WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 1. WEDDING BELLS.

The wedding bells are ringing, Sweet joy and gladness bringing To every heart, who from their peai, finds Love's rich radiance springing; And though the lips may falter, To speak before the altar The words that bind, "Till death do part," yet sweetly with the Psalter-

"O, Love, divine and tender, Veiled in thy softened splendor," We chant with trust, thy praise, and pray "Oh be this home's defender; God bless these hands united! And bless these hearts thus plighted! In all their lives may they be one, unsevered and unblighted.

Give grace in fullest measure, Let duty be a pleasure, And every gift that Fortune sends, accepted Sunshine and shadows sharing, Each for the other caring, And each, with tender heart and true, the other's burdens bearing.

So, by thy Spirit guided, Life's duties all divided, May all its complex choices be by Love's Thus with bright hopes supernal, Through all life's season vernal, May each receive, for work well done, a home and life eternal.
