THE WOODLN MAN.

The most interesting statue to us, and perhaps the oldest image in Egypt, and, if so, in the world, is the Wooden Man, which was found at Memphis. This form, indicates intellect. The eyes are crystal, in a setting of bronze, giving a startling look of life to the statue. It is "There is nothing more striking." they's its discoverer, "than this image, in a manner living, of a person who has been dead six thousand years." He must have been a man of mark, and a citizen of a state well civilized; this is not a portrait of a barbarian, nor was it carved by a rade artist. Few artists, I think, have lived since who could impart more vitality to wood. And if the date assigned to this statue is correct, sculpture in Egypt attained its maximum of development six thousand years ago.

This conclusion will be resisted by many, and on different grounds. I heard a clergyman of the Church of England say to his comrade, as they were looking

"It's all nonsense; six thousand years? It couldn' be. That's before the crostion of men."

"Well," said the other, irreverently, "merhaps this was the model."-Charles Dodlag Warner.
