It must be done out of the regular appropriations, trial at the April term of court in and at the next session, when the deficiency thus rendered necessary is asked for there will no doubt be Congressmen who will declaim against the extravagance in public printing. The responsibility for this extravagance rests entirely with Congress. Orders are made in both Houses for the printing of matter that is entirely useless and worthless, without seemingly giving a thought to the expense. During the last session the committee on printing undertook to reduce the expenditure by cutting down the number of various publications, but in almost every effort of this kind it was overruled. The tons of matter, printed by public expense, which are annually hauled away from the Capitol and sold as waste paper furnish abundant proof Jee. F. > There remain in this city forty-six Congressmen who while away the time as they list, but many of them are engaged in an effort to out-flank the civil service idea, and secure appointments in the Government offices for their relatives and friends. It is getting so common nowadays for public men who control patronage to stow members of their family in snug places that, unless one goes to the Keifer extreme and provides for all his sons, nephews and cousins, it scarcely attracts more than a passing notice. The Senator who first set the example of appointing his son clerk of his committee was made uncomfortably conspicuous by that act; but it would seem that Senators' sons make such superior committee clerks that public sentiment was mistaken in condemning Sumter Court House, in Sumter County, on the last Congress eight Senate committees had fathers for chairmen and sons for clerks, thus affording the public a double share of the

SEED CORN. GOURD SEED CORN.

AVING tested this corn, and found it early, hardy and prolific, and much superior to the old varieties of corn, I offer for sale my surplus stock of seed-raised by myself last season—at half the price that I paid for my seed. Any one desiring information about it are referred to Mr. WHE A. Nettles, R. M. Cain, or other of mys neighbors, who saw the corn while growing.

A supply will be found at the Shoe Store of Bultmann & Bro., in Sumter. J. H. NICHOLES.
