if there is anything they abominate, it is your radical, straight-laced people, who keep always in the dusty toropike for fear of the precipice.

If you would relish food; labor for it before you take it; to enjoy clothing, pay for it before you wear it; if you would sleep soundly, take a clear conscience to bed with you.

In your temptations go to the promises. They are the branches the Lord has hung over the water, that His fallen children may take a grip of them, without which they will go to the bottom.

to vigorously push a business, strength to study a profession, strength to regulate a household, strength to do a day's labor without physical pain. All this represents what is wanted, in the often heard expression, "Oh! I wish I had the strength!" If you are broken down, have not energy, or feel as if life was hardly worth living, you can be relieved and restored to robust health and strength by taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, which is a true tonic—a medicine universally recommended for all wasting diseases.

During the war I was injured in the stomach by a piece of a shell, and have suffered from it ever since. About four years ago I was brought to the hospital, which kept me in bed six months, and the best doctors in the city said I could not live. I suffered fearfully from indigestion, and for over two years could not eat solid food and for a large portion of the time was unable to retain even liquid nourishment. I tried Brown's Iron Bitters and now after taking two bottles I am able to get up and go around and am rapidly improving. G. DECKER, 304 N. Fremont St., Baltimore.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is a complete and sure remedy for Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Malaria, Weakness and all diseases requiring a true, reliable, non-alcoholic tonic. It enriches the blood, gives new life to the muscles and tone to the nerves.
