Rev. C. C. BROWN, Editor. "WE ONLY."

Come, wife, dear woman, and sit by me, For the toilsome day is done, and many thoughts in my heart are born With the setting of the sun.

Ay, give me your hand, my patient love, That my own may clasp it tight; Not dearer it was in the years agone, Bear wife, than it is to-night. Old and wrinkled it may be, dear,

But look you wife, at the shine Of the ring that has clung to your fing Since the day that I made you mine.

Twas a long, long march from our youth to But time, be ne'er so gray, Can never tarnish the lustre, dear, Of the pledge of our wedding day.

E'en so the truth of a faithful love, Born far in the auld lang syne, In our steadfast hearts, through weal or woe. Never bas ceased to shine. There are tears in your eyes, my wife, to night; You are thinking, dear, I know, How strange it is that as shadows fall We only are left below-

We only to sit at the old hearthstone . In the twilight, dear, of life; While our children wait at the gates above-When shall we meet them, wife?

Ney, dry those tears, and be glad with me That the day is almost done, and fither, mother, and children all May meet-with the set of sun.

Prayer.

A little hid was keeping his sheep inging for service at the church, and he people were going over the fields that he too, would like to pray to God. But what could be say, for he had never learned any prayer. However, he knelt down and commenced the alphabet A, B, C, D, and so on to Z. A contlemen happening to pass on the voice, and looking through the bushes, the little fellow kneeling with foldat bands and closed eyes, saving the A.

What are you doing, my little man ? said the gentleman kindly. But what are you saying your let-

Why. I don't know any prayer, coly I felt in my heart that I wanted to take care of the sheep, so I thought if I said all I knew, he would pet together and spell all that I Post Bless your heart, my little man, He right, the hips can't say wrong." The prayer that goes to heaven must come from the heart.

The Value of Manner. Wie have beard it said that you can do exerything, however unpleasant it may be to those around you, if you only do it in the right way; and the instance given to prove the truth of this assertion is taken from humble life. A cat walks daintily into a room on a cold winter's day, and with a benign glance at the company and a melodious purring sound she walks leisurely round, selects for herself the warmest place in the room—perhaps the ouly warm place, right in front of the fire— curls herself up and goes serenely to sleep, secure that no one will be so unreasonable as to question her right to sleep wherever inclination prompts her to sleep. No one calls it selfish, no one is analoged, because she has done it so prettily and gracefully. Indeed, every one experiences an access of warmth holding pussy's blissful repose. Now, imagine the same thing done in a different way, and by a less self-possessed individual. If it were done hurriedly or noisily or clamsily or diffidently even, or in any way obstrusively, what a storm of indignation it would excite in the bosoms of all beholders? How or it must not be done at all. When a professed Christian does an set or utters a word which justifies a doubt of the genuineness of his piety. he does more harm than he can do good by month's of consistent deportment. The conduct of its members is the condition of the moral power of the Church. Every time you step you tread on chords that will vibrate to all eternity.' Hasty speaking, thoughtlessacting Christian. think of this ! Open immortality which proves hypocrisy, often does less harm than the hot words and mean acts which lead the unconverted man to say. 'They are all alike.' --N. Y. Advocate.

thoughtless, how selfish! No, it must be done as the cat does it, without A Brave Woman.

The Beaujou Hospital at Paris has just witnessed a most interesting case of transfusion of bleod, which will propably result in a cure. Dr. Sabbe had in his employ a woman who was harassed with a fatty tumor on the neck, which weighed nearly eight pounds. Tired of living in the constant dread attendant on such an affliction, the woman determined to have it cut out or die under the operation. Dr. Sabbe at first refused to entertain the thought of performing the difficult, if not impossible, feat but persuaded by the woman's entreaties and the threat that she would take her life if he refused he undertook the operation, which he performed at the hospital clinic in the presence of a number of students. The courageous woman marched inis within; its manifestations without. Hence, to the ampitheatre without a quiver and placed herself on a couch, where an anæsthetie was administered to the will- moved, and in no other way can a cure ever ing patient. After working a half-hour be effected. WARNER'S SAFE KIDNEY the ablation was successfully performed and a salvo of plaudits greeted the surgeon for the skill that he had displayed. About sixty 'artery catchers' held the principal vessels of the neck, whilst a full view of the carotid artery could be obtained as it throbbed somewhat irregularly. The life of the patient, however was for a time in great danger on account of the necessary loss healthy Kidneys, Liver and Urinary Organs; of blood attendant on such an operation, and to save the patient's life the doctor was compelled to resort to the method of transfusion.

A young and vigorous student named Lecomte offered himself to save the fast- bbing life, and his arm was uncovered. By the use of the apparatus of Dr. Roussell, of Geneva, which ope rates the transfusion of blood without A Shermerd Boy's idea of contact to the air, 310 grammes of blood were injected into the dying woman's body. Shortly afterward a spasmodic movement and a slight coloration of the cheeks showed how effec tive the remedy had proven.

This method is somewhat unusual, as during the last few years, transfusion was operated after the blood from the healthy body had been beaten to detach the fibrine, consequently the injected blood was not only imperfect, but the operation was -alike dangerous to the two patients. The patient is progressing favorably and, thanks to the generous devotion of M Lecomte, she will live to bless the day when her bravery led ber to demand the exercise of Dr. Sabbe's skill - Paris Letter to the Phil delphia Times.

Grace Reformed Church, Easton, The little lad looked up. Please, Pa., was called upon recently to curb and pave the street in front of its prop erry, and as it is not a rich organiza tion and could not afford to hire the work done, the members pluckily did all the job themselves at night, by torch-God to take care of me, and help me light, the pastor himself taking a conspicuous part in the novel scene, which lasted for three nights .- Pittsburg

TORPED BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER,

And MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the luman race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bewels costive, Sick Headache, fuliness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Errectation of food, kritchility of temper, Lovy spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Finttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Erins, CONSTIPATION, and domand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. Asalaiver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Ridneys and Skin is also prompt, removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stoois, a clear skin and a vigorous body. happened to see your advertisement of "Ken dall's Blister and Spavin Cure," and though 'Blister" to the hock which by this time had become calloused, and to my surprise found it work like a charm. In twenty four hours the part that was hard became soft and 'the lameless began to leave. I then got some of "Kendall's Spavin Cure" and applied it acaccording to directions, which has made a perfect cure, and the colt is now as sound as, any horse alive. I merely write this letter to you, as I think it a duty I owe to you, and
